"It is not an unusual case," he said. "Our mission is 'home' to many a man whom we never even heard of until he gets arrested. If a man who has been run in as a hopeless derelict can mention some address which he can call home his sentence is apt to be lighter. Lots of outcasts have been on the tramp so long that it is hard for them to think of any place they are intimate enough with to call it home, but through an occasional peep in here they remember the number and brazenly sing it out. Court-room attendants communicate with us and ask our advice. Naturally we respond even though the men are perfect strangers. Some of them seem hopeless wrecks, but now and then we discover a man who has good stuff in him still and is capable of developing into a useful citizen."

Bad for Shoe Trade.

A man called on Mr. John Kylie, the Hunter street boot and shoe merchant, yesterday and purchased a pair of boots. He was 67 years of age, and had on his last pair (the last he bought) purchased from a Mr. White, of Lindsay, over 20 years ago. One pair every twenty years is not likely to greatly encourage the boot and shoe trade. He incidentally informed Mr. Kylie, if the new pair which he had just purchased proved satisfactory, he would give him his future patronage. On hearing this, Mr. Kylie was forced to retire to hide his emotions.

FARM AND FIELD

THE UPKEEP OF THE SOIL.

Results of Ten Years' Experiments Successful.

Experiments have recently demonstrated the virtues of phosphorus in striking fashion. In Ohio ten-year tests have shown that a phosphorus fertiliser accompanying manures would practically double the yields of corn, wheat or hay as compared with lands where no fertiliser was used. In another instance the average yield of corn was increased nine bushels an acre when raw rock phosphate was used during the previous four or five years.

A rational and practical method of maintaining soil fertility is being rapidly established by the soil chemist and bacteriologist. It involves the use of mineral fertilisers to meet the present deficit, accompanied by proper soil management to encourage the growth of the desirable forms of germ life. Nitrogen may be supplied by growing leguminous crops or by the addition of manures from livestock. A supply of potash, if needed, may be furnished in the form of a mineral fertiliser, kainit, or, on limited areas, in wood ashes, or more concentrated forms, such as potassium chloride. Phosphorus may be supplied at a minimum cost through raw rock phosphate or other commercial forms.

The soil must be kept sweet by liming and through drainage. Proper tillage, frequent but not deep soils—will aid. The countryman may invoke the counsel of the chemist, but should test general principles by local trial before applying them on a commercial scale. Above all, the true countryman will not be niggardly with his soil, but will liberally replenish the stores from which he expects an abundant return.

AUTHORITIES REPORT ON CROP.

Prospects Good in Canada.

The seeding and growing season for the whole of Canada has opened late this year, and the month of April has been marked by hard frosts. But May has been favorable to cultivation of the land, and the rainfall has been sufficient for healthy vegetation.

Fall wheat, which is grown chiefly in Ontario and Alberta, showed an average condition of 82 per cent. at the end of April, being 89 per cent. in Alberta and 81 per cent. in Ontario. In Ontario, however, the April frosts were destructive in some regions; and from 12 to 34 per cent. of the area sown has been reported as winter-killed. The central countries, North of Lake Ontario, suffered worst, the average loss as reported being 34 per cent. In the Western counties 27 per cent. of the area in crop has been destroyed. In the Southern counties, North of lake Erie, the loss is 10 per cent.; in the Northern counties and districts, 13.6 per cent.; and in the Eastern counties, between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, 15 per cent. For the whole of Canada, the area winter-killed is reported to be 21 per cent., and the per cent. condition of the growing crop is 82.

About 12 1-2 per cent. of the clover was heaved out by the spring frosts, and the average condition of hay and clover at the end of April was 89 per cent. Alberta shows better than any other part of Canada, its average being 94 1-2 per cent. Nova Scotia comes next, with 93.75; and in Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan it is 86, and in Manitoba 85 per cent.

MARKET FOR MEAT.

Argentina Finds a New Market for Its Meat.

A new market for Argentine meat has been secured in northern Italy. The mayors of Rome and 58 other cities in the northern part of Italy have combined to promote the importation of frozen meat from Argentina. Negotiations in southern Italy have similar arrangements in view for that section. Efforts are being made by the Argentine authorities to have the Swiss regulations modified so as to permit the entry of meat into that country. At present every carcass imported into Switzerland must be accompanied by the tongue, heart, liver, spleen and kidneys. It is thought that a Swiss inspector may be stationed at Buenos Ayres to pass upon carcasses intended for his country and so relieve the trade of this prohibitive order.

ONTARIO FRUIT OUTLOOK.

Ontario's orchards were not in blossom on the 5th May, when correspondents made their return to the Department of Agriculture. The season is said to be later than usual. Fruit buds, however, promise to be plentiful, and after the lean orchard yield of 1910 a liberal yield is expected. War upon scale, codling moth, and other pests is being conducted with more vigor than ever, and several correspondents point to the improved appearance of fruit trees as the result of work done in the last year or two in the way of spraying, pruning, and the better general culture of orchards. A few reports of damage to trees from mice come from some of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa countries.

NEW WAY OF CATCHING RATS.

Catching rats with oyster shells is the unique method employed by some pearlers round about Broome, West Australia. They leave a large oyster on the floor of the cabin at night. It opens for a breath of fresh air, and the smell of fresh meat attracts the rats. When the rodent thinks he'll try a little supper, the oyster suddenly decides that he doesn't like fresh air. Next morning the shell is prized open, and the dead rat thrown overboard.

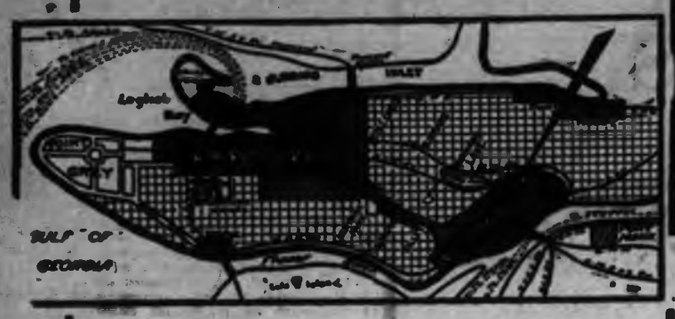
Note the Peninsula Upon Which the Cities of Vancouver and New Westminster are Being Built



No other place compares so nearly with Manhattan Island upon which the City of New York is situated, the highest priced real estate in the world.

With the sea on the Vancouver side and the Fraser River on the other, the two cities are not spreading out in all directions, but are growing towards each other several times faster on that account.

Because it is possible to work or do business in either city, this is where the greatest growth is taking place and this is where values are advancing most rapidly.

Vancouver's city limits have now been extended out to Central Park. The distance between the two city limits is about 4 miles but the building outline between the two is only about 3 miles and even this is being rapidly filled up with houses.

It is estimated that 300 new residents arrive daily and that at least 50 new houses must be erected daily to fill the demand.

Last year the actual increase in the assessed value of property on this peninsula was over fifty million dollars. This year it will be much more because almost double the amount is being expended in development.

We do not believe there is any other real estate in Canada which will make as much for the investor and be continually advancing in value.

Our property is situated directly in the course of fastest growth between the cities where arrow points.

One and a half million dollars has been raised for streets, sidewalks, waterworks, etc., in this immediate vicinity.

We guarantee every lot we sell to be on high level ground. Most of it on main car lines.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS IN CANADA.

BY B. K. SANDWELL.

(Copyright by Publishers Press Limited, Montreal.)

The school may be said to have been literally the first institution set up by the white man in Canada. Nowhere is the history of education so ancient or so honorable. Not only are the schools of Canada the oldest in America, but they are also the best.

When the French settled the shores of the St. Lawrence, their explorers, soldiers and peasants were accompanied by missionaries whose first work it was to establish schools for the Indian population. Nowhere else were the Indians so treated, whether by English, Spanish or Dutch explorers. When children of white birth began to grow up in the colony, there were schools and teachers all ready for them; and long before the rival settlements to the south had done more than clear the ground for forts and farms, the youth of Quebec were learning their letters in a stone schoolhouse. The first teachers of Canada, the Recollet Fathers, will in five years be celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of their arrival. The Jesuits had a college in the city of Quebec a year before the foundation of Harvard College in Massachusetts.

It is somewhat a far cry from these devoted Catholic missionaries to the Ontario Public School system of the present day—the typical educational system of the Dominion, and one which has been the model not only for most of the Provinces of Canada but also for much imitation in the United States and elsewhere. "It may be doubted," says Dr. W. T. Harris, editor of the International Education Series, "whether there is another instance in America of so wise a use of money and supervisory power as is shown in this province of Ontario", in its system of local control and central regulation of the people's schools.

Like the early French schools of Quebec, however, the first educational efforts of the people of Ontario had their origin largely in religious feeling. These early Canadian wanted schools, as their Governor and intellectual leader, Simcoe, put it, "from which more than from any other source a grateful attachment to His Majesty, morality, and religion will be fostered and take root throughout the whole province." As a result largely of Simcoe's efforts, the Legislature in 1797 ordered the setting apart of a large portion of the public lands as a fund for the establishment of grammar schools. From that time the schools of Ontario, and of practically the whole of Canada, have been managed and financed by the people themselves in their own school districts but regulated and largely aided financially by the central authority. To-day the three grammar schools of that time have grown to 5,869 public schools, 465 Catholic separate schools, 145 high schools and a half-dozen of universities and colleges; there are 500,000 students in the Province; illiteracy is practically unknown; and by an extensive system of scholarships the highest ranges of education are within the reach of the poorest boy who possess marked ability and application.

The Hon. George W. Ross, a schoolteacher himself in the 'sixties when Ontario was feeling her way toward this ideal system, was the Minister of Education for eighteen years, the closing eighteen years of the last century, before he became first the Premier of his province and then a member of the Dominion Senate; and he has left on record the opinion that the Ontario school system "is the evolution of the best thought of different Legislatures, aided and directed by the judgment of men who gave a lifetime to the task of adapting broad principles of organization and pedagogy to the wants and aspirations of the people for whom it was designed." The same authority claims ten great characteristics for this system, which he describes as follows:

(1) It is an organized whole, beginning with the kindergarten and ending with the university.

(2) It provides free education for all persons under twenty-one years of age.

(3) It graduates the courses of study so as to avoid waste of time of the pupils and waste of teaching power of the teachers.

(4) It provides a trained teacher for every school, aided by public money.

(5) It furnishes a uniform standard for every teacher according to his rank.

(6) It protects children against the selfishness or neglect of parents and guardians, by making attendance at school compulsory.

(7) It secures trustees against the incapacity of teachers by a rigorous system of examination and inspection.

(8) It protects education from the caprice of public opinion by the appointment of inspectors during pleasure, and by the election of trustees for a lengthened term of service.

(9) It secures economy and uniformity in text-books by placing their publication in the hands of a central provincial authority.

(10) It permits the establishment of separate schools for Roman Catholics subject to the same standards of efficiency as to the public schools.

The Ontario Department of Education has taken a very wide view of its functions, not at all confined to the mere management of schools. It carries on a vigorous campaign amongst the public libraries of the province, improving the character and classification of books, promoting the purchase of serious works other than fiction, and encouraging the circulation of Canadian and British literature as against American and other foreign writings. Hundreds of Travelling Libraries are operated by this Department in rural communities, and the children in all Ontario schools are encouraged to make the freest possible use of the available collections.

But it is in the West that education has accomplished its greatest marvels. Almost the first thing done when a new area is opened up to settlement is to establish a school district, largely financed by the revenue from lands set apart for the purpose in every township in the early 'seventies, and in part by a special tax on land. Saskatchewan three times the number it possessed when established as a Province in 1905, and some sixty thousand school-children, and this year about two and a half million dollars will be spent on the schools alone. The province of Alberta is even more aggressive. Both of these young provinces have established state universities costing half a million each for buildings alone. Education in the prairie provinces is not compulsory, but there is a strong demand that it be made so. It is no uncommon thing for a school in the West to have pupils of twenty or thirty different nationalities, just over from Europe and hardly able to speak a word of English; but the task of making them Canadians is being carried on with outstanding efficiency. Like Alberta, Saskatchewan has sixty thousand school children.

In Manitoba there is an even more strenuous fight going on for compulsory education than further West. While the schools there are doing excellent work, the cause of education in general has been greatly handicapped by constant conflicts regarding the rights of the Roman Catholics minority, who do not possess here the privilege of absolutely separate schools which enables them to go their own way in most of the other provinces.

In Quebec the Protestant minority carries on a separate school system of its own under religious control. Up to the last year or two the inadequate revenues of the Province allowed very little to be done by the Government for the schools of either section of the population, and Catholic education was promoted largely by the devotion of certain religious brotherhoods and the clergy, while the Protestant schools were either cruelly handicapped by poverty or maintained by generous self-taxation on the part of the people. One result of this system has been to induce private generosity on the part of the millionaires of the Province, such as that by which Sir William Macdonald established the Macdonald College, the model agricultural training school of the world and one of the finest institutions for training teachers on the American continent. In the last two years the Government has been able to make somewhat more generous grants to the poorer schools, but the state of Protestant education in many parts is still unsatisfactory especially as some of them are dominated, as it is the case in Montreal, by incapable men.

Public opinion, however, is being roused calling attention to this state of affairs, and it is expected that the Province will follow its sister provinces in putting education outside of politics, and provide educational facilities for all denominations of its population.

The Universities of Canada are famed the world over. Perhaps the best known is that of McGill in Montreal, which owes all its greatness to the generosity of a few wealthy citizens and to the wisdom of its directors in devoting their funds at an early period to scientific apparatus. Toronto University, always famous for its Arts teaching, has in the last few years been financed by the Ontario Government to a point where it can compete to some extent with McGill for science students, denominational colleges and universities, both for theology and Arts, flourish all over the country, chief among the Protestants being Queen's, the Presbyterian foundation at Kingston, and among the Catholics the University of Laval at Quebec with its branch at Montreal. Technical schools, Ontario at usual leading the way, have sprung up in every important centre under provincial direction, but there is at present a movement on foot to ascertain what the federal government can do for this branch of education, from which those who put a broad construction on the British North American Act, the constitution of Canada, claim that it is not excluded.

CRACKER BLEW OFF PART OF FACE

Montreal, June 26.—With the lower portion of his face blown completely off and nothing but the roof of his mouth and his tongue left and still living and conscious, Polydore Danis a young trapper, twenty years of age who lives back of Nominingue, was brought to this city and taken to the general hospital this morning where he is slowly dying.

Young Danis was celebrating the feast of Saint Jean Baptiste, and in an attempt to set off a giant firecracker, the cracker in some way exploded prematurely. Strange to say Danis never lost consciousness.

When brought to the general hospital this morning, the doctors at once saw there was no hope of recovery, although Danis had retained consciousness. He was able to write on a piece of paper and made signs to the doctor attending. When paper and pencil were given him, he wrote: "Kindly give me chloroform." Doctors are giving all possible remedies to relieve the sufferer in his last hours.

C. P. R. DIRECTORS HEAVY BUYERS

Toronto, June 26.—There is a well-authenticated rumor in Toronto that the C.P.R. is contemplating the taking over of the Erie Railroad.

This rumor has been in circulation in New York for several months, but no verification has hitherto been obtainable. A local financier, speaking to a reporter on Saturday, said there was more truth in the rumor than many people supposed.

"I know," said he, "that C.P.R. directors are and have been heavy buyers for some time, and I am informed that one of these has recently purchased 100,000 shares of Erie common."

Another broker discussing the matter stated that an amalgamation of the C.P.R. and the Erie would make an ideal railroad situation. C.P.R. has the only complete transcontinental road in Canada, and if the Erie road were owned by the C.P.R., it would provide the only one-company owned route from the Atlantic to the Pacific in the United States.

The Erie Company has a capital outstanding of $122,000,000 of common stock, and if this road were taken into the C.P.R. system it would be the fourth of the large railways to be dominated by the Canada Pacific. The others are the Soo, Wisconsin Central and Duluth South Shore.

MURDERED BY TURKS.

Thousands Have Fled to Montenegro for Protection.

Vienna, June 29.—Reliable advices have been received here from Albania that the situation there is extremely critical. Turkey has massed 30,000 troops within a day's march of the Montenegrin frontier.

Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, who has just arrived at Vienna from Cettinje after traversing Albania, describes the conditions as absolutely intolerable. The Turks, he says, are depopulating the whole districts, killing prisoners, refugee women and children, burning houses and crops and blowing up churches. A large body of Albanian women and children is now caught between two wings of the Turkish army, and escape is impossible.

Mr. Crane adds that 25,000 women and children have fled to Montenegro and are starving there, their only means of sustain means of subsistence being boiled grass and various roots they are able to gather.

THE FIRST TRANSCONTINENTAL TRAIN

Twenty-five years ago to-day the first transcontinental train of the Canadian Pacific Railway pulled out from Montreal for the Pacific Coast. It was a memorable occasion, marking the consummation of the greatest work that Canada had ever undertaken.

For a country with less than four millions of people to build a railway across the North American Continent—the first, and still the only actual transcontinental line connecting the two great oceans—was a remarkable achievement whose importance was actuated by the fact that for many hundreds of miles its lines traversed regions altogether unknown — where men did not live — around the rock-bound northern shores of Lake Superior, across the far western plains then in utter solitude, and over Nature's majestic sky-scrapers in the Canadian Rockies.

No less wonderful has been the growth and expansion of Canada's great national highway during the intervening quarter of a century. The company did not merely remain a common carrier—it became more — a developer and an Empire builder—and so potent a factor in filling the wants of others as well as the vast army of travellers that both on land and sea the C.P.R. to-day is a name to conjure with. From comparatively small beginnings, as seen by twentieth century eyes, it has developed into a world encircling institution with magnificent fleets on ocean and inland waters—an immigration agency that has peopled half a continent, even to furnishing ready-made homes to the homeseekers—a forceful factor in the development of mines and mining—an inaugurator of huge irrigation works that are reclaiming a kingdom. The company, too, besides having extensive car works at different points where thousands are employed in building its rolling stock, has its own telegraph and express services that reach everywhere, and a chain of palatial hotels to comfortably house those who travel; and it even employs Swiss guides to pilot daring mountaineers to dizzy heights and runs sanitariums and summer resorts where the pleasure seeker may holiday and the health of the invalid be restored. Its record fully justifies the name happily bestowed upon it by an eminent European—"Providence Incorporated."

A few figures will give some idea of the greatness of its growth:—

The total earnings in 1886 were a little over $10,000,000, and the net earnings less than $4,000,000, the surplus after deducting fixed charges being $635,444. This year's gross earnings will probably be over $164,000,000 and the net earnings about $37,000,000. The mileage then was 4,631 miles; to-day it is, including controlled lines, about 15,500 miles. The number of passengers then carried was 1,800,312 and the tons of freight aggregated 2,046,196. The approximate figures for the past twelve months are over 12,000,000 passengers, and 21,350,000 tons of freight. A comparison of the figures shows that a considerable reduction in the rates has taken place. In 1886 the average earnings per passenger per mile was 2.10 cents and freight averaged 1.10 cents per ton per mile. To-day the figures are for passengers 1.93 cents per mile and for freight 0.900 cents per ton per mile. A comparison of the equipment then and to-day shows how the company has kept pace with the requirements of the traffic:—

Locomotives	372	1,629
First and second-class passenger cars and colonist and baggage cars	304	1,797
First-class sleeping and dining car	47	311
Parlour, official and pay-masters cars	27	93
Freight and cattle cars	8,283	90,863
Conductors vans	178	889
Boarding, tool and auxiliary cars	71	3,684

Still more marked is the increase in the marine department. In 1886 the C.P.R. fleet consisted of two steamers on the Great Lakes. To-day, it has fleets on many waters. Its red and white checkered house flag floats over sixteen Atlantic liners, four Pacific liners, twenty-two steamers on the Pacific Coast service, five on the Great Lakes service, twenty-two on the inland waters of British Columbia, and two in the ferry service on the Detroit River—a total of 71 vessels—and this number will be increased by the building of several new steamships for the ocean service and by the acquisition of the Dominion Atlanti crailway and its steamships.

There seems to be no finality to the company's work. In addition to the of the Dominion Atlantic railway and equipment hundreds of millions of dollars have been expended on improvements such as double-tracking, reduction of grades, curves eliminated, replacing wooden bridges with steel structures, erecting new stations and enlarging old ones, etc., and the policy of extending branch lines wherever needed is still being vigorously pursued.

In one way only has the C.P.R. remained "as it was" and that is in the retention of the services of officials and employees. It is practically manned to-day as it was manned a quarter of a century ago, with, of course, the addition of the many thousands required by the expansion of the road. The total number employed now reaches 80,000 and these are stationed in almost every civilised country on the face of the earth. There was no pension fund in 1886, for none was needed. To-day there are over 500 of the old faithful workers on the pension roll, none of whom receive less than $20 a month—a positive contradiction of the proverbial saying that corporations have no souls.

All this shows that the Canadian Pacific is, as stated, more than a transportation company in the generally accepted sense of the term. It is an Empire builder and its name will ever be remembered as the creator of Western Canada and a great developing factor wherever its lines penetrate.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,—is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt—would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the men of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

IS YOUR MONEY IDLE?

Dormant Wealth is useless. Gold hidden in the corner cupboard is WASTING ITS TIME, just as surely as the sluggard is wasting his life. In these strenuous days of commercial activity every dollar should be made to work. ARE YOUR DOLLARS WORKING ALL THE TIME?

Of course YOU have no lazy money. But have you a bank balance that is just vegetating, making a paltry three cents interest on the dollar once in twelve months, three dollars on the hundred, thirty on the thousand?

Don't let your money ape the sluggard. Make it WORK. Opportunity is knocking at your door right now, and I am guiding Opportunity. It is worth your while reading this advertisement carefully. You cannot lose by it; you stand to gain a just deal.

Fruit Farms in British Columbia are my specialty. I have devoted many years to a close study of the soil and the climatic conditions of the Fraser River Valley. I will not handle property that is not ABSOLUTELY A. 1., no matter what the inducement may be. When you deal with W. J. KERR, LTD., you deal with a reliable firm.

If you have never been to British Columbia, you can have but a slight idea of the wonderful and steady increase in land values. The price of yesterday is doubled to-day, to-day's price will quadrupled to-morrow, for the upward movement has only just commenced. The wealth of a province is behind this steady movement.

Six years ago I sold land on the Westminster-Vancouver electric car line for $100 per acre. To-day it sells for from $2000 to $6000 an acre.

Two years ago I sold land in Peachgrove for $100 an acre. You could not buy that same land to-day for less than $2000 per acre.

I have just picked these two instances at random, but they will suffice to show you the enormous increase in values in the past. THE PROFITS OF THE PAST WILL NOT BE A CIRCUMSTANCE TO THE PROFITS OF THE FUTURE. Do you wish to share in these profits? Of course you do.

Investment in good real estate is as safe as a deposit in the Bank of England. There is no better real estate than in the Fraser River Valley.

I have the biggest list of properties in this district, and the prices at which I offer these is always a little lower than the other fellow. That is how I gained my reputation.

I am now placing a Fruit Land Subdivision on the market. This is parcelled into five-acre tracts, close to two railway lines and with splendid roads leading to the property. The Water Supply gushes up in a never-lessening stream from a well 320 feet deep, and can be piped to every house in the subdivision.

This Fruit Land is only a few miles from the city of Westminster, which boasts the greatest farmers' market in Western Canada. Here all products of the soil command a quick and remunerative sale. There is no over-supply; the coast cities are growing fast and consume a great deal more than the surrounding country now produces.

The figure at which I am placing this on the market will increase tremendously in the next few years, and in the meantime the land will pay for itself over and over-again with the bumper crops it will produce. Let me send you full details of this remarkable offer. Drop me a line to-day—right now while the matter is fresh in your mind.

FARM AND FIELD

EGG CANDLING.

A Good Way of Testing Eggs for Market.

The time of year is at hand when it is a little difficult to always know the condition of the eggs that are gathered, even upon well managed farms. Candling at home puts the producer in position to demand and do secure what his eggs are worth, and in this connection the following description of the contents of eggs, ranging from fresh to absolutely rotten, as they appear under the candle is of interest. It is from a newspaper bulletin put out by the Indiana station:

Fresh.—Opaque, appearing almost entirely free of any contents, sometimes dim outline of yolk visible, air cell very small.

Stale.—Outline of yolk plainly visible, sometimes muddy in appearance, air cell very large.

Developed Germ.—Dark spot visible, from which radiate light colored blood vessels.

Dead Germ.—Dark spot attached to shell, or red ring of blood, visible.

Rotten.—Muddy or very dark in appearance, yolk and white mixed, air cell large and sometimes moveable.

Cracked.—White lines showing irregularity in shell.

RAISING CHICKENS.

Chickens Can Be Raised Successful in Your Yard.

It pays to raise chickens. There's no doubt about it.

For long it was the generally accepted theory that a hen needed about 160 acres in which to roam and scratch, and that a big barnlike house was needed for just a medium sized flock to roost.

Wrong. One well tested system gets excellent results both in eggs and meat by confining chickens in very close quarters. In little backyards of city lots a flock of hens will grow and lay and fatten for the market or your table just as if they were on the farm.

If the largest plot you can give to chickens is only eight feet by four, that will do for a half dozen hens and a rooster, and with right care you ought to get 50 dozen of eggs a year.

Multiply that by more space and more hens and see how it will cut down your cost of living. Also it will make you free of the cold storage product, and what is almost as good to the city man, the larger the production of eggs and poultry the less the demand for pork, beef and mutton, and corresponding lower prices for all meats.

FARMERS TO MEET BORDEN.

Arrangements are being made by the farmers of the three prairie provinces to meet Mr. R. L. Borden when he comes West next month. It is felt by the farmers that as Mr. Borden is Premier of Canada in prospect, he should be made fully aware of the desires of the Western people.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier toured the West last summer he was met by the organized farmers at every point where he held meetings, and the demands of the farmers were firmly and courteously placed before him.

Mr. Borden will hold thirty meetings in the West, and it is the intention to have a delegation meet him at every point and lay before him the needs of the West. The same matters will be brought before Mr. Borden as were discussed with Sir Wilfrid last summer, though the demands of the farmers are now crystallized into more definite shape.

WATERWORKS FOR FARM.

An increasing number of enquiries are received asking for methods of supplying water to country homes. It has been one of the drawbacks of life on the farm compared with the city that while water might be in abundant supply it has not been convenient for all purposes of the household. In response to the demand for better appliances many improvements have of late years been made in pumping and piping outfits. Water in the house for free use is coming to be recognized as one of the first requirements in sanitary living. Further than this it is a labor saving arrangement that is in keeping with the modern machinery and appliances used elsewhere on the farm.

THE SUFFERING EDITOR.

A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper as follows:—"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared:—

"When the nag is looking all right sell him to someone."

The increased production of milk, in Ontario is looked upon as an indication that the farmers of the province generally are beginning to see greater possibilities in dairying. The cities are taking a great deal of milk, which to a considerable extent changes the cheese factory situation.

SISTERS OF ST. ANNE WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Montreal, Quebec, June 23.—The Provincial Board of Health announced this morning that they had decided to prosecute the Sisters of St. Agnes, of St. Jerome Convent, who allowed forty three pupils to depart for their homes after a case of smallpox had been discovered in the convent and the children had been placed under quarantine. The sisters are liable to fine or imprisonment, or both, if these developed, and it is feared that the scattering of these pupils may cause an epidemic throughout the Province.

WANTS $14,000 FOR A TIP.

For Giving Information About Big Property in Bronx.

Thirteen years ago, on a New York park bench, Thomas Corrigan told Patrick Goff about unclaimed property in the Bronx that belonged to a cousin, Henry Goff, who had been drowned leaving no immediate heirs.

On the strength of the tip, Goff got possession of property worth $360,000. Corrigan is now suing for $10,000, which he says Goff promised him. Goff says he never promised any such thing, but gave Corrigan $50.

REAL GOLD BRICKS.

Kiln Erected on Ancient Gold Mine in India.

Gold bricks, real ones, may be the means of restoring the ancient frame of Golconda, near Hyderabad, in southern India, once known all the world over for its gold mines, but now a decayed city. The natural pits from which many centuries ago the precious metal was extracted have in course of time filled up with water. A contractor recently obtained permission to make bricks near the place and ten kilns were erected. The first finished bricks aroused curiosity by their yellowish tint, and analysis proved that they contained gold dust. On the basis of the yield of the sample bricks, the ten kilns will aggregate in weight about 12,857 pounds of gold worth over $50,000,000. The site of the find belongs to the Nizam, or native ruler.

IF!

A credulous man was the census enumerator.

When Brawney the blacksmith declared he was 60, he believed him, despite the blacksmith's robust appearance, for robust blacksmiths seldom show their age.

When Susan the spinster declared she was 23, he believed her also, despite her crowmarks and graying hairs(for spinsters do not care to show their age, either.

But when Isaac the idiot wrote the figures 120 under the heading "Father, if living," the Census enumerator rubbed his nose doubtfully, and thought this was a little too much.

"You don't mean to say," he exclaimed, "that your father is really 120 years old?"

"No o' course 'e ain't!" retorted Isaac complacently. "But 'e would 'a' been if livin'."

Her Habit.

"What do you think the young wife of old Moneybags has developed into? She is always crossing or recrossing the ocean. She certainly keeps the transatlantic line busy."

"You know, she was formerly a telephone girl."

Swat That Fly.

The transmission of disease by the fly is no longer a mere theory, but is a truth that has been scientifically established.

Keep the flies out of your house. Get screens for the doors and the windows. Be on guard all the time.

Keep screens over articles of food. Don't let flies get near the pantry, kitchen or diningroom.

Be doubly careful about keeping flies out of the sickroom. They are likely not only to bring complications of new diseases, but to carry the invalid's disease to many others.

Those who put in their screens promptly will be taking the best precaution against having disease germs introduced into their homes by flies.

There is more health in a house well screened than in many a doctor's visit.

About 50 metals have been discovered in the last 200 years by chemist explorers, but most have been found for only a few of them.

Recent explorations indicate that China has coal fields containing more fuel than those of all other countries in the world combined.

A new safety razor shaving outfit including soap and brush, packs into a case less than half an inch thick for carrying in the pocket.

The dairy cow possesses a long face, thin, slender neck, a sharp, projecting shoulder. She is not very wide in the chest, but her capacity of chest is due to her depth, which is greater in proportion to her size than you will find in the beef animal. She possesses large barrel, which indicates a good capacity for digesting her feed. Her depth here should exceed her depth in any other portion of the body. A dairy cow should have a good width at the hips. Her thighs should be lean and free from muscling. She should be open between her thighs.

SHOT A BEAR

Upstream's Good Aim While Riding on a Moose's Back

A man named Morrison who resides near Oyster River, N.B., declares that he shot a bear which was riding on the back of a moose. Whether the bear had deliberately attacked the moose, slipped down a tree by accident as the moose was passing underneath or adopted that method of crossing the river, the eyewitness was unable to say, but he declares he shot the animal as the moose was carrying him across country as though recently emerged from the waters of the river. One shot was sufficient to kill the bear and the brute that subsisted mainly on a vegetable diet.

QUEBEC IS FORTUNATE

Great G.T.P. Railway Shops to be Stationed There

The greatest railway workshops in Canada outside of Winnipeg will be erected within a few miles of Quebec city in connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific, according to Hon. S. N. Parent, chairman of the Transcontinental Commission. The plans of the proposed workshops are most extensive. It was announced that tenders would be called for the erection of the new station of the Grand Trunk Pacific in Quebec at the end of May, and the tenders for the workshops would be called for as soon as details had been arranged.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

AN INVESTMENT NOT A SPECULATION

What everybody with an ounce of common sense is on the alert for these days is a sound INVESTMENT and there is as much difference between an investment and a speculation as there is between London and Hong-Kong, although we all don't realize this.

• • • •

Consequently when one takes a 'chance' on a 'speculative' proposition, mistaking it as an investment and comes out of the small end of the horn, he becomes pessimistic and with the tightening of his purse strings to extremes to keep the pennies in just naturally shuts the dollars out.

• • • •

Now then if there were no investors there would be no progress, and with no progress the community would mighty soon become stagnant.

• • • •

The foundation of America, was old Christopher Columbus, he had an idea but was short on ready cash, in other words he was what us modern day folks call a promoter. His idea was feasible, he found co-operation, his plans carried and YOU KNOW THE REST.

• • • •

Like Columbus we are all Pioneers. Not out for our health, but to make money. No man ever saved more than a competence on a salary; few do that. To get a footing on "Easy Street" you have to invest. DOLLARS don't grow in your pockets or in a stocking. They must be put to work. Old Russell Sage said :

"Plant a few in a new country and see how fast they grow."

That's what we are trying to impress on you now and here is the biggest opportunity of this kind that is likely to knock at your door.

• • • •

We are the Pioneers of the fruit and vegetable canning enterprise in the Okanagan Valley and earnestly invite you to co-operate with us.

• • • •

Men at the head of affairs of this corporation are the best known and most highly esteemed gentlemen in British Columbia.

• • • •

Mr. Albert McKillop, our President, has a world wide reputation in the Timber and Timber Land World. (See R. G. Dunn).

• • • •

Mr. Wesley A. Blair, our Secretary and Treasurer, is also Cashier of the Canadian Customs, being the Government's most trusted employee. He handles on an average of $30,000.00 every commercial day of the year, and it was his fertile mind that first saw the possibilities of Canneries on the Coast, in-as-much as tens of thousands of dollars duty pass through his hands for American goods yearly. Bear in mind that there is a 2½c per pound duty on all canned stuff and RECIPROCITY or no RECIPROCITY that will stand.

• • • •

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

• • • •

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners Ltd., from doing the same.

• • • •

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—site of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

• • • •

Now, then, be up and thinking.

• • • •

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

• • • •

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

• • • •

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

• • • •

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

• • • •

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

• • • •

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when opportunities like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

• • • •

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalized at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

• • • •

This is a gilt-edge home fdn. conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

• • • •

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

BRINGING SACCHARRISSA TO REASON.

By Mary Matheson.

"What on earth does the girl want, do you suppose?" grumbled Saccharrissa's father. "Londale's a decent chap as you'll find in a day's march, straight and well groomed, an'—an' all that, with a good income of his own, too. What does she expect?"

He glared indignantly at Saccharrissa's mother.

"She says she doesn't love him," said that lady placidly.

"Love! Bosh! Childish nonsense! Well, of course, I don't mean that exactly"—he had the grace to blush a little as he caught sight of his wife's face. Then he laughed rather consciously, as he bent forward and patted her hand, a hand as pretty and as white as Saccharrissa's own.

"I was six months younger when you persuaded me to marry you—without bridesmaids or anything," began his wife, and I chuckled to myself, for their runaway marriage had been the romance of the neighborhood in my early boyhood, and the glamour of it seemed to cling to them even yet.

"No," he asked in evident surprise, "were you really?"

"Do you mean," I struck in incredulously, "that you were six months younger than Saccharrissa is now when you ran away?"

"Shut up, Jim," said Sinnett, eyeing his wife's blushes with tender amusement. "You don't understand. She had an old tormagant of a father who wanted her to marry—"

"A very decent fellow with an income of his own, too," interrupted Mrs. Sinnett, with dignity.

"Quite so, only you preferred me."

"But six months younger than Saccharrissa?" I interrupted their reminiscences ruthlessly.

And they disappeared by one door as Saccharissa entered by another.

She stopped when she saw me, with a blush. Then she came forward with a saucy smile.

"Where's my marble-hearted parent gone?" she demanded, with a giggle.

"Don't be ridiculous, Saccharrissa," I answered sternly. "You know very well that your father only desires that you be happy, and—and all that. Marble-hearted, indeed. He's much too soft, I think—"

"Oh, oh!" in a would-be shocked voice. "I'll tell him you said so. To his own daughter, too. I'm surprised at you, Jim."

"Go on," she said. "Get it over. They're told you to give me a talking to, I know."

"Saccharrissa," I said impressively, "I want to bring you to reason. But I can't," I went on desperately, "while you sit looking at me like that."

"Then I'll get down," she responded amiably enough, as she did off the table and stood a little way off facing me. "Now, what is it you want to say?"

"What's — what's the matter with Londale?" I blurted out as awkwardly as any schoolboy, "that you can't—"

"Mr. Londale? Nothing that I know of. He was as right as a ninepiece when he left me just now," with the air of innocent surprise. "What should be the matter with him?"

"You know very well what I mean," I stammered miserably. "Why won't you—your father has asked me—don't you think—"

"I think," said Saccharrissa with most disconcerting dignity, "that my friendship with Mr. Londale is no business of yours, Mr. Fenton."

"I knew I should put my foot into it," I groaned dismally. "Only look here, girlie, I have known you since you were a baby almost, and—and I'm sure you'll believe that I am anxious for you to be happy and prosperous as if I were a relation—your uncle, say—"

"Why not say grandfather?" interrupted Saccharissa. "You are quite twelve years older than I am, I am sure."

"Never mind that. It isn't a matter of years. I've had centuries more experience, and you can take it from me that exceptionally good fellows like Londale are scarce. He's rich, you know, and—and your father and mother—"

Oh, why had I been such a fool as to undertake such a job of this kind? It was getting dusk, but I could see that her face had gone quite white.

"I had a letter from a man yesterday telling me what a good turn Londale had done him. I'll show it to you, shall I? It's a regular testimonial in its way.

I took it out of my pocket-book and turned over the contents hastily. My hands were shaking absurdly, and before I knew it the book had slipped to the floor and the contents were scattered in all directions.

There was a folded packet in that book that I valued more than anything else in the world.

"Have you got them all?" she asked presently, in tones of icy politeness.

"I'm afraid not," I answered, turning the papers this way and that on the floor. "There was a little folded packet—of no value to anyone but the owner." I laughed nervously. "It seems to have disappeared. Can you see it? You know what a short-sighted bat I am."

"I do," she said, meaningly.

Then she stooped and picked up something that was lying near her feet. It had fallen open, I could see.

She bent and looked at it, and there fell a silence that seemed to me to last for a hundred years.

At last Saccharrissa turned, and said with sobbing intake of breath:

"Why—why don't you speak for yourself, Tim?"

After a minute's hard battling with my conscience, I held out my arms hungrily.

"You deserve to be shaken instead of kissed," she said.

But the words were muffled from the fact that I was holding the dear head so close to my heart, I suppose.

"Pretending you wanted me to marry Londale, indeed."

"I didn't. I didn't I should have drowned myself if you had. But how could I dream you'd care for me? I'm so much older and I haven't half his money." I answered in the delicious delirium that comes only once in a lifetime. "Tell me, darling," I said presently, "how did you guess so quickly from that?"

For "that" was just a plain piece of paper, containing the words, "Burnley Woods, June 18th," and a tiny piece of heatherbloom with the "Because"—"because—well, look at this."

There was a little tug at a gold chain around her neck, and a silken bag was brought to view, warm and fragrant.

She opened it and showed me a folded piece of paper. 'Burnley Woods, June 18th. He loves me," were the words it contained, and a tiny sprig of withered heather.

Of course, we had exchanged the little tokens, I knew; but it had been done laughingly and carelessly on her part, "for luck," and I had deemed it lost long ago.

"Well, Fenton, what luck have you had?" said Saccharrissa's marble-hearted parent from behind us.

"A million times better than I expected," I answered. But I'm afraid you won't think I've brought her to reason, sir. I've only—"

"Brought her to happiness," answered Saccharrissa.

"And that's the best thing in the world," said her mother, folding her in her arms, and looking at me with shining eyes over her daughter's head.

TENT CATERPILLARS.

One often finds in May or June, on the limbs of apple and wild cherry trees, compact, silken nests, or tents containing a large number of handsome caterpillars. These are the insects which have been known for many years as tent caterpillars.

The eggs are deposited during July in compact masses around the twigs. After they are laid the parent moth secretes a viscid liquid which hardens over the eggs as a protection. The insects remain in this state until the following spring, when they hatch into young caterpillars.

These insects feed on the foliage for about six weeks, until they become fully developed, when they leave the tree and seek some place to pupate in. Two or three weeks later the moths appear, and in a short time deposit the eggs, after which they soon die. Thus there is but one brood each season.

POOR MEN'S LIVES.

(By E. W. Purdon.)

"He was very kind to me once, the old judge," said the guard. "He jumped into my van one afternoon just as the train was moving out. He says to me, 'Dull weather, guard.' 'Dull times all round, sir,' I says. My little girl was lying dead in the house at the time, and I was rather fed up with one thing and another.

"I don't know how it come about, but it finished up with my telling him all about it. Believe it or not"—in the sweep of his eye the guard included me—"that man spoke to me as kind as if he had known me all my life. I had never seen him but once before, and then he was in his wig and gown in court.

"One thing I remember. 'Ah!' he says, when I told him about my little girl—she was only four—'You've got others,' he says. 'I had only one, and she's gone.' When I see the news in the paper this morning I says to my wife, 'Mother,' I says, 'a friend of ours is dead.' " The guard raised his chin and showed a black tie. "That's why I'm wearing a bit of black," he explained.

"It was his losing his own girl, Bill, that made him understanding how you was feeling," said the driver. "I had a lad of my own once——" The driver stopped short.

"There isn't any doubt about it," went on the guard, after a thoughtful glance at the last speaker; "children do kind o' soften a man; do him good all round, in a manner of speaking."

"They're like a good many other things," said the driver, "they're all right when they are all right. Take George, my fireman; he's 'ad five. The eldest boy is doing well—talks of coming home for a holiday in the ARMY—reckons he'll be sergeant before the year's out. The eldest girl's at the dressmaking. None of 'em have ever given him any particular trouble that I know of. But it ain't always like that. Look at poor old Mark Bone, the night watchman."

"Ay, that's a case—you're right," interjected the guard. "Has he heard anything about his daughter?"

"I don't suppose he have," the driver replied, "though I haven't mentioned it lately. The last time I asked him he says to me, 'George, don't speak about it. We don't even speak about it at home. We can't be says."

"What's his boy doing now?" spoke the tapper for the first time.

"The one as lost his leg on the line?" (The tapper nodded gravely.) "Last time I see him he was helping old Ogilvy on his coal round. He was a bright lad, that. Mark's a changed man."

"Ay, he's been through it, Mark has," said the tapper. He turned his glance once more to the floor. "It's mostly always the same," he went on. "The man as has children has trouble with 'em, and the man without 'em makes trouble because he ain't got 'em."

"I caught his eye. "Any yourself, Tapper?" I asked.

"Not me," he replied; and turned away. Childhood evidently had no particular appeal for the tapper.

The train was already in the long tunnel beyond Meltham. The full churn of milk rattled and banged, and the damp underground air rushed in unpleasantly through the perforated sides of the van. Then, with a long shriek, the engine emerged and slowed down as it neared the village. The guard pulled a handful of waybills from his pocket and began to check the labels on the great cans. The driver, who lives in the village, was preparing to get down. The tapper turned to me, and dropped his voice.

"I don't know as I might not have been married," he said gruffly. "There was a young woman. . . .We'd sort of made up our minds, really."

"But you changed them again, Tapper?" I said.

"Well, not exactly that," he replied.

He pulled himself upright from the wall of the van, and drew his shoulders together uneasily. Then, with his face hard set and looking steadily before him, he added, in a voice that was made to seem casual: "The young woman I was speaking about died." He sighed at the end, and, as we slowed down into the junction, took up his greasy leather bag. "Perhaps, after all, I am better off 'n I am," he said.

"I have seen many players hit on
The fly has a thousand eyes
And many a limb;
That's why you must be quick
To slaughter him.

The first aeroplane death occurred in 1908 when Lieut. Selfridge was killed while flying with Orville Wright.

70 Years Old

GRATEFUL FOR MEDICAL AID.

"Though I had passed by seventieth birthday," writes R. A. Silvera from Duncan P.O., "I am painfully aware that one of the penalties of old age is the slowing down of the activities of the system. One of the most dangerous conditions of old age is constipation, an indirect cause of many sudden deaths. I have used many medicines, but none so suited to old age as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are wonderful regulators—keep the stomach and bowels in perfect condition, prevent indigestion, biliousness, liver complaint and constipation. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills because they never gripe nor cause distress—just a mild tonic laxative."

By using Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly you have a guarantee of good health. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Option Secured on Minden Power.

Lindsay Warder: At a meeting of the Town Council held last night a letter was read from the town solicitors to the effect that they had secured an option on the Minden power. The town could by the power at $12,000, less than 10 per cent. If taken up in three months. The option is good until December 1, 1911, and if not taken up at that date an extension can be made at a cost of $200.

The Minden option covers 100 acres, on which are located four houses, two barns, flour mill with a capacity of 50 barrels per day, and a saw mill, which is in operation daily.

Got a Ducking.

A young man, who belongs to Toronto, and who frequently visits Peterborough to see his lady love, came down on Tuesday, and in order to more fully enjoy her society, he took her for a canoe trip down the river. The big rain storm came on, and he gallantly gave up his waterproof coat to his sweetheart. The result was that he got a soaking. Unfortunately, he did not have a change of clothes, but a friend who happened to be staying at the National Hotel, when he arrived there loaned him a suit. The friend was a trifle stout, while the victim of the storm was lean and long. His legs and his arms projected several inches too far, but it was better than going to bed while the drying process was on. A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of every ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Yesterday morning at ten o'clock, a very pretty church wedding was solemnized at All Saints' church, when Mr. Geo. W. Q. Munn, of Montreal, led to the altar Miss Mabel Gertrude Dechrill, who resides at 141 Rubidge street.

Mr. and Mrs. Munn left on the morning train for Niagara and other points. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Woodbridge—Edwards.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday at St. John's church, when the Rev. Canon Davidson united in marriage Miss Mary Gwendoline Edwards, second oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards, late of Stourport, England, and Mr. Percival P. Woodbridge, late of St. Leonard, England. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Miles, an esteemed friend of the family, was charmingly attired in cream silk, trimmed with lace, and with veil to match. She carried a bouquet of orange blossoms.

A sister of the bride, Miss Phyllis Edwards, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a dress of pink silk, with a cream lace hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Arthur Rogers acted as best man.

After the ceremony at the church, the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, 64 Hunter street, where adainty wedding dejeuner was served.

The wedding presents were numerous and costly. The groom's gift to the bride being a sterling silver toilet set and to the bridesmaid a handsome set of side-combs, while the bride's gift to the groom was a beautiful signet ring.

The happy couple left on the 4.28 train, via C.P.R., for Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other points, after which they will proceed to Calgary, where they will reside.

The bride wore a travelling costume of navy blue with hat to match.

Among the out-of-town guests was Miss Florence Reynolds of Norwood, and others.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. Wilson.

There passed away yesterday morning at Nicholls Hospital a highly esteemed citizen, in the person of Mrs. William Wilson, after a brief illness. The deceased was the fifth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thorne, of Cavan Township, and was born in 1869. In 1890 she was married to Mr. William Wilson, also of Cavan. Shortly after their marriage they took up their residence in Peterborough, where they made many friends.

The late Mrs. Wilson was a member of All Saints' church, and always took an interest in church work and was an active member of the Women's Auxiliary, of which she was secretary for many years. Latterly she attended St. John's church having removed to the northern part of the city. Her many estimable qualities and her kind and lovable disposition made for her many friends throughout the city.

Those left to mourn her demise besides her husband are three brothers, Thomas and George, of Cavan, and John of Lindsay; five sisters, Mrs. J. Nesbitt, Alameda, Sask.; Mrs. J. Heaslip, Port Hope; Mrs. H. Gardiner, Sutherland, Sask.; Mrs. Leonard Westwood, Toronto.

BAPTIST CHURCH CORNER STONE LAID TODAY

Rev. Dr. John Clifford, M.A., LL.D., D.D., of London, England, will lay the corner stone of the new Baptist church this afternoon.

Dr. Clifford is, without exception, the most conspicuous figure in the Baptist Ministry of the world. For many years he has been Minister of Westbourne Baptist church, which is the leading church of this denomination in the City of London. Although he has ministered to this great congregation each Sunday, his work has been by no means limited to the work of the pastorate. He has been the leader of the passive resistance movement in England, and a staunch advocate of the complete separation of Church and State, an orator of marvellous ability, a man of unique scholarship, and, as the British Weekly has recently said: "The man of all men in England most beloved by his friends, and most feared by his enemies." He is, perhaps, the closest friend of Hon. Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the British Exchequer.

In the evening the public of Peterborough will have the pleasure of hearing Dr. Clifford deliver an address on "Social Evolution in Britain." There will be no charge for admission, the public being cordially invited to be present.

HE KEPT ON WALKING.

Twenty Years Ago a Young Man Left Home and Returned There Last Night.

Newburgh, N.Y., June 28.—Hiram Davis of this city went for a walk with his father eight years ago. The father stopped to talk to friends and Hiram, then about twenty years old walked on. He was never seen after that until he walked into his parent's home last night.

The police all over the state were on the lookout for him, the Hudson River was searched, and finally he was given up as dead. When he greeted his mother last night it was some hours before she could be calmed. Davis has been out west.

Reciprocity Drama in the U.S. Senate.

Washington, June 28.—Referring to the consideration of the Canadian reciprocity question as the "Drama now in progress in the Senate of the United States," Senator Cummins, of Iowa, to-day delivered a speech on the reciprocity bill, and offered important amendments to its agricultural provisions.

A PITBOSS CASE.

Mother Threatens to End Life By Taking Laudanum.

Mr. and Mrs. Londsberry, who live about three miles from Norwood, were up before Magistrate Edmison in the County Police Court yesterday, charged with neglecting their children. The mother was taken to the County jail and the children were provided with atemporary home at the children's shelter.

It is said that the mother regards the children as encumbrances, and treats them cruelly. The husband is unable to live with her on account of her unhappy disposition. On one occasion she admitted having bought a bottle of laudanum and threatened to end her life, if her husband would not give her $2. To save her the husband gave her the money, taking the precaution immediately, however, of destroying the bottle of poison. The children are aged 3, 5 and 8 years old.

The mother will be examined as to her sanity.

FARM AND FIELD

CANADIAN CHEESE IN ENGLAND.

Stocks Low But Good Outlook for Coming Season.

It is reported on the London market that there is a satisfactory outlook for Canadian cheese for the coming season. Advices received by the British shippers indicate that the cows have wintered well, being in an improved condition compared with last spring. Hardly sufficient cheese remained to supply local requirements in the Dominion, and new fodder may be utilized to supply the deficiency. Fair quantities of Canadian fodder make are expected to arrive in Britain in the latter half of May and in June. The bacon trade has not been quite as encouraging as the cheese department, so far as prices go. Lately values have been on the down grade, whilst it has been difficult to make a clearance, even at lower prices. The prices have proved unremunerative to the importers owing to the heavy cost of raw material. For some time the retailers have been making but little profit, and there is a great reluctance to indulge in extensive speculations. More bacon is on the market at present than can be easily disposed of. So far the arrivals from Canada, Russia, and Denmark have been heavier than was the case last year. Bacon is also plentiful in the United States but this is chiefly of heavy weights, unsuitable for the British markets. There should be an improved demand later on, when London is full of visitors for the June Coronation festivities.

Stock of Cheese.

The stock of Canadian cheese in London recently was larger than was the case at the corresponding period last year, but there is now a decrease; there is a scarcity of September make and under-priced kinds. The output of cheese in New Zealand this season has been interrupted, owing to the adverse weather conditions; the consignments received on this side were fully seven per cent below the previous season's shipments. This may be an important factor in influencing the trend of prices realized for the Canadian and other importations. This year has seen an increase in the quantity of cheese imported from the United States.

THE BOY ON THE FARM.

Kindness Does More Than Harshness for Future Farmer.

There is the making of a good man in the boy on the farm, but he can be irretrievably spoiled in the making, if too much is put upon him; if his shoulders are loaded with blame for everything that goes wrong indoors and out; if everybody feels privileged to give him orders, and if he is regarded as a mere machine without muscles to tire, sensibilities to wound, intellect to stimulate, or a soul to inspire with longings for better things. Those into whose hands are committed these youths ordained to eat their bread in the sweat of their faces, have a responsibility above that of merely providing food, shelter and clothing. An employer may be harboring an angel unawares, and whether this be true or not, there is laid upon him the duty of dealing justly and conscientiously with the lad.

A VALUABLE APPLE TREE.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Offered for One Tree.

Thirty thousand dollars was the sum recently offered an eastern Washington nursery company for an apple tree located near Lake Chelan. The proffer was made by a syndicate which desired to propogate the tree. It was turned down by the nursery company, which will develop the fruit itself.

The tree is twenty years old and is called the Chelan. The fruit is golden yellow and is said to be different from that of any other apple grown in Washington. It is also said to possess exceptional keeping qualities, a box having been kept in storage in Spokane for two years without any marked deterioration.

Twenty years ago, the story runs, an Indian planted a handful of apple seeds, three of which grew. The fruit of only one of the trees was good for anything. The tree is now of great size and a profitable bearer. Last year at the national apple show at Spokane fruit from the tree took first prize for new varieties of apples.

REPORT ON LIVE STOCK.

A bulletin of the Census Office, Ottawa, issued May 16, makes the following report on live stock of Canada:

The report on the condition of live stock is good for all the provinces, being 96 for horses, 92.42 for milch cows, 90.56 for other cattle, 90.53 for sheep and 94.51 for swine. Alberta is below 90 for horses; Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for milch cows; Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia for other cattle, and Alberta and British Columbia for sheep; but generally the condition ranges about 90 per cent.

WORMS IN CHICKS.

Small worms sometimes lodge in the windpipes of chicks, making them gape and in time chokes them to death. One of the best ways to treat gapeworms is to place the chicks in a box covered over with cheesecloth and dust air-slaked lime through to make the chicks sneeze, and thus expel the worms. Don't overdo this. A good way to prevent gapeworms is to sprinkle air-slaked lime in house and run.

RECORD FOR NEW YORK.

New York, June 28.—The largest number of Italian passengers that ever left this port on a single ship boarded the White Star Liner Olympic today to sail for England. The Olympic, the largest steamship afloat, starts the second half of her maiden trip with 2,205 persons in her three cabins, besides 60 maids and valets. The cost of sailing her from Southampton and back is $175,000 and the return from passenger fares will amount to $320,000. During the steamer's stay here more than 12,000 persons paid 10 cents each to inspect her. The money went to the Seamen's Orphan Fund.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents . . . . . .

A GREAT MISTAKE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I cannot imagine what the members of the Council were thinking about when they passed the by-law which received their assent on Tuesday night, regarding the Fire Department. How intelligent men should lose sight of the fact that in depriving the Fire Chief of power to engage and dismiss his men, they are practically putting an end to all discipline in the Department. Not only is this the effect of the by-law, but it is practically a vote of want of confidence in Chief Howard, who is without doubt one of the most capable firemen in the Province. Let me say to the members of the Council that the ratepayers do not approve of this action in compelling the Fire Chief to consult the members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee when he finds it necessary to discharge of a member of the force.

As I understand the by-law a member of the force might refuse to turn out to a fire, for instance, and all Chief Howard could do would be to report him to the Fire, Water and Light Committee at the next ensuing meeting. And then the word of the fireman might be taken in preference to that of the Chief!

I trust the Council will see the matter in its proper light, and repeal the by-law without delay.

Ajax.

THE LIBRARY LAWN.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would call the attention of the authorities to the disgraceful condition of the Public Library lawn. Whoever undertook to make the lawn certainly did a job that he might well be ashamed of. Instead of being a beauty spot, the grounds around the building are an eyesore.

I trust the Library Board will at once have the matter attended to and the grass made to grow.

BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It is good to see that Peterborough has so many smart young lads as are seen in the ranks of the Scouts. Many people do not understand the Scout principles and are therefore inclined to laugh at the Scout movement. They cannot afford to do this. For should that person be called upon to do the same as the Boy Scouts, although he may be a lot older, the chances are he could not do it. In fact, the other night a man took the Union Jack for the Salvation Army flag. I do not wish to throw any slur on the Salvation Army, far from it, but these people who could not stand at attention if their country needed them, are the ones who will laugh and jest at our expense when they see a Scout in uniform. A Scout is taught many useful things such as First Aid, Compass, looking, tracking, observation, swimming, signalling, tying of many useful knots, etc. And above all things obedience. When a Scout leaves the ranks, he is qualified to fill a good position as a volunteer.

Peterborough is not far behind in the Scout movement, in fact is catching up fast. The boys one and all looking forward to summer holidays now, when they can get out to the woods. The 3rd Troop are looking forward at present to the two weeks they intend to spend in camp. Arrangements are being made for everything. The boys are saving for it. And they are giving their Scout Master and Committee quite a lot of encouragement by their energies. Lovell Clark, a patrol leader in the 3rd Troop, is the first Peterborough Scout to win any proficiency badges, while in Cecil Richardson, adjutant of the 5th Troop, he has a good second. Others have tried and passed. So everything is progressing favorably. Many think that scouting is just soldiering on a small scale, but this is a mistake. While Scouts are taught how to drill, they just get enough to make it easy for their Scout Master to manoeuver them in troop form. Drilling is not the most essentiate part. So that if instead of these people who are inclined to laugh at the Scout, trying to discourage them, they should be helping along a good cause. If any other Scout has anything to add to this column it will be all the better.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have been presenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties.

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal." Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

VOL XXXIV NO. 25 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY JUNE 30 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

CORNER STONE OF NEW MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH LAID YESTERDAY

CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED BY REV. DR. CLIFFORD, OF LONDON, ENG.

Many Distinguished Visitors Were Present for the Occasion—Historical Sketch of the Congregation.

When Dr. John Clifford of London, England, yesterday pronounced the corner stone of the new Murray St. Baptist Church well and truly laid, another step was made in the rapid advance in church affairs, that has characterized Peterborough in the past few years. Within a very short time no less than six new churches have been completed, the corner stone of the seventh was laid to-day, and the eighth, the new Charlotte Street Methodist Church, now in course of construction, will be before long. The last couple of years has seen the erection of the Sacred Heart Church, St. James' Methodist Church, the new Park Street Baptist Church, a new edifice for Knox Church congregation, the new All Saints' Church and the Free Methodist Church on Aylmer street. Such a growth, among the churches, is gratifying indeed, and reflects most favourably upon the spirit of the community.

To-day's ceremony was a most successful event. Favoured by delightful weather, bright and sunshiny, yet with a fresh breeze to temper the ardent rays of the summer sun, no better conditions could have been hoped for. A very large gathering showed their interest in the career of the Murray St. Church by attending. The event was featured by the presence of Dr. Clifford, the eminent English Non-Conformist minister, and of a party of distinguished Baptists from Toronto, who accompanied Dr. Clifford to Peterborough, for the occasion. On the platform were the clergy of the city, and many other prominent local citizens and visitors.

The service was opened with Scripture reading by Rev. Thos. Trotter, D.D., a former pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church, followed by prayer, by Rev. Dr. Thomas of Toronto.

Historical Sketch.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood then read the following interesting historical sketch of the Church:

The earliest reference available in connection with the founding of what is now termed the Murray Street Baptist Church, is contained in a document, promising to supply material towards the construction of a place of worship, and is dated Jan. 6th, 1843, and was for the amount of £3. It would therefore appear, according to this, that there had been for some years, a small community of Baptists resident in the Town of Peterborough, and that about the time referred to, concerted action had been taken to provide a suitable place of worship. Towards the end of that year sufficient funds and material had been secured, and on Jan. 2nd, 1845, arrangements were definitely completed for the erection of a building during the ensuing year. The specification was drawn up, a copy of which is hereto attached, and in due course contracts were awarded. As a matter of interest, the following is a partial list of the different trades:: Mogg & Curran, brickmakers; P. Kingsey, bricklaying; John Heard, plastering; John Taylor, carpentering, and the Rev. John Gilmour, in person, painted the building. The Rev. John Gilmour was the donor of the site, and as described in the original deed, from him to the first trustees, as "part of town lot No. 7, North of Simcoe street, and west of George street, in the said Town of Peterborough, and commencing at the north west corner of said Lot No. 7, then running south along Aylmer street, 55 feet, then running north along the said limit 55 feet to the north east corner of the said Lot, then west to the place of beginning, together with all and singular the chapel, outhouses, buildings, etc.

The first trustees were John Walker Gilmour, chemist; John Walton, farmer; James Edwards, merchant; Thomas Graham, farmer; Duncan

RECORD YEAR FOR IMMIGRANTS

Value of Effects Brought Exceeded Fourteen Million.

Ottawa, June 29.—(Special).—Last year was not only a record in number of immigrants but also as to the value of the effects they brought in. The total reached $14,072,611, or four million dollars over the previous year.

TWO LONE BANDITS HELD UP TRAIN AND STOLE THE MAILS

Glendale, Ore., June 29.—Apparently mistaking the first section of northbound passenger train No. 16 on the Southern Pacific Railroad for a southbound train said to be carrying a shipment of $400,000 in gold dust from Seattle to San Francisco, two robbers held up the northbound train last night near West Fork, an isolated station in Cow Creek Canyon.

The robbers rifled the mail car, blowing up the safe, and made away with the registered mail. They tried to secure entrance to the express car, but were foiled by messenger Robb, who refused to open the door, despite threats that they would use dynamite if he hesitated.

The robbers, after fruitlessly prying with a crowbar at the side door of the car, finally desisted and decamped with the loot secured from the mail car. The amount taken by the robbers cannot be ascertained at this time. This train carries in its registered mail the cash from Southern Oregon post offices to Eugene, Ore., which is the depository, and this was probably included in the mail stolen.

The robbers boarded the train at West Fork, while the engine was taking water. Soon after it had got under way they crawled over the tender into the cab, and directed the engineer to stop the train. This done, one of the men kept the engineer under cover of his revolvers, while the other went back and uncoupled the mail, baggage, and express cars. Then the engineer was ordered to pull these cars some distance up the track, where he was again ordered to stop. The robbers went back to the mail car, and lining the mail clerks up took the registered mail pouches and dynamited the mail car safe. The noise of the explosion warned Express Messenger Robb of what was taking place, and when it was time for him to open his door he made no response.

The conductor of the train as soon as he discovered what had taken place, went back to West Fork, where he notified Glendale and surrounding points. Posses have been organized to pursue the robbers.

EVELYN TELLSON MISS GERRARD

Says She is the Woman Who Was in Paris With Edward Thomas.

New York, June 29.—Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, found in her apartments in a secluded neighborhood on the upper west side last night, was asked how she happened to have been identified as the woman to whom Edward R. Thomas was said to have been attentive in Paris, just prior to Mrs. Thomas' decision to bring an action for divorce.

"I will be very glad to talk on conditions that my address is not revealed," Mrs. Thaw began. "I do not want the public to know where I live.

"Well, the woman to whom Mr. Thomas was attentive is Theodora Gerard, the former show girl. Miss Gerard is beautiful and very attractive.

POSED AS EVELYN THAW.

"For years she has taken delight in telling people who do not know her that she was Evelyn Thaw. In September, 1910, she went to Reno, Nev., and on the same train let it be known she was Evelyn Thaw. What was the consequence? Newspapers all over the country said I was in Reno seeking a divorce.

"I have known her to do this on many occasions; she seems to think it a joke, I suppose she did not realize it was tremendously hard on me.

"I have heard it said many times that Miss Gerard and I are much alike and often I have been taken for her.

"There is no question that the woman with whom Mr. Thomas was seen so often in Paris is Miss Gerard. I have never seen Mr. Thomas abroad. The last time I was in Paris was in 1904, when I was there with Harry Thaw.

KNICKERBOCKER AFFAIR.

"I might as well tell you my relation with Mr. Thomas now. I know him very well, but I have never been with him that there were not others in the party. The Knickerbocker Hotel affair was most unveiled for.

"I had been invited to a dinner to be given by a man whose name must not be mentioned. On the afternoon of the dinner, a relative of the man fell down the stairs and was killed, and Mr. Thomas was asked to be host. He gave the dinner to quite a number of us and later Mr. Thomas [illegible] and I went to the [illegible] dining room.

"The next morning I did not [illegible] had been ordered out of [illegible] town by Manager Regan. Then I saw it in the papers.

"I know that Mr. Thomas and Miss Gerard have been friends for a long time. He entertained her lavishly, as he always did every one. I do not believe he would sanction Miss Gerard's representing herself as Evelyn Thaw."

TROUBLE WITH PLAYWRIGHT.

Miss Gerard is known to intimate friends as "Teddy" Gerard. More than a year ago she caused the arrest of George Bronson Howard, the playwright, charging him with threatening her with a revolver, following a row they had over a diamond ring. Miss Gerard is the wife of Joseph Raymond.

Since she went to Paris she has become very popular. She appeared first as a madcap dancer, giving her own version of the Vampire dance.

Miss Gerard's apartments in Paris are described as being as costly as those of any American actress in Europe.

NOMINATION OF MR. KERR WAS FAIR AND ABOVE BOARD

In view of the rumors in circulation in regard to the Liberal Convention which took place on Tuesday last, in Norwood, when Mr. F. D. Kerr received the nomination as candidate for the House of Commons, The Times interviewed that gentleman, and inquired if there was any likelihood of the nomination being reconsidered on the grounds of dissatisfaction over the method adopted of voting.

Mr. Kerr said that there was not the slightest reason for the suggestion. That the selection of Candidates was fair and above board, and that from all parts of the riding he was in receipt of enthusiastic promises of support.

"May we publish what you say?"

"Most assuredly," said Mr. Kerr, "and you may say that, having been honored with the nomination, I am in the field to stay, and that I have every reason to believe that the riding will be redeemed."

WOMAN SHOT MAN, ANOTHER CONVICTED

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS,
Chairman of the Building Committee of the Murray Street Baptist Church.

MRS. HODGE ADMITS DOING THE SHOOTING WHICH RESULTED IN A MURDER VERDICT.

Andrew is Innocent—She Says Automatic Pistol Went Off, and She Let it Go as Suicide.

Philadelphia, June 29.—Accused of killing Emil Amann at Warren, Pen., on January 27 last, Mrs. Stella Hodge, 35 years old, of that place, is being held at police headquarters here pending action by the Warren authorities.

The sensational feature of the arrest lies in the fact that John Andrews, formerly superintendent of the Warren Waterworks Company, was only a few days ago convicted of murdering Amann despite the vigorous protestations of innocence of the crime.

H. J. Silcox, a Philadelphia detective, testified at the woman's hearing to-day that he had been employed by Andrews' counsel along with a private detective agency to look up the woman.

Silcox said the woman told him that on the night of the killing she made an appointment with Amann to go riding. It was raining, and he was compelled to go to the reservoir where he was employed to look things over. They drove into a pasture near the reservoir and Amann left her and started to walk up the reservoir hill. Then the woman called him back, as she was afraid to be alone in the dark and asked him if he had a revolver. Amann handed her an automatic pistol and went away to attend to his duties. When he returned to the carriage the horse became frightened and Amann grabbed for the bridle and at the same time the woman grabbed the reins. At this moment the automatic pistol she was holding began to discharge. Amann fell and she climbed out of the carriage and ran to his side. Finding him apparently dead, she placed the pistol beside the body. Next she unhitched the horse and let it run loose. Then she ran to her home.

The next morning, finding that everyone believed it was a case of suicide, she decided to remain quiet.

When Andrews was convicted last week her conscience began to trouble her, and it was then an easy matter for the detectives to worm her dreadful secret from her.

Andrews was under police surveillance for six weeks before he was arrested. He testified at the coroner's inquest that Amann had asked him to go to the reservoir, but that he had declined to do so. The revolver was identified as one similar to that owned by Andrews.

STOLE LOAVES SENT TO KING

Saskatchewan Cheated Out of Good "Ad."—Basket Arrived Safely.

London, June 29.—The bread-making virtues of Saskatchewan, Canada's great wheat country, will have to be taken for granted by King George. The twelve pound silver bread basket, filled with the finest product of Saskatchewan's ovens, and sent as a Coronation present to the King has arrived—minus the loaves. Some one swiped the bread, and detectives are now working on the mystery.

This Move Supports Rumor That He is to Succeed Lord Strathcona.

Winnipeg, June 29.—The persistent rumor that Sir Wm. Whyte, vice-president of the C.P.R., is to succeed Lord Strathcona as Canadian Commissioner was given the status of probability to-day when the statement was made that Sir William leaves on July 1st for London for an indefinite period.

HOME BANK OF CANADA ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The president and directors, as well as the shareholders, of the Home Bank of Canada are to be congratulated on the result of the year's operations as set forth in the financial statement presented at the annual general meeting of the shareholders, held on Tuesday last, and which appears elsewhere in to-day's issue. Notwithstanding the averse circumstances which disturbed the financial world during the year, the Bank has made substantial progress. The list of shareholders have been rapidly growing until they have reached the number of 1626. The deposits have increased nearly $1,000,000, which is an evidence of the growing popularity of the institution, and the confidence it is enjoying. The Bank has now 33 branches located in points where good business is to be had, and where they are developing a large and satisfactory trade.

The Bank has several branches throughout this district, and it may not be long until a branch is opened in this city. When that time arrives we are sure the good reputation and splendid management which has been recorded throughout the country, will enable it to speedily develop a satisfactory business here.

FAMOUS BAPTIST DIVINE FILLS THE OPERA HOUSE

The address delivered by Rev. Dr. Clifford last night in the Opera House will long be remembered by the hundreds who heard it as one of the most powerful and eloquent ever given in Peterborough. The subject "Social Evolution in Britain," was his theme, and the way he handled it gave those present a fair conception of the progress that is being made for the betterment and uplift of mankind in the old land.

The chair was ably filled by Mayor Morrow, who introduced the distinguished visitor in a few well chosen words.

At the conclusion of Dr. Clifford's address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker. The meeting broke up after cheers for the King and Dr. Clifford.

MARK MANLEY IS STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Mark Manley, the victim of the assault case in Otonabee, is still in a very serious condition, and he may not recover. In the meantime, his assailant Alfred Cooney is confined in the County jail awaiting developments.

Yesterday the Times was called up by phone and was informed the injury done Mr. Manley was the result of an accident. The speaker who claimed to be a member of the Cooney family said that The Times was very wrong in stating what it did in regard to this matter.

Mr. H. Crane, of Otonabee, received the following unsigned post card through the mail:

If you push Alfred Cooney you and him will be burnt out as soon as your barn is full. So mind, Cooney has lots of friends. The same will happen Jack Dickson. So you know what to do. This is no joke,

Yours,
One of Cooney's Friends.

Mind Mark and you and Dickson will go in smoke.

WAS NOT BASE-BALL GAME

Logansport, Ind., June 29.—Called upon to punish Charles Seiler, manager of the Logansport team in the Northern Indiana League, Judge Gifford yesterday threw out of court the complaint of the Rev. E. C. Richardson, who alleged a baseball game had been played between the Logansport and Huntington teams nearer to his church on Sunday than the Indiana law permits. The court accepted the testimony of three witnesses that the exhibition was so bad it could not be considered a baseball game.

GAS DISTENDED HIS STOMACH

Caused Palpitation and Prevented Sleep. When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of "Nerviline."

"My last wish will be," writes Harry P. Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveller of Hartford, "that everyone with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong, and every night I would waken with a start and feel my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the travelling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

For general household use Nerviline has no equal; it will cure the aches and ailments of the entire family—refuse anything but Nerviline. 25c per bottle, five for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

TO DRAIN OR NOT TO DRAIN.

Prof. W. H. Day has recently been making some calculations on the financial side of drainage. A farmer has 50 acres that is rather wet but although not drained it gives say $15 per acre. The value of the crop for five years in succession, together with compound interest, would be $4144 at the end of the five years. If however he were to drain ten acres of the land each year, and if the drainage increased the value of the crop by $10 per acre (which is a low estimate), then the value of the crop for five years, with interest, would be $5749. After paying for the drainage, with interest, he would have left $4,124, the same within $20 as if he had not drained, but if he drained the whole 50 acres at once then the five crops, with interest would leave him a balance of $5121, which is $977 more than if he had not drained. During the next five-year period drainage by the instalment plan would net him $1604 more than not to drain at all, and the complete drainage would enrich him by $2764 more than no drainage.

The price allowed for drainage in the calculation was $26 per acre, and the increase in the crop was placed at $10 per acre. As a matter of fact the increase is usually worth much more than this, so that the computation is somewhat unfair to drainage, however, it is better to err on the safe side.

But the increase in crop is not the only return from drainage. The value of the land is largely increased. This is illustrated in the case of a certain farm in Lincoln County. It was bought for $6000 about two years ago. Last year $2000 was spent in draining it, and it has since been sold for $12 000.

The Department of Physics, O.A.C. over which Professor Day has charge has a large staff engaged in making drainage surveys for farmers wishing to drain, but they are kept very busy. Those who wish surveys made this fall should apply at once, as there are nearly as many applications in as can be attended to this season.

The terms on which surveys are made are explained in Bulletins 174 and 175, which may be had free from the Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

MONTREAL CHURCH FIRED BY LIGHTNING.

Completely Burned at a Loss of $200,000—Well Covered by Insurance.

Montreal, June 28.—Lightning last night struck the church of St. Jean Baptiste on Rachel street, and completely destroyed the splendid edifice at a loss of about $200,000.

This was the second time the church had been burned, but the present fire was much more disastrous, since after the fire in 1898 it had been rebuilt into one of the finest edifices in Montreal.

At midnight there was little but the walls and the tower left facing on Rachel street, which still stood although it was momentarily threatening to fall.

There was fortunately no loss of life in connection with the fire, which started about 9.30 o'clock, very shortly after a service had been held. The only person injured was Fireman Bourgoin, who was thrown from a ladder by a toppling wall and suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

While the losses are very heavy, they are well covered by insurance. It being stated that there was $175,000 insurance on the main building, spread over a number of companies, while the insurance on the organ amounted to $14,000. Oddly enough, the organ insurance had only been concluded at noon to-day, the organ having been only recently installed by the Casavant Company of St. Hyacinthe.

MURDERED BY TURKS.

Thousands Have Fled to Montenegro for Protection.

Vienna, June 26.—Reliable advices have been received here from Albania that the situation there is extremely critical. Turkey has massed 50,000 troops within a day's march of the Montenegrin frontier.

Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, who has just arrived at Vienna from Cettinje after traversing Albania, describes the conditions as absolutely intolerable. The Turks, he says, are devastating the whole districts, killing prisoners, refugee women and children, burning houses and crops and blowing up churches. A large body of Albanian women and children is now caught between two wings of the Turkish army, and escape is impossible.

Mr. Crane adds that 25,000 women and children have fled to Montenegro and are starving there, their only means of sustain means of subsistence being boiled grass and various roots they are able to gather.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING

MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,—is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt—would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the men of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest city in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

IS YOUR MONEY IDLE?

Dormant Wealth is useless. Gold hidden in the corner cupboard is WASTING ITS TIME, just as surely as the sluggard is wasting his life. In these strenuous days of commercial activity every dollar should be made to work. ARE YOUR DOLLARS WORKING ALL THE TIME?

Of course YOU have no lazy money. But have you a bank balance that is just vegetating, making a paltry three cents interest on the dollar once in twelve months, three dollars on the hundred, thirty on the thousand?

Don't let your money ape the sluggard. Make it WORK. Opportunity is knocking at your door right now, and I am guiding Opportunity. It is worth your while reading this advertisement carefully. You cannot lose by it; you stand to gain a just deal.

Fruit Farms in British Columbia are my specialty. I have devoted many years to a close study of the soil and the climatic conditions of the Fraser River Valley. I will not handle property that is not ABSOLUTELY A. 1., no matter what the inducement may be. When you deal with W. J. KERR, LTD., you deal with a reliable firm.

If you have never been to British Columbia, you can have but a slight idea of the wonderful and steady increase in land values. The price of yesterday is doubled to-day, to-day's price will quadrupted to-morrow, for the upward movement has only just commenced. The wealth of a province is behind this steady movement.

Six years ago I sold land on the Westminster-Vancouver electric car line for $100 per acre. To-day it sells for from $2000 to $6000 an acre.

Two years ago I sold land in Peachgrove for $100 an acre. You could not buy that same land to-day for less than $2000 per acre.

I have just picked these two instances at random, but they will suffice to show you the enormous increase in values in the past. THE PROFITS OF THE PAST WILL NOT BE A CIRCUMSTANCE TO THE PROFITS OF THE FUTURE. Do you wish to share in these profits? Of course you do.

Investment in good real estate is as safe as a deposit in the Bank of England. There is no better real estate than in the Fraser River Valley.

I have the biggest list of properties in this district, and the prices at which I offer these is always a little lower than the other fellow. That is how I gained my reputation.

I am now placing a Fruit Land Subdivision on the market. This is parcelled into five-acre tracts, close to two railway lines and with splendid roads leading to the property. The Water Supply gushes up in a never-lessening stream from a well 320 feet deep, and can be piped to every house in the subdivision.

This Fruit Land is only a few miles from the city of Westminster, which boasts the greatest farmers' market in Western Canada. Here all products of the soil command a quick and remunerative sale. There is no over-supply; the coast cities are growing fast and consume a great deal more than the surrounding country now produces.

The figure at which I am placing this on the market will increase tremendously in the next few years, and in the meantime the land will pay for itself over and over again with the bumper crops it will produce. Let me send you full details of this remarkable offer. Drop me a line to-day—right now while the matter is fresh in your mind.

Young Buffalo Bill Show.

The management of the Young Buffalo Bill Wild West Show, which comes to this city for an afternoon and night engagement, Saturday, July 8th, claims to have a surprise in store for the amusement lovers. They claim upwards of 700 cowboys, cowgirls, Cingalese, Mexican rurallies and lariat throwers, Russian Cossacks, N.W. Canadian Mounted Police U. S. Cavalryman, and rough riders from all quarters of the globe. They further state that 300 mustangs, bronchos, and Indian cow ponies is the sum total of horse flesh with the aggregation. Among the stars of the arenic world are with the show is Annie Oakley, the world's greatest woman rifle shot. Miss Oakley has appeared in every city of the civilized world giving her wonderful exhibitions. Capt. Bogardus, the unsurpassed champion sharpshooter of the world, together with Curtis Liston and Capt. Stuart, from a triorama the like of which has never before appeared with any tented exhibition. Ambrose Means, the daring American cowboy, who is famous on account of his exploits in the East African veldt, where he captured, alive, rhinoceri, lions, tigers, and other ferocious animals with his lariat, will give demonstrations at each exhibition of the Young Buffalo Bill Wild West show of how such feats were accomplished, using a herd of charging buffaloes in the arrangements. A big street parade will be given on the morning of the exhibition, at which time the entire organization will be seen dressed in their finest feathers and finery. A feature of the parade, which is said to be the most novel and elaborate street demonstration ever seen in this city, is Col. Stuart and his 20-mule Col. Stuart is the veteran ox driver of the civil war.

CARELESSNESS IN MILK MIXING.

Holstein Herds Also Proved to be Low in Butter Fat.

The recent finding of a number of dairymen in New Jersey state has caused some interesting investigations as to the reasons of the milk being below the required standards.

Upon looking in the matter closely, and after sampling and testing a number of milkings from the herds which were found to be below standard and observing the methods used in handling the milk, it has been found that the cause of the low test in 90 per cent of the cases looked into was due undoubtedly to neglect on the part of the dairymen to mix properly the entire milk from the whole herd before delivering to the creamery or bottling for shipment. In every instance where the duplicate samples taken by the State Board of Health was tested it was found to be below standard requirement thus showing that it is not a question of error in testing.

There are a number of causes which are apt to make the per cent of butterfat in normal milk low and especially to this nationality in Holstein herds where there is not at any time a great enough variance between the standard requirements and the herd average.

The following are some of the causes which were most frequently met with in studying conditions outlined above:

1. Holstein heifers having just freshened with their first calf. In two instances the normal milk tested only 2.1 per cent of butterfat.

2. Heavy producing Holstein cows from the second to the tenth week of of lactation whose previous average test for the entire lactation period was rather low showed in some instances a normal test of 2.4 per cent low test of butterfat, and a total yield of 11.6.

3. In a number of cases where cows were suckling their calves, it was found that the practice was to draw about half of the milk from all the teats for market purposes previous to letting the calves suck. This would undoubtedly tend to produce a low test of milk sold, as the last milk drawn is always richer than that taken at any other time during the milking.

4. Carelessness in mixing the milk has undoubtedly caused some of the low tests.

CORN TILLAGE GOOD FOR SHEEP.

Experiments Prove That Silage Has Great Advantage Over Roots as Economical Feed.

The Dominion Experimental Farm is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in stock feed.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, twenty-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The variation of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. It is convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in season, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by plowing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is an item to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made by the Ontario college at Guelph, when that time the classes have grown larger every year, so that the present enrolment is nearly 1,000 with an additional one at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

The Capital City of the Islands

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway grantted to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Hooma River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Hooma River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 30 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Hooma River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Massett Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have interested in the various resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the Islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 52 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

SCOUTS VISITED NAVAL STATION

Canadians Entertained at Portsmouth—Mayor Presented Each With a Coronation Cap.

London, June 23.—The Canadian Scouts visited Portsmouth and inspected the dockyard this morning. They were permitted to view the fleet from H.M.S. Seahorse, and were afterwards entertained at the Town Hall, the Mayor presenting each of the Scouts with a Coronation Cap.

Portsmouth was the scene of the first visit of Lord Roberts, Colonel of the Canadian Scouts, after the formation of the corps. Col. Pym took the cadets on board Admiral Beatty's flagship, which rides at anchor in the harbor. The Australian cadets accompanied the Canadians.

SPORTING COLUMN.

BOXING TO LEARN SINGING.

Welshman Whose Tenor Voice Equals His Boxing.

You've heard that threadbare expression, "playing both ends against the middle?" Well, what do you think of a boy who aspires to a musical education, following the prize ring to get the money that will make him a second Caruso?

You can't beat that, can you?

The boy working the duet is Fred Dyer of Cardiff, Wales. He says he is a better singer than he is a fighter and if this is true he must be a marvel, for he is one of the best lightweights in the British empire.

Dyer's specialty is to beat his man and then, with chest heaving from the exertion and pursuant to shouts of "Thora! Thora!" he sings in a clear tenor the song the London fight-loving public has taken to.

Sometimes Dyer sings with a lip split, or his nose swollen or one of his eyes blackened. Such things don't interfere. He gets double pay for his singing act.

Dyer whipped every lightweight in Cardiff before going to London and between battles sang in the choir of the biggest church in the Welsh city. His stay in London has been an unbroken string of victories. He expects to sail for the United States soon.

The boy has been doing concert work in the fashionable West-end.

Dyer says singing helps his fighting and that fighting helps his singing.

FITZSIMMONS FOUGHT MEN WHO RUSHED HIM.

But Jim Corbett Used to Keep Him Guessing.

Bob Fitzsimmons says he always could beat a man quickly who would rush at him. The fellows who knew how to feint and step around were the ones that bothered him most—that is, they lasted longer against him than the sluggers. For instance, Tom Sharkey was always easy for Bob because he went in and tried to rush Bob all around the ring. Ben men like Jim Hall and Jack Dempsey and Jim Corbett made it more troublesome for the lanky fellow, says W. C. Kelly in the Cleveland Leader.

"It made no difference how hard they could hit if they would come tearing in I liked them," said Bob last night. "I knew the moment I squared off in front of Sharkey that I would beat him just when I got ready to do it. He was a powerful fellow, but every time he rushed he left himself wide open, and all I had to do was to shoot out one fist or the other. He went down when he got it on the right spot.

"I had some trouble finding Jim Corbett, for he was the shiftiest fellow who ever pulled on a glove, and he was an adept at the art of feinting. And any man who can feint cleverly can bother any fighter, I don't care how good he is. I had to hide my time and do a lot of thinking before I finally got to Corbett. He was watching my right hand all the time and stepping away every time I moved it.

"Finally, I thought about the shift and then by feinting with the left for one side, and then with the right, he threw up his guard one after the other. The instant he lifted his right arm to protect his jaw, I shifted my right leg in front, and then let go with all my force in the solar plexus, or pit of the stomach. He went down, and the fight was over. If I had missed his stomach he would have got the blow on the chin.

FANS HAVE INNINGS.

Not all the fun at a ball game is on the diamond. The remarks hurled by fans at the umpire or players are often funny—very funny. The wit of the baseball fan in the bleachers is ever blooming. Here are some of the funny things that have been heard at ball games:

The crowd at Spokane, Wash., thought the umpire rotten. When he stepped up to the home base to sweep the dirt off so he could see it more plainly a bleacherite hollered out:

"Do you have to know much to do that?"

One of the fans in the bleachers at a Montreal-Baltimore game, after a rank play on the part of one of the Montreal players, cried:

"Aw, hang crepe on your nose. Your brains are dead.

The Toronto first baseman made an unsuccessful attempt to steal second.

"Hey, Toronto," shrieked a fan, "you're solid ivory from your shoulders up, and you breathe through your ears like a fish."

To appreciate this one you must remember the size of Joe Yeager's ears. At a critical part of a game a fan yelled:

"Fly your ears, Joe. There's a fly your neck."

THE NEW PHASE.

It must have been quite two a.m. when I was awakened from my slumbers by a voice, apparently from heaven.

"Nah then, funny, wot yer gettin' at there?" was the burden of its speech.

It was, by oral evidence, Matilda.

Matilda is 'our Domestic Permanency, my wife's proud boast to outsiders, her domineering tyrant in the house. Matilda's bedroom was above ours, and she was evidently talking out of the window. I could imagine the gargoyle effect.

"With you great boots," continued the voice, "a-trendin' over our flowerbeds, an' what good you think you're doin' of or ever will do in the catchin' line with them feet. . . ."

A pause, evidently for breath.

Who was this Romeo? Had I been less comfortable I should have got up and looked out of the window.

"And I'll thank you to stop flashin' that there dratted light up at my window. What you think you're goin' to see at this time o' night I don't know. No, I ain't got me tarara on. Wot's that? Winder left open, wasn't the master come down? Not 'im! Not if there wasn't twenty burglars 'e wouldn't. 'E's too snug in 'is bed, With 'is feet on 'is 'ot bottle."

During breakfast a terrific shriek from the kitchen reduced my wife to tears. I sang the bell furiously, always got as far as that—and an akimbo form appeared.

"It's yer Uncle Josiah's dessert-service gone, and if I won't a stayer I should give notice immediate, ever' to shock."

"But what was my best china doing ——" began my wife feebly.

My blood was up.

"Look here, you'll take a month's notice and go!"

I was eyed with a stony stare.

"Oh, Matilda, we couldn't dream of parting with you!" protested my wife hastily; and with an indescribable sniff the stayer disappeared.

And every attempt at giving notice had elicited the intention of going straight to one of our most intimate friends.

"And we couldn't refuse a good reference after six years; and think what she could say about us!" wept my wife.

I hastily agreed, remembering the small hours of that morning.

"Amelia," I demanded suddenly, "what do we pay Matilda?"

"One hundred and twenty-five dollars a year and her keep must be quite another $250."

"Then if we pensioned her on $250 a year we should save. Besides Uncle Josiah's china."

"But she'd never leave—she's too accustomed; is it likely she'd leave this house, which she practically owns, for two rooms? Besides, she'd go to Mrs. Robinson-Jones."

"Perhaps if she found a loving heart," I suggested. An idea of meteor-like brilliance occurred.

"But this is a 'No Follower' place."

I rang the bell firmly.

The look of silent scorn which preceded withdrawal could only mean "I could have had them any time I liked in spite of you."

That day I called at the police-station and inquired for the man who had been on night duty in our secluded road. I was directed to a busy crossing, and there in command of the situation was Romeo.

I grasped his hand wormily.

"Are you a married man?" I said.

Oo looked at me sadly.

"So hearly in the morning, sir!"

I saw his point and hastened to clear myself. He was not a married man, he was not even casting an eye.

"Though there's a many. . . ."

I hastily agreed.

"Give me a young woman with sperrit," he went on. "Now, there's a female I encountered last night on professional duty. . . ."

I shook both hands—he had met me half-way. It was soon arranged. Robert was to woo and win Matilda, in consideration whereof he was to receive $250 per annum for the term of his natural life.

He was naturally suspicious. I cited breakages and incompatibility of temper.

"But, of course, a policeman——" I insinuated.

"I'll see to that, sir," he replied genially.

The wooing was short. My wife and I became adepts at coughing and rattling the kitchen door-handle before entering, and with fiendish intent stocked the abode of the couple with crockery. The marriage settlement, so to speak, was drawn up in black and white.

For a year after our villa was the abode of joy. We obtained a treasure, who was only a moderate stayer, we entertained our friends, even seemed to save money.

And then we went abroad in summer, and in consideration of Matilda's changed character as shown by the entirety of her own household crockery, we installed her and Robert as caretakers and gave the treasure a month's holiday.

On our return we were met by Matilda, who, as per contract, was to have left the house the morning of our return.

"Where's Jane?" faltered my wife.

"The gal has gone. Likewise box and brown paper parcel, owing to words over filthy cupboards left behind. There ain't no cause to look blue. Robert and me can stop till suited, as man and wife. E's 'andy at doin' bits of jobs in the garden when off. And you may be thankful as there's no encumbrances an' I can come. As the register young persons see to me, 'There's not many in these days as is stayers.'"

That was some years ago.

"And that Raven, never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting."

No applications for the place have permeated. I pay them $250 a year, they live rent free on the fat of the land, and he draws policeman's pay as well.

But one can get used to everything.

SISTERS OF ST. ANNE WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Montreal, Quebec, June 23.—The Provincial Board of Health announced this morning that they had decided to prosecute the Sisters of St. Anne, of St. Jerome Convent, who allowed forty girls pupils to depart for their homes after a case of smallpox had been discovered in the convent and the building had been placed under quarantine. Quite much trouble to the pupils of the convent has since developed, and it is feared that the scattering of these pupils may cause an epidemic throughout the Province.

NOVEL ATHLETIC MACHINE.

New Invention to Test Runners as They Run Around the Track.

A novel invention in the shape of an apparatus for automatically taking measurements of the work of track athletes at all points in a race has just been installed on the running track in the Robinson gymnasium, Kansas University.

The machine, which is the first of its kind, and the invention of Dr. Naismith, director of physical culture, consists of small bamboo sticks, located along the track so as to divide the course into quarters.

The sticks project over the track and are touched by the breast of the runner as he passes. The bamboos are connected to a make-and-break electrical machine, which transmits the touch of the runner to a kymograph, which holds a lampblacked paper on which marks are made. A clock is used in connection with the kymograph for purposes of timing.

THE FIRST MENU CARD.

Started By a Duke in Brunswick in 1841.

At a dinner given by Duke Henry of Brunswick in 1841 he was seen to every now and then consult a long slip of paper, which reposed at the side of his plate. One of the duke's guests asked what the paper was for. He explained that it was a sort of a programme or catalogue of the dishes he had commanded from the cook. To the intent that if some delicacy which especially appealed to his appetite were reserved for a later stage in the repast, he might carefully reserve his appetite for it." The simplicity and utility of the idea at once took the fancy of the duke and the menu card from that moment became an institution. The new fashion was so much admired it travelled far and near, and was adopted in England and France at once.

A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD.

By Constance Romanne-Jones.

John Chalmers was finishing the portrait of a child, the best thing he had ever done, when his wife entered the studio. That he was conscious of her entry was attested by the frown which darkened his face as she closed the door. Yet he neither spoke nor looked round, but drawing a thin silk curtain over the picture proceeded leisurely to scrape the paint from the palette in his hand.

Mrs. Chalmers stood for a moment by the door, watching him, then moved one step forward and stopped again.

"Jack."

He turned to look at her with a grave face.

"So you have come back?"

She clasped and unclasped two thin white hands nervously. It was so difficult to explain her errand. If only her husband would storm and rage. Instead of which he stood calm, unruffled, apparently not very much interested in her re-appearance.

"Will you not sit down?" he asked presently, with cold politeness. "You seem a little upset."

"Upset!" with an angry flush that dyed her pale cheeks scarlet. "A little upset! That is so like you, John Chalmers."

A faint smile played over the artist's handsome face.

"I have not altered much in six months, Beatrice. But what can I do for you? You have left Mr.—or—Mr. Waring?"

"For the moment, yes."

"How very interesting." Each word came deliberately. "And if one may venture to inquire, what do you intend to do now?"

His words stung her pride into expression. "You need have no fear," she said bitterly. "I did not come here to-day to propose that you should take me back again."

"I must confess," he answered blandly, "that the idea never occurred to me. You make for happiness, at whatever cost. And we discovered, did we not, that our union was not conducive to happiness?"

"But it might have been." The words came quickly, almost before she realised she had spoken.

Chalmers looked at his wife sharply. "It might have been?"

"Yes, yes, yes," she cried passionately, leaning forward in her eagerness. "It might have been. If you had been more human——it might have been. People worship you for your art's sake. If you had been a little less self-sufficient, a little more attentive to me, your young wife—it might have been. Above all, if you had not taken me to live with your stern, Puritanical sister, Isabella, who misjudged me as only a soured, middle-aged woman can hate and misjudge the high-spirited vivacity of a young girl—I tell you again, it might have been."

"And was it to point out my faults you condescended to honour me with a visit to-day?"

Mrs. Chalmers gave a miserable little laugh. "I forgot. Pointing out faults is your prerogative, yours and Isabella's. No, John, I did not come to upbraid you. I came to ask you—to talk about—Bubbins."

"The child."

"Our child."

"She is well looked after in every way. Isabella——"

Mrs. Chalmers put her hands to her ears. "No! For God's sake not that. Don't tell me Isabella is a second mother to her, John." She crossed over to where she sat beside the easel playing indecorously with palette and brushes, and beat her tall, girlish figure down to his level. "John, the child is nothing to you. Though only three, it's already plain to see how unlike you she is in every way. She has all my characteristics. Every day you are reminded of the unfortunate fact. You must hate her——"

"Won't you give me credit for any fatherly feeling?" he interrupted.

"It is not your fault." The full gaze of her sad eyes was turned upon him. "When the gods endowed you, they decided you could do without anything as commonplace as affection. There was a time once—long ago—when you seemed to be alive. I thought to have married a flesh-and-blood man, and I found him only a thing of stone, feelingless—cold." She gave a little shiver.

"And did you find what I lacked in the man of your maturer choice? Did he understand you as no one else could? I am curious to know."

"You speak in enigmas. I have no idea what you are driving at. Don't you understand? I have come to ask you to let me have Bubbins."

"Bubbins? Let you have the child?" He was startled out of his pose.

"Why do you speak like that? I did wrong in leaving you, and I have suffered. If I am a foolish woman, I am not a bad one. Let me have her, for pity's sake. I can't"—a little sob—"I can't live without her. Rise above yourself, Jack. Mrs. Chalmers laid her hand pleadingly on her husband's arm. "Will you?"

"No," shaking off her hand roughly. "No, no; it is impossible."

"Why? Will you tell me why?"

"You know why. When you left this house as—as you did you forfeited the right to——"

"Daddy!" cried a small imperative voice.

"Daddy!" She pulled his sleeve to attract his attention. "Daddy, somefinks the matter wif Mumty. She's crying. I 'spect you'd better kiss her and make her well. Come!

The big man reluctantly allowed himself to be led to his wife, who still sat with her face hidden in her hands.

"Beatrice!"

A hand was laid on the bowed head. At his touch she looked up, and Bubbins climbing on to the settee, laid her cool cheek against her mother's tear-stained one with a sigh of relief.

"Listen, Beatrice. After all, I am only human. I cannot deny you what you ask. You shall have the little one, provided you let me see her sometimes."

Whether Sick or Well, in Good Weather or in Stormy, He is Obliged to Work Always.

Market people complain about prices they have to pay for farm produce They forget that rain or shine, warm or cold, the farmer must keep at it, or else the narrow profit, his bare living, will be lost to him.

A well-known Haldimand farmer, Mr. J. P. Pelletier, writes: "For nearly three years I was in poor health. A drenching storm caught me in the fields and wet me to the skin. I got home only to find I was threatened with inflammation of the bowels. I never got over it and felt weak and heavy and my system never worked quite right. But a farmer has to work—and I found myself going down hill with stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Failure seemed to follow everything. I remained wretched and sick until advised to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. It is not easy to describe the sort of feeling a sick man gets when he strikes a medicine that he can see is doing him a lot of good. I was overjoyed—Hamilton's Pills put new life into me and everything worked right. Since cured with Dr. Hamilton's Pills I haven't had a single symptom of stomach, liver or kidney trouble. I am free from headaches, languor and weakness, as strong, robust as a man could be." No better medicine for general family use than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are mild, healthful and certain to cure. Sold in yellow 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of every ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Elmhirst, 284 Romaine street, with threatening to blow the latter's brains out. After hearing the evidence Mr. Dumble dismissed the case for want of evidence. It appears that the defendant had no means to carry out her threat, as her gun, as she was only armed with a broomstick, and it would not fire.

Barrie, 520 Chamberlain street. Rev. Mr. Riddiford, pastor of Park street church, performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of the near relatives and a few friends of the contracting parties. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents, which indicated to all present the high esteem in which both are held among their numerous friends.

TRIM THE TREES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the Light and Power Company propose to trim the trees on certain streets. I think it would be a good thing if the Council would arrange to have the trees on all the streets of the city trimmed, as they need it. Nothing is more productive of good trees than frequent and careful trimming.

A. B. Mans.

A PLEDGE MUST BE SECURED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see that Mr. F. D. Kerr has been nominated on the Liberal side. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. J. A. Sexsmith is to be the Tory candidate. Now, sir, as the Times fairly represents the Protestant sentiment in the riding, and also I believe in the other ridings in the district, I would ask, through your paper, how these two men stand on the question that is now agitating the public mind. I refer to the No Temere decree. Are they in favor or against a general marriage law that will forever put an end to the present intolerable state of affairs? This is one of the questions that must be answered without equivocation. Protestants only demand what they are willing to give, amd the time has come when our politicians can no longer sit on the fence, or run with the fox and chase with the hounds. What has Mr. Kerr to say regarding this? He must answer.

Protestant.

EAST RIDING NOMINATION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As the Times is widely read throughout the East Riding, I would ask you to publish this letter at your earliest convenience. I was one of the delegates appointed by Otonabee to the Liberal convention, and through an unseen circumstance, was unable to be present. I was amazed to find that my vote was counted for Mr. Kerr. This is not right, and I protest against it. Furthermore, it appears there were more ballots cast than there were delegates, counting those absent as well as those present. This looks bad on the face of it, if true.. I can tell the Liberal party of East Peterborough that they will be defeated without a doubt if they do not call another convention and have the nomination reconsidered.

I happen to know that there is very great dissatisfaction, particularly in the northern portion of the riding, over the way in which the "machine" worked the oracle on Tuesday last. Let us be honest with ourselves.

A Disgusted Liberal.

MR. R. R. HALL EXPLAINS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In an interview which I gave to you on the 19th inst. respecting the late Geo. Wagner, who was unfortunately electrocuted while working on the line of the Otonabee Power Company at Nassau, I find that I made a statement which cast reflection upon Mr. Geo. Newberry, who is in charge of the power house, at Dam No. 5, for the company, which are not borne out by the facts, nor by the evidence before the Coroner's inquest.

In the interview I stated as follows:

"While Peter Kerr was in the telephone booth, Newberry undertook to put in one of the switches in order to start the generator, thinking that there would not be enough current to do any injury to any person who might be working on the line. In addition he supposed that the men would be at their lunch, it being between the hours of twelve and one o'clock. Mr. Newberry, unfortunately miscalculated the volume of water and the consequent current which came from the generator."

Upon reading the evidence taken before the Coroner's inquest and upon making a personal examination of the works and hearing the statements of Messrs. Peter Kerr, superintendent of the works, and Newberry and others employed at the works, I am satisfied that Mr. Geo. Newberry was not in the Power House, nor was he in any way responsible for the turning on of the power, which, in any way contributed to the electrocution of the unfortunate young man. It appears that before Newberry came into the Power House at all, that the generator was set in motion in order to test whether or not the crown wheels, which were being repaired, properly meshed in the pinion wheel. Mr. Peter Kerr is quite satisfied that the switch was out when the generator was started up and consequently no power would be transmitted over the line. The only theory which Mr. Peter Kerr says that can be advanced for the transmission of power is that the oil in the oil switch must in some manner have been becoming carbonized and thereby came in contact with the power line, and transmitted current over it. This theory seems to be borne out by the fact that the electric current which did come over the line.. was wasted and caused to come in unduly waves.

Previous to my interview I had not discussed the matter with Mr. Newberry and I very much regret that any injustice was done to him.

Yours, etc.,

R. R. Hall.

HOME BANK HAS GAINED ONE MILLION MORE DEPOSITS

Assets Over 11 Million--Remarkable Comparative Statement--Annual Meeting Yesterday.

The Home Bank of Canada held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon, at the head office, 8 King street west, when the report for the fiscal year ended 31st May, 1911, was received and passed by a representative gathering of shareholders, among whom was a contingent from the Western Provinces.

After the general meeting a meeting of the directors was held and the officers for the past year were re-elected:—Mr. Eugene O'Keefe, president; Mr. Thos. Flynn, vice-president; Directors, Messrs. E. G. Gooderham, W. Parkyn Murray, John Kennedy, John Perso, Thos. A. Crerar, Col. James Mason.

The President's Address.

The president, Mr. Eugene O'Keefe, was in a reminiscent mood when he rose to present the report for the year. He reminded his hearers that he was 84 years of age, "no chicken," to use his own expression. He had been associated with the Home Bank for 56 years. When he first knew it, the present Home Bank was "The Toronto Savings Bank." He joined its staff as a junior and saw it develop into "The Toronto Savings and Loan Company." Cautiousness had always been the watchword of the Home Bank and the president was not too old to become less cautious than he had been during former years when he had been at the head of the Home Savings and Loan and the Home Bank.

The Grain Crop.

Referring to the Western grain crop the president said:—

"When we had the pleasure of meeting you a year ago, I stated in my remarks that a circular, issued by the North-West Grain Dealers' Association, dated June 7th, 1910, showed the estimate crop acreage of the three provinces to be in excess of that of the previous year, in wheat alone, by 1,350,000 acres; that reports then indicated an excellent condition of the growing crops, and that everything looked favorable for a big yield. I also added that more recent reports, however, were not so encouraging, as the want of rain and the excessive heat of the previous few days had apparently done considerable injury. The wheat crop, I regret to say, though large, was disappointing, the yield being very considerably below that at first anticipated.

"The circular of the North-West Grain Dealers' Association of date, June 7th of the present year, shows an increase in acreage of wheat this year over last year almost identical with the excess of last year over the previous year, viz., 1,356,000 acres, the total acreage of wheat alone being well up to ten millions. The grand acreage total of all grains, according to the circular, in the three North-western provinces is over sixteen millions. The weather up to the present time has been considered favorable, and the circular which I am now quoting states as follows:—'Reports indicate the best conditions of the growing crops since 1895, but the wet weather has delayed in some localities the completion of seeding of oats, barley and flax. The prospects are for a bumper crop.' The information received since the publication of this report regarding the weather conditions, has been quite satisfactory. It is therefore only reasonable to look forward to a successful harvest.

"Our Paid-up Capital is now $1,264,000, besides something over an additional $100,000 subscribed for. The total number of shareholders has increased from 1,346 to 1,636, these new shareholders being chiefly North-West farmers, who now number some 989, thus keeping pace with the Bank's operations in that promising field for its business.

"Our deposits have increased about $1,000,000. Circulation also shows a satisfactory increase. Our net profits are a little over 10 per cent. on the average Paid-up Capital. We have added to the Rest $50,000, being the amount required to keep up its proportion to the Paid-up Capital, viz., 33 1-3 per cent., and a balance of $69,303.47 has been carried to Profit and Loss account.

"New offices have been opened at four points. The total assets of the Bank have reached the sum of $11,064,869, an increase of $1,350,000 for the year. Appended to the report which you now have in your hands is a comparative statement, which I think will be gratifying to you. It covers the operations of the Bank during the last five years, and shows a continuous and satisfactory increase in every department.

The comparative statement showing the growth of the Home Bank for the past six years, presented some interesting figures, showing progress in all features of banking:—

	Paid-Up Capital	Rest	No. of Sh'drs.	Circulation	Deposits	Total Assets
May, 1906...	$699,240	$175,000	390	$158,590	$3,816,286	$4,865,150

Compliment for Mr. Calverwell.

The Bowmanville Statesman has the following compliment for Mr. Calverwell: Our energetic friend, Mr. J. A. Calverwell, C.E., the laird of Gharridge, Port Hope, is now enjoying honey-dew after the successful completion of his public affairs. He is now superintending landscape and building improvements to his new home on Australian Colony Hill. He has recently purchased the Port Orton property, making together with the present consolidated three properties, some five acres of parkland, glen and ridge, overlooking Lake Ontario and Cobourg and the hills in the distance, possibly the hills surrounding Campbellford on the Trent River. Mr. Calverwell is a benefactor to his town and his fellow-citizens highly appreciate his love for the beautiful, as shown in the great improvements he is making.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have been presenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties,

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal." Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

Our reference is The First National Bank of Mancos, Colorado. Address and make checks payable,

CORNER STONE LAID

McDonald, blacksmith; and the nominal consideration was 5s., although in the subscription list the valuation was placed at £50.

The building contract named Aug. 31st, 1846, as the date on which the building should be completed. The records show that this building was duly opened for service on the second Sunday of December, 1846. The total cost amounted to £338-1-1, of which at this time there remained a debt of £130-6-1½, and, as a matter of interest, it was some twelve years before this liability was finally disposed of. In May, 1867, Rev. John Edwards and Mrs. Edwards, who were the pioneers of the cause in this district, took leave of Peterborough to take up the work in the Ottawa Valley.

The next event of importance is dated Sept., 1855. At this time the church, by vote, declared for strict or close communion. This vote, not being unanimous, resulted in the withdrawal of Rev. John Gilmour and a number of others in January, 1856. These brethren proceeded to organize what they termed "The Regular Baptist Church." In this connection we find that in July, 1856, these brethren applied for a new deed of the property from Rev. John Gilmour on the claim that the original deed as given by Mr. Gilmour had never been registered, and would appear, according to the law at that time, to be therefore lapsed. The Trustees did not agree to this action and this then led up to an action at law. This action was afterwards abandoned and the regular or open communionists then decided to build for themselves another chapel, and which was accordingly erected on Lot 7, south of Dublin street, and west of George street, and which was formally opened for worship Oct. 5th, 1862, by Revs. Gillett and Gilmour, the latter being the pastor of the church. On May 8th, 1865, that section of the former church body, who had continued to worship as close or strict communionists, in the original building, decided to waive their objections, and accordingly, we find a reunion. As a matter of further interest the chapel erected in 1860, now forms part of the dwelling house known as street number 598 Aylmer street. Rev. John Gilmour continued to be pastor of the re-united church until November 26, 1867. Rev. Thomas Stock then became pastor, owing to the increasing years of Mr. Gilmour. In May, 1869, Mr. Gilmour passed to his reward full of years of great service and usefulness, and mourned by all classes and creeds of the entire community. The successive pastorates up to the time when the Aylmer Street building was sold and the present church building on Murray street, purchased from the Bible Christians, were occupied by Thomas Dyall, J. Nulhern, E. Stobo and A. H. Munro. This change took place in 1885. Since that time the successive pastors have been Rev. A. H. Munro, P. C. Parker, A. T. Dykeman, Jonathan Bastow, J. Freeman Scott and John E. Webb. This brings our record up to the present time, viz., June 20, 1911.

In connection with this short historical sketch there is attached a list of the church officers for the current year, also the building Committee, in connection with the edifice under construction. Copies of the Daily Examiner, Daily Evening Review, Morning Times, Canadian Baptist, and one of each of the following, current calendar, &c., &c., and 1911, are deposited in this box.

The First Specification.

The following are the specifications of the Chapel to be built in Peterborough during the summer of 1846, for the Baptist denomination:

Length of building outside, 40 ft.

Breadth of building, outside, 34 ft.

The foundation to be built of stone and lime, twenty inches thick, three feet high, with apertures on each side opposite each other, a stone wall is also to run lengthwise, in the centre for supporting the sleepers for the floors.

The walls to be built of brick one and half bricks thick, fourteen feet and a half high and the gables are to be built of brick also of the same thickness. The openings for windows and doors in the walls are to be made according to the plan.

The person building to find all the material, save the brick. The west and the south side of the building to be built with the Flemish Bond, the remaining side and end with the English Bond.

The whole of the building to be completed in a workmanlike manner by the last day of August.

Address of Welcome.

Dr. W. D. Scott then read the following address of welcome to Rev. Dr. Clifford and at the appropriate moment Miss Robina Hardwicke presented him with the handsomely engraved and embossed silver trowel to be used in the ceremony.

The Rev. John Clifford, M.A., B.Sc., LL.D., D.D.

Dear Mr. Clifford,—The Baptists of Peterborough greet you and bid you a hearty welcome. We are doubly conscious of our obligation to you, in that you are giving us one day of your precious time, while making a trip across this continent. We rejoice in your spared life and continued vigour, which you have always used in the ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ. You will never lose your life in the attempt to save it, and long after you have entered the world where conflicts are no more thousands will rise up to call your name blessed, because of the battles you have fought and the victories you have won for truth, while serving your day and generation. We hope, therefore, that the splendid health that you seem to be enjoying may be a prophecy of many more years of activity in this world before you go to your reward.

We consider ourselves honoured in having you to lay the corner stone of Murray Street Baptist Church, and beg your acceptance of this trowel, with which to render the service, after which we will listen with pleasure to the message you bring us.

Signed on behalf of the Church,

J. R. Wood,
Minister.

T. F. Matthews,
Chairman of Building Committee.

The impressive ceremonial of the laying of the corner stone then took place, Dr. Clifford declaring the stone to be well and truly laid. At the same moment, by means of an electric message, transmitted over the wires to the tower of St. John's church, the People's Chimes pealed out "The Church's One Foundation."

A most eloquent address was given by Rev. Dr. Clifford, followed by speeches from other speakers.

LIGHT UP THE PARK.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would suggest through your valuable paper, that colored lights be put up in Victoria Park for use at band concerts only. It would add greatly to the hearty and attractiveness of the concerts.

HORSES IN HOT WEATHER.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see by the daily papers that the Toronto police have started a crusade against the cruel or thoughtless treatment of horses during the hot weather. Twenty-one drivers have been prosecuted at once for offences ranging from too heavy a load to the inhuman beating of the horse. This is a line of activity which Peterborough policemen might more sharp-sightedly engage in. With the active support of their superiors and the hearty sympathy of citizens generally, the local force might well aim to banish from our streets the occasional exhibitions of brutality one may still witness. Work on city roads in the dead of summer is hard enough for the dumb toiler without man adding needless burdens and abuse.

BOMB THROWN AT PROCESSION

Madrid, via Hendaye, France, June 30.—A bomb was thrown into the Calle Mayer, one of the principal thoroughfares of the capital, yesterday, as the procession marking the close of the Eucharistic Congress was passing, and near where King Alfonso and the Queen were watching the procession. So far as can be ascertained no one was hurt, but the explosion caused a small-sized panic.

POTATO FAMINE IN THE WEST

Winnipeg, Man., June 30.—There is a potato famine in sight for all Western Canada. At the present time potatoes are selling here at $1.75 per bushel, with 25c being asked for 3 pounds of the new crop, imported from the South. Two weeks ago the wholesale price for old potatoes here was 90 cents per bushel, but to-day it is $1.55 to $1.60, with no supply. Heavy rains in certain sections, which have drowned out the crops, are said to be responsible for the advance.

EX-WARDEN SCOTT IN THE FIELD

As intimated in The Times a few days ago, Mr. E. N. Scott, of Smith, is likely to be a candidate for the Ontario Legislature for West Peterborough on the Conservative side. Mr. Scott is widely known and is very popular, not only with his own party, but also with those on the other side. He has filled the position of Reeve of Smith for a number of years, and was Warden for a term. He is a man of wide experience in municipal affairs, and is acquainted with the requirements of the riding in a parliamentary sense. Should Mr. Bradburn carry out his intention of retiring at the expiration of the present parliamentary term, Mr. Scott will make a strong stand for the party nomination.

ANARCHISTS DELIBERATELY WRECKED FRENCH EXPRESS

Paris, June 30.—The express from Havre for Paris was derailed by train wreckers at Pont de L'Arche near Louviers last night.

All the cars turned over, but none of the passengers were seriously injured.

Copies of the Guerre Sociale were found lying beside the cut rails.

The press to-day strikes a note of alarm and demands that the new Ministry put an end to revolutionary activities and outrages.

FLOGGED HER STEP-DAUGHTER

Whitby, June 30.—Mrs. Vaselesky was found guilty by Magistrate Harper of assaulting and causing grievous bodily harm to her step-daughter Nellie Vaselesky, and sentence was suspended. It was shown by the evidence that the child was unruly, but witnesses told of her sad condition from floggings which she had received at the hands of her step-mother. Nellie Vaselesky, the eldest of the three children, was committed to the care of the Children's Aid Society, and the two younger ones were sent home. The three children recently ran away from home and were found wandering about the streets of Toronto.

HUSBAND ABSOLUTE LORD AND HEAD OF THE EXCHEQUER

Springfield, Mass., June 30.—These precepts for the guidance of wives and husbands in cases of differences over household economics, are laid down by Judge Charles L. Long, in the separate support case brought by Mrs. Edith S. Marsh against Henry D. Marsh, assistant treasurer of the Five Cent Savings Bank:

"The husband is absolute lord and master of the exchequer.

"He is entitled to his meals at any hour he wants them.

"He may select such foods as he chooses. If he wants one food and his wife another, the husband's decision goes.

"A servant girl, to whom the husband objects must be discharged.

"Finally, man—who pays the bills, and not woman—is boss."

Judge Long advised the Marshs to patch up their differences.

Mr. Marsh left the court room wreathed in smiles. Mrs. Marsh did not endorse the court's opinion, and said so.

MR. McKONE HONORED.

Popular Head of Business College is Presented With Gold Headed Umbrella.

It is with the sincerest regret that we announced that Mr. J. A. McKone, who has for some years had charge of the Peterborough Business College, is leaving the city for Toronto where he will be identified with the Central Business College. During his residence in Peterborough, Mr. McKone has made hosts of friends, and his departure will be greatly regretted. Yesterday the students of the local institution presented him with a gold headed umbrella and the following address:

Dear Mr. McKone,—In the event of your much regretted departure from the Peterborough Business College, we, the teachers and students of the above mentioned college, desire to show in some little measure our deep appreciation of your zeal for the welfare of the college and your efforts on its behalf.

The success of the graduates of the college has in no small measure been due to the conscientious and painstaking way in which you have fulfilled your duties as principal.

We, the present students desire to express our deep regret at your departure, and our belief that in your removal from the city, Peterborough will lose an energetic citizen, and the college an excellent principal. Also to wish you and yours every success in the city in which you will reside.

Accept therefore the umbrella, as a slight token of our remembrance.

Signed on behalf of the students and teachers of the college.

DOMINION DAY

As originally constituted the Dominion of Canada was composed of the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament passed in 1867, and commonly cited as "The British North America Act," although its full official designation originally was "An Act for the Union of Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, and the Government thereof, and for purposes connected therewith."

This Act received the Royal assent March 29th, 1867, and came into effect by virtue of Royal Proclamation July 1st, 1867. Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the Northwest Territories and Newfoundland into the Dominion. Newfoundland, alone, has not availed itself of this provision.

COST OF LIVING TOO HIGH TO CONTINUE POLYGAMY

SUPPORTS HIS WIVES BUT DOES NOT LIVE WITH THEM NOW.

Polygamists No Longer—Husband of Five Wives and Father of Forty-Three Children Now Warmly Advocates Monogamy.

Washington, June 30.—Polygamy no longer is practised by Mormons, and the man who is caught taking a plural wife is promptly excommunicated. So Joseph F. Smith, Venerable President of the Mormon church, is quoted in an interview to-day.

President Smith said that he still supports, but does not live with, the wives he married prior to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that polygamy was unlawful, and before the church issued its famous manifesto forbidding plural marriages. Since his elevation to the presidency, his efforts, he said, had been directed toward inducing his followers to practise monogamy.

ONE WIFE GOOD POLICY.

Asked if he thought it best for a man to have but one wife, the husband of five wives and the father of 43 children replied: "In these days of the high cost of living, there is no doubt that the average man is much better off with one wife. If a man cannot support one wife decently it would obviously be impossible for him to support more. The woman of to-day all demand that they be dressed and fed and housed as well as possible, and the man with an average income would be in terrible straits if he had several wives on his hands, all crying for the latest thing in hats and gowns."

President Smith, who came to Washington to appear before the "Sugar Committee" of the House, said he expected to leave the city to-day.

REMANDED FOR A WEEK.

Alfred Cooney Appeared and Again Remanded.

Alfred Cooney, who is charged with assaulting Mark Manley, at Drummond Station, appeared before the magistrate yesterday afternoon. He has been confined in the County jail since his arrest awaiting the recovery of Manley, or until such time as he was out of danger.

His condition is reported to be still critical, hence no bail has been secured for Cooney.

DEPARTURE OF REGIMENT.

The Gallant 57th Left for Brockville Last Night.

The 57th Regiment left for Brockville last night, and are this morning encamped in that city. The regiment mustered at the Armouries and shortly before 11 p.m. marched to the station, where they entrained. The men were provided with colonist sleepers, and were thus assured of a night's rest en route. The forenoon of to-day will be devoted to military exercises in conjunction with the Brockville regiment. In the afternoon the men will be given their freedom, and will proceed to make things lively in the city.

The 57th Band, which is one of the best in the Province, will give a concert on Court House avenue this evening, and a sacred concert to-morrow afternoon. A church parade will be held on Sunday morning, in which the 41st will probably join with the visitors.

The Peterborough corps is a fine regiment of eight companies and left for Brockville about four hundred strong. They wear the regulation infantry red uniform. Meals will be served the regiment at the Strathcona, St. Lawrence Hall, Grand Central, the Commercial and Albion Hotels.

ROOF COLLAPSED A DOZEN KILLED

Ten Are Dead and Others Are Not Expected to Recover—Accident at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N.Y., June 30.—Seven workmen were crushed to death and seven others seriously injured this morning in the collapse of the roof and other portions of the Buffalo Water Department's new pumping station at the foot of Porter avenue on the lake front. The dead, who were working in the pit of the pump house, are buried beneath hundreds of tons of steel, brick, mortar, of which the building was constructed. Most of the injured were at work on the roof, which was 300 feet long and 100 feet wide.

One of the injured died in an ambulance and two died at hospitals, making with those supposed to have been killed in the wreckage, a total of ten dead. Others on the injured list are not expected to recover.

WEDDING BELLS.

Wilson—McQuaig.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David McQuaig, 174 Sherbrooke street, was the scene of a very interesting event on Wednesday afternoon, when their eldest daughter, Miss Luella, was united in marriage to Mr. W. J. Wilson in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, while the wedding march was played by Mrs. E. J. Clark, of Sherbrooke street. The bride who was given away by her father, was charmingly attired in white silk, trimmed with satin and lace, and wore the customary bridal veil. She carried a bouquet of carnations.

Little Lottie McQuaig, sister of the bride, was the ring bearer, and the bride was supported by Miss Maggie McQuaig, her sister. She was very handsomely attired in pink silk mull. The groomsman was Mr. C. W. Barrett of Peterborough.

The bride received many costly and useful presents, indicating the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful brooch with pearl settings and to the groomsman a stick pin of rare settings, and to the ring bearer a beautiful brooch with dainty settings.

After the ceremony and the congratulations the party proceeded to the dining room where dainty refreshments were served.

The happy couple left on their honeymoon trip to Toronto, Detroit and other points.

The young couple are followed by the best wishes of a host of friends, who all join in wishing them a happy and prosperous life. On their return they will reside in this city.

YOUNG BUFFALO BILL SHOW.

A Big Street Parade Will Be One of The Features of the Show.

Writers of popular western fiction in search of names for their heroes would find the payroll of the Young Buffalo Wild West show, which will make its initial bid for local favor Saturday afternoon and night, July 8th, a veritable gold mine of suggestions.

The poetic name of one cow puncher is "Bottle Nose Ben," another answers to the cognomen of "Ziset Tooth Bill." Owen Wister might make use of "Bad Lands Charley" for one of his characters, while "Alkali Pete" would look very well displayed in red on the front page of the wild and wooly literature so dear to the heart of the young American.

The cowboy is not alone in his penchant for absurd and outlandish names. The noble red man furnishes an assortment that any first class distiller would revel in. "Snake Bite," "Laughing Water," "Hot Foot," "Big Deer," and "Stiff Knee" are but samples of what a distorted imagination can produce. The management of the Young Buffalo Wild West shows do not see anything attractive in any of the above names. They represent individuals who take part in the ensemble of the show. Individually and collectively, they do not draw one dollar to the ticket wagon. There are, however, a score or more names on this same payroll that are producers, that attract dollars to the show. Prominent among them is Annie Oakley, the world famous woman rifle shot. Miss Oakley has appeared in all cities of the civilized world; has appeared before all the crowned heads of Europe and is the possessor of many valuable gifts from the royal family in recognition of her wonderful skill with the rifle. Ambrose Means, the reckless American cowboy who invaded the interior of the East African veldt and succeeded in capturing alive rhinoceri and other wild animals with a lariat, is a big drawing card. There are many other celebrities with the Young Buffalo Wild West shows, but lack of space forbids their enumeration. A big street parade will positively be given at 10.00 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition, at which time the entire aggregation will be seen decked out in their finest feathers, finery.

OUR CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

TO-DAY'S TRICK FOR THE SUPPER TABLE.

Here's a bully scheme for "working" dad for some spending money.

Tell him you can make a quarter stick to the wall without using glue or anything else.

If he feels like arguing the matter, ask him if he will give you a quarter if you can make it stick to the wall. When he "bites" take the quarter and slam it flat against a smooth surface of wood—say the bookcase or a door panel—pressing it hard with a downward sliding motion, against the wood. Take your hand away and the coin will stick tightly.

The striking and pressing expel the air between the coin and the wood, forming a vacuum which will hold the millionaire's dollar or Johnny's penny just alike.

BOY CAN MAKE.

Some Descriptions of Useful Articles for Camping.

Many boys look forward to going into camp as soon as school is closed, taking for their camping grounds some piece of woods or small island near their homes. It is also good fun to set up a camp in the back yard if one's parents do not wish to have one go away. Boys who are interested in this sort of good time will find it a good plan to start soon to make some of the necessary articles of the camp equipment. A boy reader has sent to this page some descriptions of articles which are useful for campers and which may be made at a very small cost or without any cost at all.

To make a camp lantern take a can and puncture it. A small block of wood may be hollowed out to make a holder for the candle. The block of wood is set inside the pail and the light shines through. This pail may also be used for carrying small fish or bait.

Another lantern is made of a glass jar which has a tin cover. Puncture holes in the cover and make a basket for the candle of wire which is twisted around so as to hold the candle, as shown in the picture. There are two long strands of wire which come up through the lid and form a handle for the lantern.

A camp warmer and cook stove may be made of a pail.

The article to be cooked may be put in a covered pail and then covered with hot coals. To make an oven fill thepail with hot coals. The articles to be roasted may be placed on top of these coals.

ASOF AND HIS PONY.

An Arabian Story for Canadian Children.

Asof loved his pony Selim very dearly. He used to whisper in his ear that when he grew to be a man he would buy him a string of the loveliest pearls to hang around his neck and feed him on rose sugar drops. One day Asof's uncle came to see Asof and brought him a box of sweetmeats of most beautiful colors and shapes, 36 in all.

"Have a good time with these candies," said he. He knew his little nephew had a sweet tooth, and the sugar roses, violets and lilies were made of the purest creamed sugar.

Asof nodded his head.

"I will have the best of times," said he. "I will eat five candies myself and feed the rest to Selim."

"To Selim!" echoed his uncle.

"Yes, to Selim!" merrily laughed Asof, and of he scampered to have a good time with his pony.

AN AFTER SUPPER THUNDER "STORM."

Here's some homemade, individually applied thunder that will outthunder old Vulcan himself. You can produce it on nights when there isn't a cloud in the sky—right in the house, and only one person at a time will hear it.

Place a piece of string around the other fellow's head, taking care that his hands cover his ears. Then cause the string to vibrate by drawing the moistened finger and thumb along the string.

The effect will be that of a rolling peal of thunder, audible only to the person operated upon.

INSECTS TOOLS.

There is a little fly called a sawfly, because it has a saw to work with. The fly uses it to make places where the eggs will be safe. What is more strange it has a sort of home-made glue which fastens them where they are laid.

Some insects have cutting instruments that work just as scissors do. The poppy-bee is one of them, whose work is wonderful. This bee has a boring-tool, too. Its nest is usually made in old wood. This borer cleans out the nest for use. When all is ready, the insect cuts out pieces of leaves to line the nest and to make the cells. These linings are cut in the shape of the cells. You would be surprised to see the care taken to have every piece just the right size.

FUN FOR FRIVOLOUS FROLICS.

Seated in a circle you begin to count, passing rapidly from one to the next but instead of saying "seven" the player says "Buz" which must be repeated at 14, 21 and each multiple of seven; also instead of five or any multiple of five, take 10, 15, etc., the player must say "Bang." A forfeit must be paid each time one fails to "Buz" or "Bang" at the right time.

The Dominion Experimental Farm is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in stock feed.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, twenty-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The varieties of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. If convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in season, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by ploughing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is as good to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made by the Ontario college at Guelph, when that time the classes have grown larger every year, so that the present enrollment is nearly 1,000 with an additional 400 at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway granted to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Hooma River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 300,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party to misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 [illegible] lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 [illegible] been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal [illegible] Hooma River Valley, Lawn Hill [illegible] Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Kennedy addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be the last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realizes that the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Masset Inlet is to be started this summer. In addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to scores of men. There are at least 500 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the varides resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 52 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys and liver and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, in yellow boxes, 25c per box, from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

PROVIDING FOR THE THROUGH TRIP.

Life is a journey. This is a trite metaphor, but it is trite because it is true. We are each in charge of an engine, which we call the body, and this engine needs fuel, which we call the necessities of life. There are comforts and luxuries which we all desire, and these we may liken to patent attachments and brass and nickle works which reduce the jolts of the journey or give style to the rolling stock.

We find it easy in youth to provide the coal and water as we go along, and to keep the locomotive looking trim. We fly gaily past those stations which we call birthdays, and willingly pick up passengers here and there for whose comfort and safety we become responsible.

Sooner or later the engine runs into an open switch. You know what that means. If it along the first part of the trip there are passengers left in need of a conveyance. Life insurance has provided the means whereby the young engineers may guard against an early derailment. The benefits of these provisions cannot be overrated; he is an imprudent driver who neglects them.

There are other contingencies which may arise before the open switch is reached. One of these is the possibility that the journey for the individual may be longer than the average run, and a point be attained where the hand becomes lax at the throttle, and the worry of where to get fuel for the engine presses hard on the man in charge. This is the contingency that the Government of Canada has in mind when it devised its Old Age Annuity scheme,—a scheme whereby the surplus means of youth, and a wise man will find some way to have a surplus, may be kept in store for the needs of age.

The Government has foreseen your needs, and anticipated the requirements for your journey. You entrust to the Government some of the savings you can make when your supplies are in excess of your demands, and the Government assures you coaling stations beyond the fifty fifth milestone.

The open switch may not appear in your path until long after the seventieth station has been passed. Nothing is more pitiable than to watch the old engineer, which cannot leave the tracks if they wish, trying to ascend the grades at the last stages of the journey of life, or to see some of the passengers, late travellers in comfort, now forced to walk the tracks. Friendly companions may give them a lift, or others may push them along grudgingly as a duty. An Annuity may not restore to you the speed of youth, but it will retain for you its independence. If you are concerned as you should be, with the problem of how to provide for that "best of life for which the first was made," you should ask for schedules at the Government Annuities Branch, Ottawa.

The Government of Canada has shown its faith in the idea of providing against the needs of the last stages by appropriating $70,000 annually to educate the people in the habits of thrift. This appropriation is paid out of the revenues of the Dominion, and not one cent of it is derived out of the purchase moneys received from the Annuitants.

The people of Canada have shown their faith in the scheme by saying in a million dollars to obtain the benefits offered. How many, however, are still running the journey of life blind to the fact that they may need the protection which this scheme affords! Have you the fare for the through trip?

AN EXCELLENT INVESTMENT.

Among the many good provisions of the Canadian Government Annuities Act is that under which a husband and wife, two sisters, or in fact, any two persons may join in the purchase of what is known as a Last Survivor Annuity, that is an Annuity which will be paid to both so long as both live, and to the survivor so long as he or she lives. For example, a man who is over 71 recently purchased a Last Survivor Annuity for himself and sister, both years older, at a cost of $4,614. This secures them an income of $500 a year (the first quarterly payment falling due three months from the date on which the purchase money was paid. Prior to the investment in a Government Annuity the money had been drawing 6 per cent interest, or yielding an income of only $300, so that the increased income will make a vast difference in the comfort and happiness of the Annuitants, while at the same time it will relieve them of all anxiety as to the state of the money market and the safety of the investment.

Any information desired on the subject of Annuities may be obtained by applying to your Postmaster, or addressing the Superintendent of Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

THE RARE CARIBOU

Unique Specimen to be Placed in the Museum of British Columbia

The first and only specimen of the rare caribou of the Queen Charlotte Islands to be exhibited in any country of the world will be given a place of special distinction in the British Columbia provincial museum, one of the three animals secured by the Indians on Graham Island, not far from Virago Sound, almost three years ago, having been successfully mounted by Curator Francis Kermode—more successfully than he had dared hope could be accomplished in view of the atrocious skinning of the animals by the native hunters and the condition in which the carcasses were ultimately received in Victoria. The unique specimen is notably small as contrasted with the caribou of the mainland, being not larger than a fully grown mule deer, and would weigh approximately 225 pounds or less. It is exceptionally light in color, and carries the right horn only, the left—as in two-thirds of the specimens secured—being an absent quantity, a general deterioration or frequent malformation being attributed to prolonged inbreeding. The head is also much shorted than that of the mainland caribou, and the conspicuous frontal plough in the horn formation is missing, all of which stamp the Queen Charlotte Caribou as a distinct and separate species. That the specimens at the museum are fully grown is attested by the teeth, the front teeth being entirely missing, while the back bear every evidence of age.—Rod and Gun.

A PET MOOSE

Wanders About New Brunswick and Visits Barnyards

A pet moose is said to be wandering in the neighborhood of Plaster Rock, N.B., and making the lives of dogs a misery to them, says Rod and Gun. During the close season, three moose, a bull, a cow and a calf, wandered around feeding with the cattle and using their salt boxes. When the open season came on the bull and cow left for the wilds, but the calf remained and visited various farmyards. The abundance and variety of food evidently suited the calf, and having a malformation of one of its spikehorns it is easily identified. The farmers have become quite used to it and are taking measures to ensure its protection from any hunter who wishes for fresh meat without going to the woods in search

Harrison's Good Aim While Riding on a Moose's Back

A man named Harrison was running near Oyster River, N.B., declares that he shot a bear which was riding on the back of a moose. Whether the bear had delivered [illegible] the moose, tipped from a tree by accident as the moose was passing underneath, or adopted that method of crossing the river, the sportsman was unable to say, but he declares he shot the animal as the moose was carrying him across country as though instantly escaped from the waters of the river. One shot was sufficient to kill the bear and the moose thus relieved made off at a record speed.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

VALOR UNAPPRECIATED

"I love you!" he breathed with all the passion of the hero of a first-class serial.

"Oh, John!" she murmured, as she nestled closer to him.

"Yes," he continued; "there is nothing in all this wide world that I would not do for you. To be by your side I would swim the roughest sea, fight my way through the raging flames, and walk a hundred miles through the dust and heat!"

"No, no, John!" she cried anxiously. "Promise me you will never do any such thing."

"But, dearest, why would you not allow me these to prove my love and fidelity, should occasion arise?"

"Just think," she sighed. "What a horrible night you'd have with your clothes all wet and [illegible] and [illegible]!"

AN INVESTMENT NOT A SPECULATION

What everybody with an ounce of common sense is on the alert for these days is a sound INVESTMENT and there is as much difference between an investment and a speculation as there is between London and Hong-Kong, although we all don't realize this.

• • • •

Consequently when one takes a chance on a speculative proposition, mistaking it as an investment and comes out of the small end of the horn, he becomes pessimistic and with the tightening of his purse strings to extremes to keep the pennies in just naturally shuts the dollars out.

• • • •

Now then if there were no investors there would be no progress, and with no progress the community would mighty soon become stagnant.

• • • •

The foundation of America, was old Christopher Columbus, he had not idea but was short on ready cash, in other words he was what us modern day folks call a promoter. His idea was feasible, he found co-operation, his plans carried and YOU KNOW THE REST.

• • • •

Like Columbus we are all Pioneers. Not out for our health, but to make money. No man ever saved more than a competence on a salary; few do that. To get a footing on "Easy Street" you have to invest DOLLARS don't grow in your pockets or in a stocking. They must be put to work. Old Russell Sage said:

"Plant a few in a new country and see how fast they grow."

That's what we are trying to impress on you now and here is the biggest opportunity of this kind that is likely to knock at your door.

• • • •

We are the Pioneers of the fruit and vegetable canning enterprise in the Okanagan Valley and earnestly invite you to co-operate with us.

• • • •

Men at the head of affairs of this corporation are the best known and most highly esteemed gentlemen in British Columbia.

• • • •

Mr. Albert McKillop, our President, has a world wide reputation in the Timber and Timber Land World. (See R. G. Dunn).

• • • •

Mr. Wesley A. Blair, our Secretary and Treasurer, is also Cashier of the Canadian Customs, being the Government's most trusted employee. He handles on an average of $30,000.00 every commercial day of the year, and it was his fertile mind that first saw the possibilities of Canneries on the Coast, in-as-much as tens of thousands of dollars duty pass through his hands for American goods yearly. Bear in mind that there is a 2½c per pound duty on all canned stuff and RECIPROCITY or no RECIPROCITY that will stand.

• • • •

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

• • • •

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners Ltd., from doing the same.

• • • •

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—site of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

• • • •

Now, then, be up and thinking.

• • • •

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

• • • •

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

• • • •

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

• • • •

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

• • • •

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

• • • •

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realising handsomely on and term him lucky.

• • • •

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when opportunities like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

• • • •

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

• • • •

Although capitalized at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

• • • •

This is a gilt-edge home file, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

• • • •

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

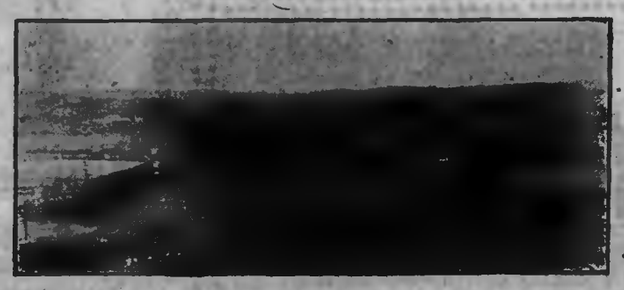
HARDISTY

is the Busiest Divisional Point Outside of the Large Cities in the West

The Town of Hardisty is expending $15,000 in Cement walks alone this year. The Residential Streets are all being boulevarded, making it the most enchanting City in the West.

A large Public Park has already been reserved, beautifully located, running to the shore of a beautiful lake, which abounds with different kinds of fish. Several small lakes are in close proximity to Hardisty, which is bound to make it one of the finest summer and health resorts in the West. Within six miles from Hardisty is the famous Buffalo Park, which is a source of wonder and delight, containing the largest herd of Buffalo now in captivity. Hardisty has a typical sunny Alberta climate, conductive to the production of every kind of wild fruit and berries which grow in abundance all along the shores of Battle river and lakes.

This is Hardisty's new C. P. R. Station, the largest and best equipped outside the large cities.



A few of the C. P. R. Sidings at Hardisty.

C. P. R. Round House and Stalls at Hardisty.

HARDISTY already has 25 miles of side tracks, having a capacity of 1,000 cars, with an auxiliary yard having a capacity for 500 more, which will be doubled this year to cope with the immense traffic.

The C. P. R. has already expended at Hardisty over $300,000 in Round Houses and Machine Shops. 8 more Stalls are being added this year to accommodate the increasing business of the company.

HARDISTY ASSURES ONE OF THE BEST PROFIT MAKING INVESTMENTS IN THE WEST.

As can readily be seen on the map, Hardisty is the centre of the great Transcontinental traffic, the shortest route by 300 miles from Winnipeg to the great west. Hardisty is a splendid freight distributing point with direct connection with Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, and Winnipeg. Hardisty is the key to the last Great West, and the open door through which passes Alberta's great products of grain, timber, live stock and minerals.

The C. P. R. employs seventeen train crews, running to and from Hardisty daily, besides those employed in connection with the Round Houses, Machine Shops, Stores, Coal Shutes, etc.

Hardisty has the beautiful Battle River running past its door, affording no end of sport for the huntsman and fisherman, also assuring excellent sites for manufacturing concerns, and at the same time supplying the town with water if needed.

Hardisty has large General Stores, Hotels, Churches, Banks, Hardware Stores, Wholesale and Retail Butcher Shops, Lumber Yards, Implement Shops, Livery Barns, Large Schools, Hospital and Printing Offices.

Hardisty's surroundings are the best for mixed farming in the west, being three weeks earlier than the general run of places.

Spread out before you is the picturesque town of Hardisty, the Wonder Town of the West. It is cleft by the beautiful Battle river flowing pure and sparkling, affording water privileges that few towns can boast of.

FARM AND FIELD

EGG CANDLING.

A Good Way of Testing Eggs for Market.

The time of year is at hand when it is a little difficult to always know the condition of the eggs that are gathered, even upon well managed farms. Candling at home puts the producer in position to demand and to secure what his eggs are worth, and in this connection the following description of the contents of eggs, ranging from fresh to absolutely rotten, as they appear under the candle is of interest. It is from a newspaper bulletin put out by the Indiana station:

Fresh.—Opaque, appearing almost entirely free of any contents, sometimes dim outline of yolk visible, air cell very small.

Stale.—Outline of yolk plainly visible, sometimes muddy in appearance, air cell very large.

Developed Germ.—Dark spot visible, from which radiate light colored blood vessels.

Dead Germ.—Dark spot attached to shell, or red ring of blood, visible.

Rotten.—Muddy or very dark in appearance, yolk and white mixed, air cell large and sometimes moveable.

Cracked.—White lines showing irregularity in shell.

RAISING CHICKENS.

Chickens Can Be Raised Successful in Your Yard.

It pays to raise chickens. There's no doubt about it.

For long it was the generally accepted theory that a hen needed about 100 acres in which to roam and scratch, and that a big barnlike house was needed for just a medium sized flock to roost.

Wrong. One well tested system gets excellent results both in eggs and meat by confining chickens in very close quarters. In little backyards of city lots a flock of hens will grow fine and fatten for the market or your table just as if they were on the farm.

If the largest plot you can give the chickens is only eight feet by four, that will do for a half dozen hens and a rooster, and with right care you ought to get 50 dozen of eggs a year.

Multiply that by more space and more hens and see how it will cut down your cost of living. Also it will make you free of the cold storage product, and what is almost as good to the city man, the larger the production of eggs and poultry the less the demand for pork, beef and mutton, and corresponding lower prices for all meats.

Rev. Mr. Coon, formerly of Mark street church, has taken up his residence at the parsonage at Lakefield, where he has been stationed for his new field of labors.

Although, no doubt, every railway company would gladly convey His Majesty and the Queen free of charge, our rulers pay exactly the same prices as anybody else for a special train, in addition to the first-class fare of every passenger by whom they may be accompanied in their respective suites.

Mr. Grahame-White has undertaken to deliver cinematograph films of the Coronation by aeroplane to Birmingham, Bristol and Rugby. Immediately the pictures have been taken they will be developed and placed upon aeroplanes at Hendon, whence they will be transported by air to other destination.

CARUSO'S COLD COSTS DEAR.

It is announced that Signor Caruso will shortly leave for Italy, where he hopes to benefit by a complete rest and change of air, the physicians having forbidden him to sing this season. The loss sustained by the great tenor through what was in the first place regarded as an ordinary slight cold is estimated at about $16,000, as he has been compelled to refrain from singing for a period of twelve weeks.

TO STOP HAT LIFTING.

To put a stop to hat-lifting as a form of salutation a league has been formed at Zurich which seeks to introduce the military form of salute. The league states that the uncovering of heads is the cause of many colds affecting mainly the older men. In Germany, Austria, and German Switzerland it is the custom for a man to hold his hat in his hand until the lady asks him to "cover" himself. A nod is generally sufficient, but some wait for a formal request.

At the Court of St. James'.

But it is not everybody who realises that the Palace of Westminster—the correct name for the Parliamentary Houses—contains a second throne. This is placed in the King's robing room and is used by the King when he is putting on his legal garb before entering the House of Peers to read the "Speech from the Throne."

As a matter of fact, the official throne of these realms is the one at James' Palace, that very ordinary looking building at the foot of St. James' street. All ambassadors are accredited to this court, and, in the eyes of foreign governments, it stands for the majesty of Britain. Its throne is a very handsome one, and stands under a magnificent and most ornate canopy.

Though the throne at Windsor is but little used, it is unique in one respect. It is really an Eastern throne, after the style of the one we read of in the records of King Solomon, for it is composed entirely of ivory, and was the gift of one of the Princes of India.

MONTREAL CHURCH FIRED BY LIGHTNING.

Completely Burned at a Loss of $200,000—Well Covered by Insurance.

Montreal, June 28.—Lightning last night struck the church of St. Jean Baptiste on Rachel street, and completely destroyed the splendid edifice, at a loss of about $200,000.

This was the second time the church had been burned, but the present fire was much more disastrous, since after the fire in 1698 it had been rebuilt into one of the finest edifices in Montreal.

At midnight there was little but the walls and the tower left facing on Rachel street, which still stood although it was momentarily threatening to fall.

There was fortunately no loss of life in connection with the fire, which started about 9.30 o'clock, very shortly after a service had been held. The only person injured was Fireman Bourgoin, who was thrown from a ladder by a toppling wall and suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

While the losses are very heavy, they are well covered by insurance. It being stated that there was $175,000 insurance on the main building, spread over a number of companies, while the insurance on the organ amounted to $14,000. Oddly enough, the organ insurance had only been concluded at noon to-day, the organ having been only recently installed by the Casavant Company of St. Hyacinthe.

Whooping cough is not dangerous when the cough is kept loose and expectoration easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has been used in many epidemics of this disease with perfect success. For sale by all dealers.

MURDERED BY TURKS.

Thousands Have Fled to Montenegro for Protection.

Vienna, June 28.—Reliable advices have been received here from Albania that the situation there is extremely critical. Turkey has massed 50,000 troops within a day's march of the Montenegrin frontier.

Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, who has just arrived at Vienna from Cettinje after traversing Albania, describes the conditions as absolutely intolerable. The Turks, he says, are devastating the whole districts, killing prisoners, refugee women and children, burning houses and crops and blowing up churches. A large body of Albanian women and children is now caught between two wings of the Turkish army, and escape is impossible.

Mr. Crane adds that 25,000 women and children have fled to Montenegro and are starving there, their only means of sustain means of subsistence being boiled grass and various roots they are able to gather.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,-- is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt-would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the mer of good judgment,-- these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. IS YOUR MONEY IDLE?

Dormant Wealth is useless. Gold hidden in the corner cupboard is WASTING ITS TIME, just as surely as the sluggard is wasting his life. In these strenuous days of commercial activity every dollar should be made to work. ARE YOUR DOLLARS WORKING ALL THE TIME?

Of course YOU have no lazy money. But have you a bank balance that is just vegetating, making a paltry three cents interest on the dollar once in twelve months, three dollars on the hundred, thirty on the thousand?

Don't let your money ape the sluggard. Make it WORK. Opportunity is knocking at your door right now, and I am guiding Opportunity. It is worth your while reading this advertisement carefully. You cannot lose by it; you stand to gain a just deal.

Fruit Farms in British Columbia are my specialty. I have devoted many years to a close study of the soil and the climatic conditions of the Fraser River Valley. I will not handle property that is not ABSOLUTELY A. 1., no matter what the inducement may be. When you deal with W. J. KERR, LTD., you deal with a reliable firm.

If you have never been to British Columbia, you can have but a slight idea of the wonderful and steady increase in land values. The price of yesterday is doubled to-day, to-day's price will quadrupted to-morrow, for the upward movement has only just commenced. The wealth of a province is behind this steady movement.

Six years ago I sold land on the Westminster-Vancouver electric car line for $100 per acre. To-day it sells for from $2000 to $6000 an acre.

Two years ago I sold land in Peachgrove for $100 an acre. You could not buy that same land to-day for less than $2000 per acre.

I have just picked these two instances at random, but they will suffice to show you the enormous increase in values in the past. THE PROFITS OF THE PAST WILL NOT BE A CIRCUMSTANCE TO THE PROFITS OF THE FUTURE. Do you wish to share in these profits? Of course you do.

Investment in good real estate is as safe as a deposit in the Bank of England. There is no better real estate than in the Fraser River Valley.

I have the biggest list of properties in this district, and the prices at which I offer these is always a little lower than the other fellow. That is how I gained my reputation.

I am now placing a Fruit Land Subdivision on the market. This is parcelled into five-acre tracts, close to two railway lines and with splendid roads leading to the property. The Water Supply gushes up in a never-lessening stream from a well 330 feet deep, and can be piped to every house in the subdivision.

This Fruit Land is only a few miles from the city of Westminster, which boasts the greatest farmers' market in Western Canada. Here all products of the soil command a quick and remunerative sale. [illegible] the market will increase tremendously in the next few years. [illegible] will put you [illegible] my offer and obtain [illegible] while [illegible]

JERUSALEM'S PUBLIC OVENS.

Use Cave-like Vaults Running Below Street Level.

There are public bakeries in Jerusalem. The dough is kneaded at home and carried in great lumps to the public ovens. These are to be found in almost every street. They are cave-like vaults, running down below the street level. At the back of each vault is the oven, with a sort of well before its open door. In the well stands the baker, with a long paddle in his hand, upon which he puts in and takes out the loaves.

The oven floor is marked out in blocks, so that the baking of each family is put on a separate block. The loaves, which are about an inch thick, are of the size of a tea plate and have a hole in the centre. The baker makes them from the dough, bakes them, and returns them hot from the oven to the customer. He receives two cents for each half dozen loaves, or he may instead take a toll of one loaf for each dozen. Before starting the baking he greases the floor of the oven with olive oil.

NEW PARAGRAPHS.

Electric carpets are the latest invention for the heating of rooms, the cost for one room being estimated at a halfpenny an hour.

In Corea marriage is even more important and essential for a man than it is for a woman, as, until a man be wed, he is a being of no account. If a father has not selected wives for his sons ere they reach the age of twenty he is considered worthless and neglectful.

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Welsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,980 times, and climbed 500 miles of stairs.

HOME LIFE OF QUEEN MARY.

Believes in Simplicity in Training of Children.

From the time of Her Majesty's birth until her marriage her life was just that of the fairly well-to-do English girl, hardly that of the modern English girl, perhaps, but nearer the old-fashioned ideal. This was her mother's plan:

"A child," she said, "has quite enough to do to learn obedience and attend to her lessons and to grow without many parties and late hours, which take the freshness of childhood away and the brightness and beauty from girlhood—and then children become intolerable. There are too many grown-up children in the present day."

A writer tells how the Queen's many high qualities were developed—her interest in charity by the frequent visits made in her mother's company to the poor around her Richmond home at White Lodge; her religious convictions, bred by the daily life of her home; her musical accomplishments and her artistic talents, fostered by her stay in Florence, Italy, where her parents lived for two years.

"The Queen has a sweet voice," says Sir Charles Hubert Parry, "a soft soprano, which greatly matured under the skilful guidance of Signor (now Sir Paolo) Tosti. . . . She is a good judge of a picture and an excellent critic, and while at Florence made several pretty sketches of landscape scenery. She rarely misses any good exhibition of pictures in London, is particularly fond of the old masters and prefers their more finished style of painting to the impressionist school.

"Dramatic art of every kind appeals to her, and there are few plays of importance or that have attracted public attention during the last two decades she has not seen. Like her mother, she quickly seizes upon the humorous side of a question. Thus she has a keen appreciation for a sparkling comedy or a farce.

"The Queen is greatly attached to the historical past of her country. Ancient monuments of every kind have a fascination for her, and her acquaintance with different kinds of architecture must have entailed much study and close observance.

"She is particularly fond of visiting cathedrals, and knows the interior of most of the old city churches, besides being well versed in the countless treasures contained in the other historic buildings of our great metropolis.

"Her Majesty follows events attentively. She reads the newspapers daily, and as Princess of Wales attended the more important parliamentary debates.

"Punctuality is a household word in the royal establishment, and when the Queen makes an appointment it is always kept.

"In business matters Her Majesty is clear and expeditious, methodical and systematic. Her mornings are generally taken up with attending to the voluminous correspondence that arrives by every post.

"Her secretary and lady in waiting submit their letters and the Queen gives instructions concerning them. She quickly grasps the main issue of a question and soon makes up her mind, and has never been known to lay aside a matter on the ground that to express an opinion thereon is irksome or difficult."

PORCELAIN POODLES.

At One Time Very Fashionable Ornaments.

The day of the china and faience poodle may be said to have been the closing years of the eighteenth century and the twenties and thirties of the last century, a period when the poodle was the favorite pet animal of the contemporary lady.

In the old English china works the dog was a sort of potter's standby, says the Queen, and hardly one firm but turned to the manufacture of this delightful ornament from Bow to Rockingham. In size they vary from about six inches down to one inch.

Commonest of poodles are the Staffordshire examples, sitting bolt upright, and very much rarer are the recumbent dogs reposing on royal blue cushions. Porcelain poodles were produced at Bow, but unlike their cousins of Rockingham, the Bow canines were lean and scraggy specimens of their race, with legs of an almost impossible thinness. They were modelled prior to the year 1776.

The finest porcelain poodles were produced at the celebrated Rockingham works, and they were manufactured between the year 1820 (or thereabouts) and the closing of the works in 1842—in fact, during the "Brameld period," when the factory was carried on by Thomas, George, Frederick and John Wager Brameld. The Rockingham works were situated at Swinton, near Rotherham, Yorkshire, on the estate of the Marquis of Rockingham. The animals themselves are nearly always plain white in color, but sometimes their bases or stands are of a rich royal blue enriched with a gilt line. Occasionally the bases are ornamented with green and gilt foliage, and still more rarely red decoration is to be found.

The Staffordshire faience poodles were intended to ornament the cottager's humble mantlepiece, not the are much more roughly modelled than their Rockingham relatives, for they drawing room of the lady of fashion, and they were retailed at the trifling sum of sixpence each, so that careful modelling and delicate glaze were not to be expected. These glazed earthenware dogs are squat in figure, with large ears, bushy tails, and a decorative note is introduced by the addition of a gilt collar with an elaborate padlock hanging from it.

China and earthenware poodles are now extensively imitated by the unscrupulous German manufacturers, but his fakes are fairly easy to detect. These Teutonic forgeries are characterized by a dead white glaze, while the Staffordshire and Rockingham specimens are coated with a creamy white glaze, which is frequently a good deal crackled.

Sprained Wrist and Ankle

After Being Laid Up With Great Pain for Ten Days, Relief Was Gained Instantly by Applying

NERVILINE

One of the most soul-distressing accidents that can befall one is a bad ankle or wrist sprain. "If I had only known of 'Nerviline earlier, I could have saved myself an enormous amount of pain, and many agonizing nights of sleeplessness." Thus writes P. P. Quinn a young farmer living near Brookville. "I tumbled from a hay loft to the barn floor and sprained my right ankle and left wrist. They swelled rapidly and caused excruciating pains. It was not convenient to go to the city, and the liniment in the house was useless. When I got Nerviline relief came quickly. It took down the swelling, relieved the pain, and gave me wonderful comfort.

TESTIMONIAL NO. 4266

"I can recommend Nerviline for strains, bruises, swellings, muscular pains, and sore back. I have proved it a sure cure in such cases."

Rev. Rhinelander Lowndes, formerly an Episcopal minister, was received into the Catholic Church recently by Bishop McDonnell of Brooklyn. The new convert will study for the priesthood. For nine years Mr. Lowndes has been in charge of Christ Church, in Bayswood, L.I., and the Church of the Messiah, in Central Islip. His entrance into the Church was, under God, the result of his friendship with the Rev. John M. Kieley, rector of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, of Brentwood, L.I.

The census of religion in Ireland, recently completed, shows that Catholics constitute 73.9 per cent. of the whole population. There are 3,238,656 Catholics and 1,134,989 Protestants. Of these latter 685,633 are in Ulster, where there are 690,134 Catholics. In 6 of the 9 countries forming the Province of Ulster Catholics are in enormous majority, but Belfast and the surrounding district give the province as a whole its Protestant majority of nearly 200,000. Five thousand one hundred and one Jews are in Ireland now, and increase of 60.9 per cent. since 1901.

We commented some weeks ago upon the decline from which the Methodist body in Great Britain has been suffering for some years past and which is giving such great concern to its adherents in Canada. This decline, according to a recent census, is not confined to the Methodists, but as a species of dry-rot, has spread to other dissenting bodies—the Baptists and Congregationalists for instance. In four years Baptist membership decreased by over sixteen thousand and as we have already pointed out, the Methodist in five years by over thirteen thousand. No wonder that, as we learn from the Tablet, non-conformists permanently dread an imperial enumeration by the State. On the other hand, their peculiar delight is an amateur census of religion which they fall back upon this year after having, through their parliamentary representatives, successfully resisted the proposal to have a column for the religious affiliation of the people in the census papers. The above figures go to show that there was method in this resistance.

In a course of a sermon delivered as retiring Moderator of the Canada Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Principal Forrest of Halifax, said: "It is not to the glory of God that we read in the Saturday evening newspapers that our pulpits are to be devoted to sanitation, hygiene, politics, and economics. And often the preacher knows very little of what he is talking about: I recently heard one of these sermons on political economy, and, as a teacher of political economy, it made me shiver. If we are not constrained higher the pulpit is in danger of following these advertised absurdities till they reach the level of absolute drivel."

The barber shops of the city will close at noon to-day.

In order to give our employees a holiday to-day, The Times will not be issued on Monday.

It is a good sign to see the Canadian General Electric Company advertise for men, as they are now doing in Toronto and Montreal papers.

At the police court yesterday three young men were charged with vagrancy and were given their liberty on their promise to appear again next Tuesday morning.

The Park street Baptist Bible school picnic will be held on July 7, per steamer Stoney Lake to Jubilee Point. Boat leaves Wolfe street wharf at 8 a.m.

Rev. F. C. Craig, the new pastor of Mark street Methodist church has arrived in the city and will occupy the pulpit to-morrow.

BRIDGENORTH

Bridgenorth, June 27.—A very pleasant evening was spent on Monday, June 26. It was the regular Epworth League evening. Miss Martin, our returned teacher had the meeting in charge. It assumed a patriotic form. The room was beautifully decorated with flags and maple leaves. The Junior League had the matter in charge, and gave some interesting historical data in reference to the Dominion. At the close, a beautiful ring set with pearls was given to Miss Carrie Crookshanks, daughter of our retiring pastor, who gave a few parting counsels to the young. Mr. Gruland, our new pastor, was also present and spoke a few words. Mr. Crookshanks and family start immediately for their new home in Thorneburg, followed by good wishes of their many friends.

THE STANDING ALIBI OF H. STANLEIGH STORME

(By Wm. Hamilton Osborne).

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd).

Just after Midnight.

CHAPTER I.

It was half past twelve on the twenty-third of May.

The tall young man with the long dark coat, a coat that enveloped him completely, reached the corner at the same instant that the electric lights went out. They went out for the same reason that lights go out on all stormy nights—a reason that few men ever knew, and these few have forgotten.

The man stood there for an instant looking up and down the street.

He may have been waiting for a car. If he was, he was disappointed in the absence of that light that is the modern guide through the moonlight. If was beautiful, no doubter, oh is the habit of street conveyances.

The young man breathed a sigh "A lovely night," he exclaimed all to himself, in a pleasant, well-modulated voice.

It didn't seem to worry him. He said it with the easy nonchalance of one who enjoys the finest of evenings.

"So much the better," he continued in the same happy frame of mind.

Nevertheless he drew his coat the closer about him and turned up the collar. Then, removing his opera hat, he shook the rain from it and replaced it upon his head.

But although the storm continued with unabated force, he did not seek shelter, but still stood upon the corner, glancing repeatedly up and down the cross streets, peering into the darkness to see what he could see, and thrusting his head forward and to one side, to hear what he could hear.

He stood thus for some four or five minutes—a long while to stand and look and listen. And he saw nothing and heard nothing.

Finally he thrust his hand into the depths of his long coat, and from the inside half pulled out a watch.

He did not look at it for two reasons, first because the rain would have ruined it; second because it was too dark to see it. Instead, he pressed a small spring. It was a repeater, and it struck the hour.

"Quarter to one," he remarked softly to himself: "I'm just in time."

"That's a good watch," he continued, "one of the best, I'll wager, in the old man's stock, and a first-class stock he carries, too—or did, up to night before last."

He laughed noiselessly to himself, and then, with an upward glance at the corner building, he moved over towards it, as though seeking shelter from the storm.

It was a bank—one of the old-fashioned kind, with a high corner stoop covered by the conventional species of portico.

Another man would have ascended this stoop and taken his stand under the portico, which furnished ample protection from the wet. But not so this man.

Instead, with unheard footsteps, he moved half way down the length of the bank on the side street and paused in front of a ground-floor window.

There were six windows on that side. He selected the third one, after examining it with care.

As was the case with all the others, this window was barred with iron bars. They also were old-fashioned, somewhat wide apart, and ran from top to bottom with no supporting plate between.

Having completed his investigation, the man in the long coat straightened up and stood with his back to the window, and once more looked about him.

It was a bad place to stand. The water from the roof poured down in a steady stream upon his head.

He never heeded it, however. After looking and listening for another instant, he merely wrapped a long scarf about his neck and drew his coat still more closely around him, and then again stooped down and—what?

No one knows! Turned up his trousers, perhaps.

If it were that, it took some time, and required considerable care.

Again he straightened up and again stod still. Not entirely, though, for he kept one heel tap-tap-tapping upon the flag beneath.

And as he tapped a rasping, grating sound became perceptible, slight, but still distinct. It came from behind him.

Once more he spoke.

"Great Scott," he exclaimed, "what a boon these new automobile heel machines have come to be. The man that makes them deserves a place along with the inventor of the typewriter and the sewing machine and the cotton gin. They do the business in no time, and do it well. I'll have to write the fellow a testimonial and have it published—over my signature and under my portrait. I will, too, if ever I—if the worst comes to the worst. I've got the nerve to do it."

But he kept on tapping. Suddenly there was a sharp whirring sound and then a loud snap.

"Number one!" he exclaimed.

Again he stooped and made another adjustment. Having done this, he once more examined the window and the bars.

As he did so a small gleam of light played around the bottom of one of the long bars. It came from a tiny incandescent lamp held in the hollow of his palm.

This new inspection seemed highly satisfactory. Again he resumed his tap-tap-tapping.

After a time there was another whir and another snap.

"Number two," he remarked in tone of delight.

Then he sprang aside.

"Great Scot!" he continued, "what's that?"

For he had indistinctly heard upon the heavy moist air the steady tramp, tramp of a man around the corner.

The man in the long coat hastily took from his pocket a small piece of putty, filled the filed crevices with it, then with a diminutive pepper shaker dusted the edges with fine lead pencil scrapings—this to restore them a metallic appearance.

Then he blew away the iron filings and noiselessly disappeared.

The watchman—for it was he—came around the corner, tried the front door, then flashed his light in turn into and upon each window.

All was well. He stood for a moment, glancing up and down, swore under his breath at the rain and the mud, shook his stick energetically at the motorman of a trolley car that thundered by—and then passed on.

Two minutes later the man in the long coat was back at his post, and the rasping sound began again. At the end of twenty minutes he breathed a sigh of relief.

"Number four!" he was able finally to announce to himself.

He had cut two bars completely through, both at the top and at the bottom. He removed them quietly and laid them gently down upon the pavement.

The window also was an old-fashioned one, consisting of two sashes with a middle catch. It would have been a simple thing to force the catch, but this man knew better.

Holding his body as a shield against the framework, he flashed his light along each edge and particularly along the middle. He then cut two small holes in the glass, and, inserting an instrument, cut a number of wires that run around the sash.

"Blamed idiots!" he muttered to himself. "These people leave their wires in plain sight. This is a cinch."

Having cut the wires, the rest was easy.

He slipped the catch, raised the lower sash and entered. From the inside he carefully replaced the bars in their former position, wedged them tight with small steel disks, filled the spaces with putty and dusted them as before.

Then he inserted the circular disks of glass where they belonged, and, dipping a brush in a small vial, he applied to the cut edges a thick, coating, colorless fluid. A bottle of this was long afterwards discovered in his dwelling.

It was found to be Canadian balsam, a fluid which, possessing the same degree of refraction as does glass itself, is capable of uniting two pieces of glass together so that the point of contact is well-nigh indistinguishable.

It is impossible to describe the deftness or skill with which this man worked—and he worked so that there were absolutely no traces of the job he left behind him.

He had just closed the window and fastened it when he was once more startled by a bright light which entered the room.

In an instant he realized that it had not yet lighted upon himself, and he threw himself face down upon the floor next to the wall. There he waited, without a sound, scarcely even breathing, until he heard the steady tramp, tramp of footsteps receding in the distance.

It was a policeman who had flashed his light upon the window. And the policeman saw nothing—nothing except the regulation iron bars and a window pane with heavy drops of rain trickling and oozing down it.

The man in the long coat jumped to his feet.

"That was a narrow escape," he

Peter K. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I went to Edmonton and experienced great hardships in my youth. I became very discouraged and didn't care what became of me or not. I imagined everybody was down on me. I was treated by many doctors, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I consulted the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have been presenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties,

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal." Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS

The promotions are based not only on the results of the Christmas, Easter and June written examinations, but also on each pupil's class work, diligence, good conduct, and regular attendance.

Pupils promoted provisionally will be liable to a "recall" unless they show a marked improvement in the subject or subjects opposite their names.

Reports of their marks will be sent only to those who have failed.

Both the Normal Entrance and the Junior Matriculation courses will henceforth require four years. Only pupils who combine close application with more than average ability will be able to pass these examinations in three years.

The reason why the change arises from the fact that the standard is being materially raised. For example, in 1910 a 40 per cent. aggregate was sufficient for the Junior Matriculation examination. This year it has been raised to 50 per cent. Next year a 60 per cent. aggregate will be necessary.

Owing to this change in organization, there will be only one examination form in the Middle School next year, and it will be known as Form IV.

FARMER COMMITS SUICIDE

George Nicholls, of Smith, Takes His Own Life By Shooting.

On Sunday afternoon a farmer named George Nicholls, residing near Selwyn, committed suicide by shooting himself with a shot gun. Mrs. Nicholls, accompanied by her daughter was engaged in milking the cows, leaving Mr. Nicholls in the house. She heard a shot, and on reaching the house was horrified to find her husband lying on the kitchen floor with a gaping wound in his side holding a gun in his hand. The alarm was given, and a doctor sent for, but he passed away in less than an hour. Deceased was only 35 years of age, and had been subject to fits of despondency and mental collapse. He leaves a wife and one child.

Splendid Day's Sport on Saturday at Chemong Park.

The third annual outing of the Prudential Insurance Company's employees was held on Saturday, July 1st, when the Superintendent, Assistant Superintendents, and agents of this district, which comprises Peterborough, Lindsay, Cobourg, Port Hope, Oshawa and Bowmanville, together with their wives or lady friends, spent the day at Chemong Park, when a long list of sports were run off, and some good prizes awarded to the winners of the different events.

This district has been in a contest with the other districts of the Eastern Canadian Division for the past nine weeks, and has succeeded in winning seven pennants out of a possible nine, which speaks well for the progress of the district.

The party, which numbered about fifty, left for Chemong in automobiles about 9 a. m. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the presence of Mr. W. H. Wilkie, Inspector for Canada, and Mr. E. W. Porter, Chief Canadian Agent.

WILL PRICE OF MILK JUMP TO 10C. A QUART IF IT MUST BE SOLD IN BOTTLES?

ALD. BULLER GIVES NOTICE OF MOTION THAT THE MILK BY-LAW BE REPEALED AT COUNCIL'S NEXT MEETING.

At the Council meeting last night, Ald. Buller gave notice that at the next regular meeting he will move that the milk by-law be repealed to permit of eliminating the "bottle" clause. The People's Candidate offered that he is advised on the best of authority that should the "bottle" clause stand good, milk dealers will raise the price of milk from 6c to 10c a quart. Such a price, contended Ald. Buller would be a hardship on the poor. Hence his notice of motion.

Right in your busiest season when you have the least time to spare you are most likely to take diarrhoea and lose several days' time, unless you have Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand and take a dose on the first appearance of the disease. For sale by all dealers.

DO YOU USE PILLS?

IF IN DOUBT ABOUT THE RIGHT PILLS TO USE READ THE FOLLOWING LETTER CAREFULLY:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak, there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating Pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c. per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

BY-LAW TO PROVIDE $24-000 FOR PARKS TO GO TO THE PEOPLE

ALSO EXEMPTION MEASURES—VOTING TO TAKE PLACE ON JULY 20TH.

The City Fathers Will Not Meet for Two Months Unless Specially Called Together by the Mayor.

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night.

There were present, Mayor Morrow and all the Aldermen in their customary places.

Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine's report [illegible] was read.

Alderman Metheral and the City Clerk were deputed to represent Council at the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association, in August.

Ald. Bradburn submitted the Finance Report, recommending payment of a number of accounts.

$24,000 WANTED FOR PARKS.

Ald. Buller submitted the following report:

Gentlemen — Your Manufactures' Committee beg leave to report and recommend that a By-law be submitted to the Electors to authorize the issue of debentures for $24,000 for purchasing land for Park purposes in the South, West and East, the debentures to bear 4½ per cent. interest and the sinking fund to be on a 4 per cent. basis.

Ald. Metheral asked for information as to the property in view for park purposes. The amount asked—$24,000.00—is so large the by-law might be turned down by the people. He was inclined to a more economic policy that might be submitted with a greater assurance of the public's approval. Perhaps, he concluded, the Committee might secure cheaper properties than those selected. He would like to know just what property the committee had options on.

To Ald. Metheral, in reply, Ald. Buller offered the following information: In the west, the committee has an option on the Chamberlain estate, on the Boundary Road, just opposite Mr. B. Morrows. In the south, the land adjoining the King Edward Park. In the east they have options on the lot at corner of Hunter and Mark streets, and on the old MacAllister and adjoining property on the river front. The option on the latter is for $9,750, but the city is [illegible] to that one. [illegible] Ald. Metheral contended that ratepayers in East City, what they [illegible] quite natural.

The report was then adopted on [illegible] by-law to authorize the [illegible] was subsequently passed. This measure will be submitted to the ratepayers on July 20th, and requires simply a majority vote to carry.

IMPROVEMENTS AT POLICE STATION.

Moved by Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the City Trust Commissioners be notified that this council approves of the plans submitted for alterations and improvements at the Police Station.—Carried.

FIREMEN'S UNIFORMS.

Ald. Morgan submitted the Fire, Water and Light Committee's report recommending that Geo. Bull be given the contract for firemen's uniforms at $345. Also that the Fire Chief and Chairman of the Committee be authorized to attend the annual convention of Fire Chiefs at Milwaukee, and that their expenses be paid.

The report was adopted as read.

$400 FOR EXHIBITION.

A by-law authorizing a grant of $400 to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition passed its three readings.

A by-law authorizing the closing of that small portion of Water street required by the Auburn Power Co., in connection with their new power house, and the conveyance of the land in question to the Company, passed its several readings.

TO GO TO PEOPLE.

A by-law to fix the assessment of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co. and that of the B. F. Ackerman-Sons, Limited, was read. This measure will be submitted to the ratepayers on July 8th, and requires three-fifths of the number of votes polled to carry.

FIRE HALL BY-LAW.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Buller that a by-law be prepared to repeal the by-law to govern the fire department passed at last meeting.

The mover and seconder took exception to the clause in this measure providing that the Chief secure the approval of the Fire, Water and Light Committee before engaging or discharging men.

Ald. Morgan explained that Chief Howard himself is perfectly satisfied that the clause in question remain in the by-law.

The motion was lost, in the following division:—

Ayes—Aldermen Buller, Bradburn, Edgar and Anderson.

Nays—Aldermen Duncan, Metheral, Graham, Brown, Kernaghan, and Morgan.

C.P.R. AGREEMENT SIGNED.

Moved by Ald. Metheral, seconded by Ald. Bradburn that the City Solicitor be instructed to agree that the C.P.R. lay a siding across Sherbrooke street.—Carried.

Mayor Morrow reported that the agreement with the C.P.R. has been signed and sealed.

The Property Committee were given power to act in the matter of having a cedar hedge planted at the south boundary of the Public Library, at a cost of $30.00.

Moved by Ald. Metheral, seconded by Ald. Bradburn that Mrs. Andrew Grant be refunded $29.60 expenses incurred by reason of faulty sewer connection with her house on Bolivar street.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Morgan that this amount be deducted from the salary of the city officials responsible for the faulty sewer construction.—Lost.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the Council adjourn until September unless otherwise called by the Mayor.—Carried.

FORTUNES CAME WITH THE IDEAS

Inventions That Have Been Worth Millions to the Men Who Owned Them

The report that an invention for printing salt has recently been sold to an American syndicate for no less than $5,000,000 once again illustrates the remarkable value of good ideas in these days of keen competition in the commercial world. We cannot, of course, all think out time and labor-saving devices which are going to bring us in a cool million, but we can keep our eyes open for useful inventions which, although they may not at the moment seem very profitable, may prove little gold-mines; for the fact should not be overlooked that enormous fortunes have been made from little things.

Simple toys, puzzles, and games, for example, proved such a success as to put thousands of dollars into the pockets of their inventors. The man who invented the tin rattle for babies realised with a quarter of a million of money, while the man who thought out the idea of the returning ball, which consisted of an ordinary rubber or wooden ball to which was attached a long elastic cord, profited to the extent of $50,000 per annum. The flipping top had a rush of popularity which enabled its inventor to live in the lap of luxury for the remainder of his life, while the more popular toy known as the "Dancing Jim Crow" is said to have yielded its patentee an annual income of upwards of $75,000.

Inventor of Postage Stamps

It is said so many people use that convenience ingeniously issued him were thumbs from the lowest hole to the top. There was none of that lightning unreeling of the laces into the neat little hooks with which the modern Russ-boot is provided. The inventor of the boot-hook, H. A. Sulpp, sold his patent outright for the sum of $250, and the purchasers are said to have made $1,250,000 out of the idea.

When Harvey Kennedy introduced the shoe-lace he made $2,500,000, and Mr. Plimpton, the inventor of the roller-skate, made a similar fortune out of his idea. Probably our readers will remember a legal action which took place some years ago, when in the course of the evidence it transpired that the inventor of the metal plates used for protecting the soles and heels of shoes from wear sold 23,000,000 plates in 1879, and in 1887 the number reached a total of 142,000,000, which realised profits of £1,150,000 for the year.

Badly Rewarded

But the inventor does not always reap such magnificent rewards for his genius. Take the case of Mr. J. Longridge, the famous engineer who invented the wire-wound gun, for instance. Longridge invented the gun in 1854, and did all in his power to place it before the authorities, but they would have nothing to do with it. Three years afterwards, however, the Ordnance Department at Woolwich, subjected one of the guns to exhaustive tests, and so satisfactory were the results that they declared that nothing could equal it for heavy ordnance. Unfortunately, the inventor died from a broken heart before this end was attained.

In all the world's history, however, there is no more startling instance of ingratitude and forgetfulness than the history of Henry Cort, a native of Gosport. He expended the whole of his private fortune of $100,000 in perfecting his inventions for puddling iron and rolling it into bars and plates. Then he was robbed of the fruits of his toil by the villainy of certain Government officials, and in the end left to starve. This was in 1784. Since that day Cort's inventions have contributed upon Great Britain an amount of wealth equivalent to $3,500,000,000, and given constant employment to about 600,000 workmen for the past three generations.

DANGEROUS EXPLOSIVES

The Great Precautions that Have to be Taken by Workmen

On the outside of the wrapping of frozen dynamite feathery crystals gather. These crystals are called "whiskers," and they are more "irritable" than dynamite itself. So touchy are they that anybody treading heavily near them is sufficient to set them off by concussion.

Cordite is another dangerous explosive, more so during its manufacture than after. Easy as it is to handle in its final form it is a favorite explosive with anarchists and bomb-throwers. It is made from a mixture of nitro-glycerine, gun-cotton, and vaseline.

The nitro-glycerine store is a most extraordinary building, buried literally under a mound and reached by a brick-lined passage through the earth.

Nitro-glycerine itself is an almost explosive liquid, and so careful are the men who handle it, that if a single drop falls on the leaden floor it is at once wiped up with a damp rag. All the water that comes from this underground building is carefully drained into a neighboring pond, and every week this is blown up by dynamite on account of the dangerous explosive matter contained in it.

Even in the manufacture of such a comparatively "harmless" explosive as gunpowder the greatest precautions have to be taken. On entering the building where the powder is being turned out, all matches, pipes, and many steel instruments have to be given up, and special boots have to be put on to prevent any grit reaching the cork leather floor of the buildings.

CAKED UDDER.

Neglected Too Often the Cause, Says Expert.

The usefulness of thousands of milch cows is damaged every year by caked udder. Prompt treatment will generally avert serious trouble, but cases of long standing are very difficult to handle. Many factors act to cause caked udder. It is commonest in heavy milkers at calving time. At that time the udder is naturally swollen and inflamed, and if it is exposed to a cold draft or bruised in any way serious trouble is likely to follow. Although commencent early in the lactation period, caked udder may occur at any time, being due to lying on cold, hard, damp ground, to bruises, to incomplete milking, to exposure to cold, occasionally to changes in food, and sometimes being due to an infectious form of the disease.

There are many forms of udder trouble, which are variously known as garget, mammitis and caked udder. In the most severe forms there is a chill, followed by a fever, and the udder becomes much swollen, red and tender; the milk decomposes into whey and bloody curd; pus forms, and the udder mortifies; it may be completely lost.

TURNING OUT COWS.

Grass Increases Milk Supply But Not Quality.

When the grass begins to grow sufficiently for the cows to graze they thrive more, as the change is highly beneficial to their health, but it has a tendency to weaken the milk. As a rule the constant supply of grass will increase the milk supply, but the quality does not rise proportionately. On the contrary, it generally drops, and attention should be given to this to prevent too much degeneration; but a good deal depends on the pastures. Where these are rich, and the supply ample, there will be no reduction of quality. Unfortunately such pastures are not the rule. Plenty are not only poor naturally, and from neglect, but grass is scant. The weather, of course, has an influence on this, and when general the supply may keep up the demand. At first there may be plenty, but it is apt to become scarce, and it is most necessary to watch the milk yield at this time.

NEW LEADER IN CLYDESDALE.

Scotland Produces a New Sire Horse.

The show season has come round once more and three important fixtures have been held in as many weeks. In the West of Scotland the season proper opens with Kilmarnock—noted for its display of Ayrshire cattle and Clydesdale horses — then comes the Ayr event which is followed by the Glasgow Agricultural Society's show. At the last named one finds a good turn out of horses, both light and heavy breeds being well represented, and while there is always a good display of Ayrshires, the other breeds, such as Shorthorns and Aberdeen Angus are also to the fore. The early shows have brought out a lot of promising young stock, but nothing really sensational has yet been seen. In the Clydesdale section one of the outstanding features has been the great success of the "pets" of the noted sire Baron of Buchlyvie. This horse stands absolutely without a rival as a breeding horse, and, although a young sire, his stock are coming to the front in a truly remarkable manner. Out by that grand old horse, Baron's Pride, he bids fair to rival his sire as a breeder.

SOME REMARKABLE INSURANCE.

Lloyds Underwriters Will Take Any Kinds of Risks.

Some remarkable underwriting business in fancy risks have been done by Lloyd's in connection with the coronation. Large insurances have been effected by traders whose interests are bound up with the coronation, and ten per cent has been paid to cover a claim should the ceremony not take place before the end of the year. In one or two cases policies have been taken out on the joint lives of the King and Queen until the end of the year, at the rate of four guineas per cent, whilst a "Royal Family" risk has been accepted, insuring the lives of the King and the Queen and their children for the same period, the premium in this instance being ten guineas per cent. A possible change of route for the coronation procession has also come within the speculative scope, though the premiums are small.

To pay a loss if there is a general election before March 31, 1912, twenty-five guineas per cent is quoted, and five per cent has been accepted to cover the payment of a claim should Mr. Lloyd George become prime minister on or before December 31 next. This risk has been written several times, but the amounts involved are not large.

The next budget has also been the basis of speculative business of this nature at Lloyd's.

The last rate quoted to pay a loss in the event of the duty on sugar being abolished was twenty guineas per cent, whilst several guineas per cent to cover a reduction in the tea duty have been taken out at twenty-five guineas per cent, the equivalent premium for coffee and cocoa being thirty-five guineas per cent. The possibility of an increase in the cost of Income is apparently considered remote, seeing that a policy for this risk can be got at twenty per cent.

By far the largest amount of speculation has, however, been done in connection with the income tax, and a rate as high as fifty guineas per cent has been charged on a policy to pay a total loss only in the event of no alteration being made in the present charges.

THE CHOICE OF DEATH.

Condemned Murderers Prefer Shooting to Hanging.

Why do condemned murderers prefer shooting in preference to hanging? Since the State of Utah passed a law giving convicts this choice, Arthur Pratt, warden of the Utah State prison, has not had one who would go to the gallows. On one occasion a murderer refused to make a choice, and the judge sentenced him to be hanged.

"Utah has a law which allows a condemned murderer to choose either hanging or shooting as a mode of dying," said Warden Pratt. "This work is done by the sheriffs of each county, but in the penitentiary yard. So far we have not had a man who has chosen hanging. Once a murderer refused to make a choice, and the judge sentenced him to be hanged. Shooting is the more humane. It is painless and instantaneous. The condemned man is led to the prison yard, seated on a chair, and, if he desires, is blindfolded. Five men armed with rifles are then marched to within ten paces of the man. Four of the rifles contain ball cartridges. The fifth has a blank shell. A target is pinned over the heart of the condemned man, all five guards take careful aim, and at a signal the volley is fired. The ordeal is over in a few moments, whereas in hanging the suspense and suffering last for many minutes."

POWDER PAPER BOOKS.

A book of powder paper is always a luxury in travelling, and one of these books, which costs but a quarter encased in a dainty linen cover or a cover of ribbon or silk, will immediately find its place among the toilet articles in the dressing bag.

Still another convenience for the traveller is a collection of small chamois lined silk or linen bags, in which to keep when not in use the coin of different countries. A tourist in these days of frequent transition will often cross the frontiers of three or four countries where different money will be needed in each place. The name of the coin should be marked on each bag, as for example, French, German, Italian, and so on. Instead of the bagful collection of five or six tiny leather purses will make a welcome gift, but these purses should all be stamped or burned with the names of the various countries which the tourist is to visit.

CANADIAN AND INVENTION.

Dr. A. Grahame Bell and the Telephone.

Canada has every reason to be proud of her brilliant student in practical science—Professor A. Grahame Bell—the inventor of the telephone, which has done so much to revolutionize the social and business world. The doctor first saw the light in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1847 and came out to Canada in 1870, where he carried on his investigations that consumated not only in the great invention with which his name is associated with, but the photophone, induction balance, and telephone probe, and (with C. A. Bell) graphophone. He has made a thorough study of the education of the deaf in recent years he has taken great interest in the laws of flight and aviation generally. This brilliant Canadian is the holder of many degrees and a member of many learned societies. His Canadian home is in Nova Scotia.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,—is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt—would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the men of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

IS YOUR MONEY IDLE?

Dormant Wealth is useless. Gold hidden in the corner cupboard is WASTING ITS TIME, just as surely as the sluggard is wasting his life. In these strenuous days of commercial activity every dollar should be made to work. ARE YOUR DOLLARS WORKING ALL THE TIME?

Of course YOU have no lazy money. But have you a bank balance that is just vegetating, making a paltry three cents interest on the dollar once in twelve months, three dollars on the hundred, thirty on the thousand?

Don't let your money ape the sluggard. Make it WORK. Opportunity is knocking at your door right now, and I am guiding Opportunity. It is worth your while reading this advertisement carefully. You cannot lose by it; you stand to gain a just deal.

Fruit Farms in British Columbia are my specialty. I have devoted many years to a close study of the soil and the climatic conditions of the Fraser River Valley. I will not handle property that is not ABSOLUTELY A. 1., no matter what the inducement may be. When you deal with W. J. KERR, LTD., you deal with a reliable firm.

If you have never been to British Columbia, you can have but a slight idea of the wonderful and steady increase in land values. The price of yesterday is doubled to-day, to-day's price will quadrupted to-morrow, for the upward movement has only just commenced. The wealth of a province is behind this steady movement.

Six years ago I sold land on the Westminster-Vancouver electric car line for $100 per acre. To-day it sells for from $2000 to $6000 an acre.

Two years ago I sold land in Peachgrove for $100 an acre. You could not buy that same land to-day for less than $2000 per acre.

I have just picked these two instances at random, but they will suffice to show you the enormous increase in values in the past. THE PROFITS OF THE PAST WILL NOT BE A CIRCUMSTANCE TO THE PROFITS OF THE FUTURE. Do you wish to share in these profits? Of course you do.

Investment in good real estate is as safe as a deposit in the Bank of England. There is no better real estate than in the Fraser River Valley.

I have the biggest list of properties in this district, and the prices at which I offer these is always a little lower than the other fellow. That is how I gained my reputation.

I am now placing a Fruit Land Subdivision on the market. This is parcelled into five-acre tracts, close to two railway lines and with splendid roads leading to the property. The Water Supply gushes up in a never-lessening stream from a well 320 feet deep, and can be piped to every house in the subdivision.

This Fruit Land is only a few miles from the city of Westminster, which boasts the greatest farmers' market in Western Canada. Here all products of the soil command a quick and remunerative sale. There is no over-supply; the coast cities are growing fast and consume a great deal more than the surrounding country now produces.

The figure at which I am placing this on the market will increase tremendously in the next few years, and in the meantime the land will pay for itself over and over again with the bumper crops it will produce. Let me send you full details of this remarkable offer. Drop me a line to-day—right now while the matter is fresh in your mind.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

HOW CANADA CARES FOR ITS NEEDY.

BY M. G. COOK.

(Copyright by Publishers Press Limited, Montreal.)

With the enormous growth of Canada in the last twenty-five years, with its increase of population, of trade, of industrial development and of municipal and individual wealth, there has been a corresponding growth of public spirit and a universal determination that Canada shall have as finely-equipped public institutions for education, moral, physical and intellectual as any in the world.

To recall some distinguished Canadian names is to associate them immediately with princely benefactions to the country. In Montreal, to take one instance only of many, there is the Royal Victoria Hospital founded eighteen years ago by the Right Hon. Lord Mount Stephen and the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal. Of magnificent building in which an implacable enemy is carried on

"It is proud of its motto expressive to save children from the paths of criminals," is the motto of the Children's Aid Society of Toronto, whose president is the Hon. J. K. MacDonald. The objects and aims of the Society are: to attend the trial of children in the police-courts, to receive complaints and investigate cases of alleged cruelty to children, to take charge of destitute children and to find good foster-homes for them. Since 1891, 17,456 cases have come under its supervision.

The Toronto Hospital for Sick Children established thirty-five years ago, is a charity which human instinct applaud to everyone who has ever known upon the sufferings of a child? Since its foundation the Hospital has treated within its walls 16,227 In-Patients and 160,949 Out-Patients. The Toronto Corporation gives $18,000 a year to it, and the citizens $2,000, and it owes an immense debt of gratitude to its Board of Governors in every way; it has an orthopaedic department which turns out all kinds of apparatus for correcting deformities, a gymnasium in which various defects are treated, and a school-room where children from four to fourteen who are well enough for lessons are taught. And on the Island is the beautiful Lakeside Home for convalescents.

LT.-COL. J. H. BURLAND,
Founder of the Royal Edward Institute.

No more terrible scourge afflicts humanity to-day than what is known as the White Plague, though since the discovery of the open-air treatment, we have ceased to look upon the disease with the eyes of hopeless resignation of former generations. There are many sanatoria for the treatment of consumption established throughout Canada, Lake Edward the Cottage Hospital at Ottawa in which Her Excellency Lady Grey is much interested, Gravenhurst, Kamloops, etc., but the Royal Edward Institute of Montreal for the study, prevention and cure of tuberculosis, takes up the crusade against this insidious enemy upon rather different lines and in what is proving to be a less expensive and more permanently effective way. The Institute was founded by Colonel Jeffrey H. Burland, and his sisters, Mrs. Henry M. Aml and Mrs. E. V. Cathagne, as a memorial to their parents, and is primarily a dispensary. Its principal work is the examination and treatment of outdoor patients who attend every morning at eleven o'clock. 773 patients have been on the visiting list during the year. Another important feature of the work is the instruction, control and care of the patients in their own homes. This is carried out by the regular visits of the Instructor and nurses. The patient in the sanatorium follows a new and strict routine of life and after a longer or shorter period is perhaps discharged as cured, and returns to exactly the same conditions which occasioned or aggravate his disease. The patient treated by the dispensary is taught how to take care of himself, learns the value of fresh air and the necessity of obedience to hygienic laws, so that his home surroundings are permanently bettered. There is no doubt that the home treatment of tuberculosis when possible, is of greater lasting benefit. Very often an incipient cause in the patient's family are discovered, and cured without difficulty. Day patients are taken on the fine glass-enclosed balconies of the Institute. Necessities of all kind, milk, eggs, medicine, etc., are supplied to the patients, and seventeen needy cases received money as well, for rent, coals, etc., during the year.

The Victorian Order of Nurses cooperate with the Royal Edward Institute to the extent of supplying and paying two nurses who visit the homes of advanced cases, find extra homes for cases needing constant attention. Owing to the work of the Institute and of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, the deaths from tuberculosis in Montreal have decreased 10 per cent in a year.

The Winnipeg General Hospital contained in 1873 and incorporated three years later, is one of the finest institutions now in Canada, and when the proposed new buildings are opened it will be equal to any hospital on this continent. During the past year, the daily average of patients in the wards was 297.7, a very high percentage for a hospital containing 325 beds. The new additions will have a capacity of 320 beds, and will enable the trustees to re-arrange the available space in the entire hospital and provide various new and essential departments. A warm regard exists in the hearts of the citizens for the Winnipeg General, and the well-known Manitoba Western Spirit has found adequate expression in the voluntary contributions by which it is mainly supported. For this reason it excels a strong and wholesome influence for charitable effort, for half of the poor. Including the 301 infants born in the institution, last year over 561 children were cared for by it. A clinic for tuberculous patients is held three times a week; some of the cases are admitted to the Hospital, the remainder are attended at their own homes. The various nationalities represented by the patients is interesting: Canadians are of course largely in the majority, then come English, Scotch, Irish, Germans, Italians, Galicians, Poles, Danes, and what seems curious a large number from Iceland.

The Margaret Scott Nursing Mission of Winnipeg does an excellent and much-needed work in the poorest homes of the City.

The official report for the year ending April, 1910, showed for 2,000 sailings of different vessels-steamships and sailing-ships—from the port of St. John, indicating an immense number of men requiring to be looked after while ashore. When we consider the enormous danger and hardship of the life of these faithful servants of our commerce, we feel how great a debt the country owes them. The Seamen's Mission of St. John, N. B., now in its eighteenth year is an inestimable benefit to the sailors visiting the port. They have the free use of reading, writing, and recreation rooms, a fine hall for entertainments, religious services, and so on. Concerts are held, vessels visited, magazines and papers sent out, paper and envelopes provided free, medicine supplied, money exchanged and received for safe keeping, etc. Special care is given to sick sailors and a few rooms in the Institute are kept for any emergency occasioned by wrecks. The work is of course undenominational and seamen dying in port are buried from the Mission attended by clergymen of their own faith. This work is well-known to passengers who cross the Ocean by Canadian lines and deserves all possible support.

The Kingston General Hospital deserves special mention, not only on account of its standing and valuable services to the community, but also because of the Strange and St. George's Medical 67th year. The main building consists of the Strange and St. George's Medical Wards for Women, and the Yates and Simpson Medical Wards for Men. The Watkins Wing contains accommodation for private and semi-private patients, and a charming ward for children. The Nickle Wing is entirely isolated and is used only for infectious diseases. The Kingston General Hospital is exceptionally fortunate in its medical staff, and in the many citizens warmly interested in its welfare.

A memorial to the distinguished Canadian statesman Sir Oliver Mowat, in the form of a tuberculosis sanatorium is shortly to be added to the Hospital.

At Lindsay, Ont., a very beautiful hospital has lately been erected by Mr. James Ross of Montreal, as a memorial to his mother.

There is less suffering from poverty in the West, but each city has its own hospital, and its own method of meeting the special needs of the community. Victoria, B. C. is justly proud of its splendid Jubilee Hospital, The Vancouver General Hospital can hold its own well among the other City hospitals, Lethbridge, Regina, Calgary, Prince Rupert—most rapidly growing and go-ahead of Western towns—all have hospitals of their own on a smaller scale, and other needed charities.

Much might be said of the splendid work done by the Christian Associations in their various branches scattered throughout Canada, and of the many Fresh Air Societies which send sick people and little city children for a country holiday—a most delightful and appealing form of charity—and a great deal of diversified philanthropy outside of anything mentioned above is of course being carried on, but enough has been said to show that a wide spread sympathy for the poor and unfortunate is finding practical expression everywhere in our land. The work that is being done is making our land better, happier and healthier. To further this plan every citizen should contribute to the support of hospitals to all that his purse can possibly afford.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gauntlet to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, [illegible] school, hospital, postoffice, [illegible] drug store, billiard hall, city hall, [illegible], bowling green, hockey shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Honna River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Honna River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our provinces, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms if taken at once, and under circumstances that will make you a 200 per cent. on your investment in 90 days. [illegible] per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by [illegible] a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantee to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Honna River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Masset Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the Islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island supplied with an illustrated edition of the resources of the Islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Hiller, 32 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

Heavines at Pit of the Stomach

A Feeling of Uneasiness Before and After Meals Is Quickly Cured With Nerviline.

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a sinking sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

The above letter comes from Mr. F. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossmith, the well known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises, gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

You'll find a hundred uses for Nerviline—it's a trusty household remedy that sells to the extent of a million bottles per year—that's the best proof that it must cure and give unlimited satisfaction. Refuse anything offered in place of Nerviline, 25c per bottle, five for $1. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Painful Injury.

While engaged in raising a barn on Mayor Morrow's farm on Friday last James Vinary, of Doure, met with a painful accident, in consequence of a beam falling on his back. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. Morgan gave him attention, and where he will be confined for a few days.

Case Held Over.

The case of the Chemong hotel proprietor, charged with a violation of the liquor law, which was to have been heard before County Magistrate Edmison yesterday, was enlarged for a week. Some witnesses who were subpoenaed failed to appear, and the case will come up again, it is expected, on July 10th.

Fire in a Waggon.

While driving with a load of furniture to Fraserville yesterday morning Mr. Gerald McFaddan had a very exciting and unpleasant experience. By some means a fire started in the waggon behind where he was sitting and as there was a breeze in the opposite direction to which he was travelling, he did not notice the blaze till his attention was called to it by a lady who came running out of a farm house on the road side. The fire had gained such headway that it was with difficulty the waggon was saved, the furniture being destroyed. During the effort to extinguish the fire Mr. McFaddan had the misfortune to burn his hands quite painfully. It is supposed that the fire originated through a match in the bottom of the rig, on which Mr. McFaddan must have stepped.

Great Pictures at Princess.

An interesting series of moving pictures is being shown at the Princess Theatre to-day and to-morrow in the shape of a panoramic journey through London, showing the different preparations for the Coronation procession, the buildings by which the parade passed and the seats built up ready for the accommodation of the hundreds of thousands of spectators. The picture also shows the Canadian troops arriving at Liverpool, showing views of them on the boat and in the parade at Liverpool. The Indian troops on their arrival at London and their camp are also part of the picture. The Boy Scouts play a prominent part as well. Pictures of the great Coronation procession will be shown at the Royal theatre on Thursday, two weeks after the event itself. The film was shipped immediately after the event and it speaks well for the enterprise of the management that the pictures will be here on view in such a short time.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. BOARD MUST HAVE DESIRABLE SITES FOR NEW SCHOOLS

MAY FIND IT NECESSARY TO EXPROPRIATE.

Need Must be Paid to Future Extensions as Population Grows—Five Acres of Land Necessary for an Up-to-date Building Allowing for the Needs of Following Generations.

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last night, Dr. Morrison submitted the following report:—

Gentlemen:—Your Committee beg to report that the plans for a new school for the East and West Wards are nearing completion and will be submitted for the approval of the Board in a very short time.

Regarding sites, your Committee selected a site in the East Ward on the north east corner of Concession and Hunter Streets, owned by the Armour Estate. We had the Solicitor negotiate regarding the purchase of the same, but the Trustees of the Estate refused to set a price, so the Committee made them an offer of $600.00 per acre, for 4 or 5 acres, which they declined to accept, as per the Solicitor's letter appended hereto.

We would therefore recommend that the Board take some action regarding the expropriation of the property for School purposes.

Regarding a site for the West Ward negotiations are still under way, and we hope to secure a site both centrally located and of sufficient area, within a very short time.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

Dr. Morrison explained that while the present school site in the east ward is desirable in many ways, still to furnish even an acre of playground would involve the expenditure of much money in the absorption of adjoining lots upon which buildings stand. Hence the need of a new site, and that on the corner of Concession and Hunter streets is the only desirable property in sight. The Committee have in contemplation the erection of an 8-room school for East City, with provision for subsequent extension to 12 rooms. Five acres of land is desirable for this purpose, allowing for adequate play grounds, and future extensions.

Mr. Hill endorsed the report, and concurred in Dr. Morrison's views. And he offered that the proper action to be taken by the Board is to immediately institute steps to expropriate the Armour estate at the corner of Hunter and Concession Streets.

Dr. Morrison thought it would be well for the whole Board to inspect this property before taking action in the direction suggested by Mr. Hill.

This view was entered into by the Board, who will visit the property in question in the near future.

Moved by W. H. Hill, seconded by Dr. Morrison, that a special meeting of the Board be called for an early date, that the members may visit the Armour property and that in West Peterboro.—Carried.

NEW TEACHERS APPOINTED IN PLACE OF THOSE RESIGNED

2nd. That Miss Alberta Reid of Greenbank be appointed on the Public School staff to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Carey, salary to be according to schedule, and duties to start 5th September next.

3rd. That Mr. C. E. Jamieson of the St. Catharines Collegiate Institute, be appointed on the Collegiate Institute staff, to succeed Mr. E. C. Scrigley, who has resigned, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 5th September next.

4th. That Miss Marion R. Rannie be appointed Musical Instructor to succeed Miss Davies who has resigned, salary to be according to schedule, and duties to start 5th September next.

5th. That the annual increase in the salaries in the Specialist class of the Collegiate Institute be $75.00, instead of $50.00 as at present, there by reaching the maximum in 4 years instead of 6. This amendment does not apply to the Junior Department.

6th. Your Committee recommend that in future the salaries of the Teachers be paid on the 1st of each month, instead of the 15th, as heretofore.

The report was adopted as read.

Moved by W. H. Hill, seconded by Adams that By-law No. 30 be amended by striking out the word "fifteenth" in the second line and inserting the word "First" in place thereof.—Carried.

This refers to Clause 6 of the foregoing report.

THE WILD WEST SHOW.

Cowboys One of the Features of This Great Aggregation.

Each year at Cheyenne, Wyo., a celebration is given by the cowboys which they call "Pioneer's Day." Cowboys come from all parts of the West to contest with each other in riding outlaw horses, roping steers, and other hazardous pastimes familiar to the great plains. A horse known as "Old Steamboat" has been the star performer at Cheyenne among the outlaws for the past five years. "Old Steamboat" succeeded in throwing all comers until Buffalo Vernon tried issues with him. Vernon succeeded in staying on the back of the famous outlaw, but he requires the attention of several surgeons after his experience with 'Old Steamboat'. Buffalo Vernon is the star attraction hunter with the Young Buffalo Wild West show which will exhibit in this city Saturday afternoon and night, July 8th. There are 50 other cowboys with the aggregation, numbering among them Ambrose Hume, the dare-devil American, who, with the Buffalo Jones expedition, went into the heart of East Africa on the famous bloodless hunting trip. It was Means who actually cast the harist that captured lions, tigers, rhinoceri, and other denizens of the African veldt, a deed of daring that has no parallel in all history. Annie Oakley, the world famous lady rifle shot, is another star of the Young Buffalo Wild West show, who has, by her feats of skill, won international fame. Capt. Bogardus, Capt. Stevens, and Curtis Liston form a trio of marksmen the like of which has never before been gathered together with any tented amusement enterprise. There are upwards of 700 cowboys, cowgirls, Indian chiefs and warriors, Russian Cossacks, Mexican rurallies, and harist throwers, Northwestern Canadian mounted police, U. S. cavalrymen and rough riders from all parts of the world with this mighty monarch of the west. A big free street parade will be given at 10.00 on the morning of the exhibition. Colonel Vernon Severs, the general manager of this big amusement institution claims that this street demonstration is the most elaborate, novel, and spectacular affair ever open with any similar exhibition. One of the big features of the parade is Col. Stewart and his 20 ox-teams.

MIXED MARRIAGE LED TO SEPARATION

SHOOTING AFFAIR ON SATURDAY WAS INDIRECTLY DUE TO RELIGIOUS DIFFERENCES.

Woman Left a Doctor—He Tried to Reach Her, and Her Uncle Shot One of Party in the Back.

Cornwall, July 4.—The separation of Mrs. McGee from her husband, Dr. McGee, which resulted in a shooting affray, on Saturday afternoon, was due to religious differences, and some people are already blaming the Pope's Ne Temere marriage decree.

Mrs. McGee was formerly a nurse at Ottawa. Her maiden name is McRae. She was a Roman Catholic, but left her Church and joined the Methodist faith when she married Dr. McGee three years ago. Her parents objected, and several times endeavored to have her leave her husband and return to her Church. This she did a couple of months ago, while Dr. McGee was in Ottawa attending the horse show.

On Saturday Dr. McGee got an Ottawa friend named Thompkins to take out his automobile, and with William Shaw, a drug clerk employed by McGee in his store at Carp, went to recover his wife. The shot is alleged to have been fired by Farquhar McRae, an uncle of the woman. Thompkins returned with his auto yesterday. There is a bullet hole through the back of the seat, where Shaw was sitting.

Farquhar McRae, who is confined in the Cornwall jail for the shooting of Shaw at Bridge End, has been remanded until Friday morning. It is probable that the hearing will take place at the Court House, as the quarters at the police station are not overly large, and it is doubtful if they would hold those who would be represented. Shaw is holding his own at the hospital, and there is a probability that he will recover.

Mr. R. A. Pringle, K. C., has been retained by the defence and the prosecution will be conducted by the Crown.

Lindsay, July 4.—John B. T. Chilton of Ingersoll, has been appointed chief of police for this town, duties to commence at once. There were a large number of applicants.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. HULL MAY PROHIBIT ORANGE CELEBRATION

Catholic Societies Petitioning Against It—Mayor and Dr. Sproule

Ottawa, July 4.—Before the Hull City Council were petitions asking that the Orange celebrations planned for July 12th be stopped. These were from the Cercle Reboule, Catholic Order of Foresters, St. Joseph's Union, L'Alliance Nationale, Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, and the Catholic School Commissioners.

The Mayor wrote Dr. Sproule saying that trouble would likely arise, and the doctor denied the imputation and said he had no power to direct the Orange lodges in their selection of a place to celebrate. He asserted the Mayor if there was no interference the Orangemen would cause no trouble.

THE SCHOOL BOARD TO TAKE A HOLIDAY

WILL NOT MEET FOR REGULAR BUSINESS UNTIL FIRST MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER.

Chairman John Crane Censures Trustees for Late Attendance—Hopes For Punctuality in This Respect After Summer Vacation.

The Board of Education met last night. There were present Chairman John Crane, and Trustees Col. Miller, R. Fair, T. H. Adams, W. H. Hill, Dr. Morrison.

The schedule time of the Board for meeting is 7.45, but the business was delayed until 8.20 last evening, waiting for sufficient members to put in an appearance to constitute a quorum. Chairman John Crane, in opening the proceedings, remarked that the habitual late attendance of some members of the Board was a matter of regret, and he hoped that in future all Trustees would put in an appearance punctually at 7.45, to permit of the business being transacted in a proper manner and with that despatch for which the School Board had in past years enjoyed an enviable record.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE"
SO HARSH AND DRASTIC ARE MANY PILLS AS TO SERIOUSLY INJURE HEALTH.
In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.
"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."
For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrh ozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

YELLING MANIAC IN A CHURCH

SCREAMING AND EXHIBITING BLEEDING WOUNDS TO HORRIFIED CONGREGATION.

Fought the Attendants—A Dozen Wounds on His Breast Formed the Sign of the Cross. Fought Like a Tiger.

New York, July 4.—In the most solemn moment of the high mass celebrated at the Church of the Transfiguration, there came suddenly the screams and cries of a maniac. Wild-eyed, gesticulating, he stood in the aisle, and as all turned to look, the man tore away his shirt at the breast.

A thrill of horror went through the congregation. Formed by a dozen bleeding wounds over the man's heart was the sign of the cross. He pointed to the shocking laceration, each angry leader, then before. Ushers attempted to lead him from the church, but he yelled defiance to them. He was a Frenchman and his words all came in his native tongue. Women were so frightened that several screamed and many fled from the church.

The priest on the altar stopped in the celebration of the mass and spoke words that calmed the congregation. Father Maguire from the vestry issued orders to the ushers to use force in ejecting the man. He was small, but agile, and despite the loss of blood from the wounds on his breast, fought with tiger-like strength. Four ushers were bulleted around as if they were four children. Policemen Thomas and Kunzweiler arrived from the Lorimer street station in time to prevent the little Frenchman from attacking other members of the congregation. He fought the policemen and before he was subdued the clothing had actually been torn in shreds from his back.

When finally he was in the police station an ambulance was called from the Eastern District Hospital. Dr. Gurton, the ambulance surgeon, found that the wounds on the man's breast were not very deep or serious. When asked how he came by the stab wounds the cattle man—directed in French: "I mutilated myself in propitiation for the sins of my temperament." After his wounds had been dressed he was taken to the King's County Hospital and placed in the observation ward.

INFANT MORTALITY IS AWFUL IN MONTREAL

OVER A HUNDRED BABIES UNDER A YEAR OLD DIE IN MONTREAL.

Montreal, July 4.—A number of factories closed down yesterday owing to the heat, which reached 94.2 degrees. Of the children who died one hundred and fifty-one were under one year.

Hydrant Inspector Dead.

Ottawa, July 4.—As a result of the intense heat, Matthew MacMahon hydrant inspector of the city, died yesterday. A Dominion policeman found him lying unconscious on Lover's Walk, below Parliament Hill, and he could not be revived. The thermometer reached 95. Little business was done.

Prayers for Rain.

London, Ont., July 4.—The official temperature this afternoon was 101, but many downtown thermometers registered 108. Drought threatens to kill the raspberries, while wheat and other grains have already suffered much.

The worst drought since 1859, according to records, is reported from the vicinity of Glencoe and Appin, where special prayers are being offered in the churches for rain. All day Sunday the farmers carried water to the burned crops, their wives and daughters assisting in the work. Apples, plums, and peaches are falling from the trees for want of rain, and unless it is forthcoming soon serious shortages in crops may result.

Factories Closed.

St. Catharines, July 4.—All the moulding departments in the different factories closed down owing to the intense heat. The thermometer's highest record was 98 in the shade. Business was at a standstill. Peter Charles Lefford died suddenly at Pt. Dalhousie from heart failure, brought on by the excessive heat.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

THE SWANKER'S JOB

The old lady seemed to have something on her mind, and she let go when her daughter's young man called. "Mr. Simpson," she began impressively, "a friend of mine informs me that you are employed by a firm of pork butchers."

"Yes—that is so," faltered the young man.

"And," went on the old lady, trembling with indignation, "you led Mary Ann me to believe you were a confectioner."

"Well," replied the detected swanker, "so I am, in a kind of way. You see, I put the tights on the sausages."

TOOTHPICK OR MATCH?

Coroner's Jury Heard Evidence in Powder House Explosion

"You ought to be sent to jail," said the Crown Attorney to a witness who told the Coroner's jury which inquired into the explosion at the Blaster's Brkind Powder Works at Sandpoint, Ont., that he had seen an employe go... ...and the powder house with a match behind his ear. The witness who saw the match said it was used as a toothpick. Then the Crown Attorney grew wrathy and told him he should be sent to jail for trifling away the time of the jury.

Finally the jury returned a verdict that the explosion was due to unknown causes. They also advised greater precautions for the safety of employes, recommending that the plant be prohibited until better protection of human life was inaugurated.

PASTOR POORLY PAID

Went Behind $600 in Couple of Years

Rev. W. M. Lee, of Dunnville, asked the Hamilton Presbytery to allow him to accept a call to Pettypiece, Man. Couldn't keep the wolf from the door on the salary paid him at Dunnville, he said.

"I had $200 when I went there a couple of years ago, and I leave $150 in debt. There is nothing else for me to do. In four years I have not spent a hundred dollars on myself," said Mr. Lee.

The members of the Presbytery made some rather cutting statements with respect to the Dunnville congregation. Sir Thomas Taylor remarked that 25 years ago the Dunnville congregation paid a salary of $1,200 a year and free manse. Now they pay much less and provide no manse. It was a disgrace, he said.

Action will be taken later.

TWO VICTIMS OF A FIRE

Invalid and Nurse Lost Lives in Rawdon Township

Mrs. Patrick Cain, and her step daughter, Ellen Maloney, lost their lives in a fire at their late home in Rawdon township, Hastings County. Mrs. Cain had been ill in bed, and one morning her husband, Patrick Cain, went off to the post office at Minto to get his mail. The disaster occurred during his absence. Ellen Maloney apparently had been waiting on Mrs. Cain when the fire originated in the kitchen. She was found lying at the foot of the stairs leading from the parlor above. The victims were not dead when found, but they died shortly after being removed, without recovering consciousness. The farm house was practically destroyed.

FACTS ABOUT FOWLS

To pluck a fowl speedily, place it in boiling water for a few minutes. When you remove it you will find a good many feathers have come off, and the rest will yield to a very light plucking.

If you are uncertain as to the age of a fowl, partly steam or boil it in a little water for about an hour before browning it in the oven, and it will be as tender as a young chicken.

WHAT A MARBLE WILL DO

Everybody knows that a marble placed in a kettle will prevent fur collecting round the inside, but few people know that a large clean marble, say a glass alley, boiled in milk, porridge, custard, or sauce, will automatically stir the liquid as it cooks. This prevents any chance of the liquid burning, and saves you the trouble of constant stirring, besides giving you both hands free to attend to your other duties.

CONVICTS MAKE FURNITURE

Central Prison Inmates Will Thus be Kept From Idleness

Now that all the prison labor contracts have expired the Ontario Government is confronted with the problem of keeping the prisoners at the Central Prison employed, and in order to do away with idleness and the evils which naturally follow when several hundred men are kept in prison doing nothing, all these prisoners who have to remain at the Central Prison have been put to work making furniture, several excellent samples of which have been sent to the Parliament Buildings for inspection.

At the new Central Prison at Guelph several hundred men are employed in building operations, but those who have to remain in Toronto, until the completion of the new buildings, will make furniture. The samples which have been sent to the Buildings for inspection compare very favorably with any furniture which could be purchased in any store. The prisoners will make desks, chairs, tables, filing cabinets and other furniture, which will be placed in the various public institutions in the province, as well as the new Central Prison at Guelph.

LATE FOR BREAKFAST

How to Deal with Children Who Won't Get Up

Little children are nearly always eager to get up early in the morning; but older boys and girls often give a great deal of trouble by being late for breakfast.

It is not good for any child to tumble out of bed, huddle on his clothes anyhow, snatch a mouthful of breakfast, and rush away to school. If a boy does this, he will probably be upset and flustered for the whole day, and his lessons will suffer considerably.

School boys and girls need a great deal of sleep, for they work hard both with their bodies and brains. But this sleep should be obtained at the evening end of the night, not at the morning one, if it is to do any real good.

It is not much use to scold children, or to give them a cold breakfast; but it is most important that they should be got up in good time.

SILAGE GOOD FOR SHEEP.

Experiments Prove That Silage Has Almost Advantage Over Roots as Economical Food.

The Dominion Experimental Farms is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in silage feed.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, seventy-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The varieties of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. If convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in summer, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by ploughing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is an item to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made by the Ontario college at Guelph, Ont., that time the classes have grown by per every year, so that the present enrollment is nearly 1,000 with an additional 400 at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

NOVEL ATHLETIC MACHINE.

How Invention to Test Runners as They Run Around the Track.

A novel invention in the shape of an apparatus for automatically taking measurements of the work of track athletes at all points in a race has just been installed on the running track in the Robinson gymnasium, Kansas University.

The machine, which is the first of its kind, and the invention of Dr. Naismith, director of physical culture, consists of small bamboo sticks, located along the track so as to divide the course into quarters.

The sticks project over the track and are touched by the breast of the runner as he passes. The bamboos are connected to a make-and-break electrical machine, which transmits the touch of the runner to a kymograph, which holds a lampblacked paper on which marks are made. A clock is used in connection with the kymograph for purposes of timing.

THE FIRST MENU CARD.

Started By a Duke in Brunswick in 1841.

At a dinner given by Duke Henry of Brunswick in 1841 he was seen to every now and then consult a long slip of paper, which reposed at the side of his plate. One of the duke's guests asked what the paper was for. He explained that it was a sort of a programme or catalogue of the dishes he had commanded from the cook. "To the intent that if some deficiency which especially appealed to his appetite were marked for a later stage in the repast, he might carefully reserve his appetite for it." The simplicity and utility of the idea at once took the fancy of the duke and the menu card from that moment became an institution. The new fashion was so much admired it travelled far and near, and was adopted in England and France at once.

Case Held Over.

The case of the Chemong hotel proprietor, charged with a violation of the liquor law, which was to have been heard before County Magistrate Edmonson yesterday, was enlarged for a week. Some witnesses who were subpoenaed failed to appear, and the case will come up again, it is expected, on July 10th.

Customs' Receipts.

Peterborough's customs returns still continue to show an increase. For June, 1911, the local receipts were $36,629.87, while for the same month last year they were $32,561.11, an increase of $3,068.76.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,—is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt—would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the men of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

IS YOUR MONEY IDLE?

Dormant Wealth is useless. Gold hidden in the corner cupboard is WASTING ITS TIME, just as surely as the sluggard is wasting his life. In these strenuous days of commercial activity every dollar should be made to work. ARE YOUR DOLLARS WORKING ALL THE TIME?

Of course YOU have no lazy money. But have you a bank balance that is just vegetating, making a paltry three cents interest on the dollar once in twelve months, three dollars on the hundred, thirty on the thousand?

Don't let your money ape the sluggard. Make it WORK. Opportunity is knocking at your door right now, and I am guiding Opportunity. It is worth your while reading this advertisement carefully. You cannot lose by it; you stand to gain a just deal.

Fruit Farms in British Columbia are my specialty. I have devoted many years to a close study of the soil and the climatic conditions of the Fraser River Valley. I will not handle property that is not ABSOLUTELY A. 1., no matter what the inducement may be. When you deal with W. J. KERR, LTD., you deal with a reliable firm.

If you have never been to British Columbia, you can have but a slight idea of the wonderful and steady increase in land values. The price of yesterday is doubled to-day, to-day's price will quadrupted to-morrow, for the upward movement has only just commenced. The wealth of a province is behind this steady movement.

Six years ago I sold land on the Westminster-Vancouver electric car line for $100 per acre. To-day it sells for from $2000 to $6000 an acre.

Two years ago I sold land in Peachgrove for $100 an acre. You could not buy that same land to-day for less than $2000 per acre.

I have just picked these two instances at random, but they will suffice to show you the enormous increase in values in the past. THE PROFITS OF THE PAST WILL NOT BE A CIRCUMSTANCE TO THE PROFITS OF THE FUTURE. Do you wish to share in these profits? Of course you do.

Investment in good real estate is as safe as a deposit in the Bank of England. There is no better real estate than in the Fraser River Valley.

I have the biggest list of properties in this district, and the prices at which I offer these is always a little lower than the other fellow. That is how I gained my reputation.

I am now placing a Fruit Land Subdivision on the market. This is parcelled into five-acre tracts, close to two railway lines and with splendid roads leading to the property. The Water Supply gushes up in a never-lessening stream from a well 320 feet deep, and can be piped to every house in the subdivision.

This Fruit Land is only a few miles from the city of Westminster, which boasts the greatest farmers' market in Western Canada. Here all products of the soil command a quick and remunerative sale. There is no over-supply; the coast cities are growing fast and consume a great deal more than the surrounding country now produces.

The figure at which I am placing this on the market will increase tremendously in the next few years, and in the meantime the land will pay for itself over and over again with the bumper crops it will produce. Let me send you full details of this remarkable offer. Do it now—fine to-day—right now while the matter is fresh in your mind.

THE STANDING ALIBI OF H. STANLEIGH STORME

(By Wm. Hamilton Osborne).

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

"Miss Dumont," said the maid.

The girl looked up. The maid handed her the card. She took it and read it with a little cry of delight.

Then she looked at her watch.

"Dear me," she exclaimed, "I have been dreaming here for an hour."

Then, as any other woman would have done, she rose and surveyed herself in the glass.

And I look like a perfect fright," she continued, albeit with a considerable perversion of the truth.

She turned to the maid.

"Dear me," she exclaimed, "run downstairs and tell Mr. Storme to remove his coat."

The maid smiled.

"He did so," she replied.

"Well, then tell him to walk into the library," went on the girl.

The maid smiled again.

"He is already there," she returned, "and standing by the fire."

The maid spoke truth. The man, without hesitation and yet with a nicety of embarrassment, took upon his entrance, removed his coat and hung it up.

Then he sauntered slowly into the little room just off the hall. Late in the spring though it was, there was a fire burning, and it felt good to him after all the damp and cold outside.

"Jove, what a night!" he said to himself as he shivered and held his hands towards the fire, which blazed up at this juncture, as though in an effort to meet him half way, "a bad night to be outdoors—a good night to be in."

He glanced carelessly about him. On a table was an evening newspaper. It had not been read apparently. It lay unfolded, face uppermost, its black headlines blinking at him in the uncertain light. And this was what he read—what he could not help reading:

RICHARDS & RIPLE ROBBED.

Their Jewelry Store Cleaned Out. Fourth Burglary of the Series. The Gang Still Unapprehended

And as he read he smiled. "Those fellows seem to keep it up," he said to himself.

He took a step towards the paper and stretched forth his hand. And then he shook his head.

"I had better not, after all," he mused. "I shall stick to the enforced rule. And yet," he continued, "why not? Why not? That's the strangest part of all. Why not?"

His hand touched the paper, but he withdrew it and turned his back upon the sheet and his face towards the fire.

"It's better not," he said again, half shivering as he spoke. "Why not? Because warmth and food and raiment are far ahead of cold and rags and hunger. I've made my bed. It's a soft one—too comfortable, perhaps, from one point of view; and I prefer to lie upon it—except," he added, and a cloud rested upon his face, "except when I think of—Helen."

He rested one shoulder against the fireplace and nervously stroked a short Van Dyke beard.

"When I think of—Helen," he repeated. Then he laughed gently, but with a trace of bitterness—it was a laugh that did not ring altogether true. "When do I not think of her?"

He frowned and tugged at his moustache.

"This—this cannot go on as it is. I must tell her—something. I've got to tell her. Not everything, but part of it — enough to make her understand somehow, before I — before it goes too far. I must tell her—something."

He stood reflectively before the fire, with his head bent and his hands thrust deep into his pockets.

He was trying to find some way out of his difficulty, whatever it might have been. He was disappointed.

"By Jove," exclaimed, "it looks like No Thoroughfare, after all."

He did not hear the girl descend the stairs and step lightly into the room. She stood at the threshold for a moment and glanced at him with a smile upon her face.

"Stanleigh," she finally exclaimed.

The man turned like a shot.

"Helen," he returned, "it is you."

She was looking at his face.

"Stanleigh!" she exclaimed once more.

He slightly shook his head.

"Would you mind," he began, "would you mind calling me by my my—first name?"

She laughed.

"Your first name," she returned, "your first name, Mr. Storme? And do I not?"

He handed her a card.

"Read it," he requested.

She did so, aloud.

"H. Stanleigh Storme" was what it said.

She took up at him inquiringly.

"My first name" he went on, "is—Henry. I—I—like it better."

She glanced at him in surprised fear.

"But — but Stanleigh is so much prettier," she insisted with a protesting blush, "I like it so much better."

He smiled indulgently.

"I know," he returned, "but there is a reason in my suggestion Does it signify, after all?"

She made a slight grimace. "No—Henry, it does not," she said with a laugh.

He bowed gravely.

"Thanks," he replied, "some time I will explain."

"Dear me," she exclaimed, "these robberies — they still go on. I read all this stuff through this morning. But isn't it awful? And they say that there is a lot that never get into the papers at all—the police are afraid of popular opinion and are trying to suppress the news."

The man looked at her. He seemed either deaf to her remarks or bored by them.

He had unconsciously returned to the line of thought that she had interrupted. She glanced at him again and started.

"What—what's the matter?" she inquired, gently laying her hand upon his arm.

He started in his turn.

"Helen," he replied, looking her full in the face, "there—there is something that I've got to tell you. I—I must tell you."

She looked up into his eyes. What she read there to her was well worth reading.

"You—you love me!" she murmured, lowering her glance.

He stretched forth his arms and then withdrew them. "Yes," he replied in a tense, strained voice, "I love you. You know it, then?"

She nodded, still with downcast eyes. "I have known it all along," she said, "and I—"

"Helen!" exclaimed the man, in a voice full of agonized entreaty, "wait until you have heard—the rest."

She glanced at him in a startled sort of way. "The—the rest?" she inquired. "Can there—can there be more to say?"

"Everything!" he responded, in a low voice.

She searched his face again.

"What else can signify?" she asked. "Now that—"

Again he stretched forth his arms—and again withdrew them. "To me," he replied, "nothing, unless—it can to you."

She shook her head and laughed gaily.

"It cannot to me—of that I am sure."

She seated herself. He took a chair at her side.

"What is this—something that you have to tell me, then?" she asked. "Is there—another girl? Somebody else, perhaps?"

Even as she said it she smiled again.

"No," returned he, nothing of the kind."

She picked up the paper. "You—you haven't been doing wrong, have you?" she asked again. Robbed jewellery stores or anything of that kind?"

She waved the sheet carelessly before him. He took it, rose to his feet and, without a word of explanation, dropped it gently in the fire.

It blazed up and made the room suddenly light. He watched the flame turn up and die away, and then he turned to her.

AN AMBIGUOUS EXPLANATION.

"Little girl," the caller resumed, and his face grew pale, "did you ever think—can you realize—just what it means to starve and freeze, to wander about the streets of a great city with no place to lay your head? To go without food for days, to shiver with the cold for weeks together? To seek for honest work day after day, without cleanliness and conscience, a tramp and a vagabond upon the face of the earth? Do you know what that means?"

She shook her head.

"Why do you ask?" she demanded.

"Because," he replied, with a ring of bitterness in his voice, "I know; I have realized it I—I have been through it. It's a part, a gruesome part of my life's history."

She started up and looked at him in doubt.

"You!" she exclaimed. "You—H. Stanleigh Storme?"

He nodded.

"Yes—I," he replied, "of whom, when people see me on the street they say: 'There goes Storme—the man without a care, who only lives for life and pleasure. I have starved and frozen—well-nigh to death."

She gave a wild, inarticulate cry and hurried to his side. He noted her expression and was glad.

But he held out his hand.

"Not yet—not yet," he exclaimed. "I have but begun—wait until I finish."

"I know," he went on, "that all this does not signify. I know that to-day, instead of living in luxury as I almost do, I were in rags, that it would not affect, by one jot or tittle, your feelings towards me. Believe me as you do."

She sank back into her chair with a sigh of relief. She knew not what she was understood.

He went on.

CANADIAN CHEESE IN ENGLAND.

Stocks Low But Good Outlook for Coming Season.

It is reported on the London market that there is a satisfactory outlook for Canadian cheese for the coming season. Advices received by the British shippers indicate that the cows have wintered well, being in an improved condition compared with last spring. Hardly sufficient cheese remained to supply local requirements in the Dominion, and new fodder may be utilized to supply the deficiency. Fair quantities of Canadian fodder make are expected to arrive in Britain in the latter half of May and in June. The bacon trade has not been quite so encouraging as the cheese department, so far as prices go. Lately values have been on the down grade, whilst it has been difficult to make a clearance, even at lower prices. The prices have proved unremunerative to the importers owing to the heavy cost of raw material. For some time the remailers have been making but little profit, and there is a great reluctance to indulge in extensive speculations. More bacon is on the market at present than can be easily disposed of. So far the arrivals from Canada, Russia, and Denmark have been heavier than was the case last year. Bacon is also plentiful in the United States but this is chiefly of heavy weights, unsuitable for the British markets. There should be an improved demand later on, when London is full of visitors for the June Coronation festivities.

Stock of Cheese.

The stock of Canadian cheese in London recently was larger than was the case at the corresponding period last year, but there is now a decrease; there is a scarcity of September make and under-priced kinds. The output of cheese in New Zealand this season has been interrupted, owing to the adverse weather conditions; the consignments received on this side were fully seven per cent below the previous season's shipments. This may be an important factor in influencing the trend of prices realized for the Canadian and other importations. This year has seen an increase in the quantity of cheese imported from the United States.

THE BOY ON THE FARM.

Kindness Does More Than Harshness for Future Farmer.

There is the making of a good man in the boy on the farm, but he can be irretrievably spoiled in the making. If too much is put upon him; if his shoulders are loaded with blame for everything that goes wrong indoors and out; if everybody feels privileged to give him orders, and if he is regarded as a mere machine without muscles to tire, sensibilities to wound, intellect to stimulate, or a soul to inspire with longings for better things. Those into whose hands are committed these youths ordained to eat their bread in the sweat of their faces, have a responsibility above that of merely providing food, shelter and clothing. An employer may be harboring an angel unawares, and whether this be true or not, there is laid upon him the duty of dealing justly and conscientiously with the lad.

A VALUABLE APPLE TREE.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Offered for One Tree.

Thirty thousand dollars was the sum recently offered an eastern Washington nursery company for an apple tree located near Lake Chelan. The proffer was made by a syndicate which desired to propagate the tree. It was turned down by the nursery company, which will develop the fruit itself.

The tree is twenty years old and is called the Chelan. The fruit is golden yellow and is said to be different from that of any other apple grown in Washington. It is also said to possess exceptional keeping qualities, a test having been kept in storage in Spokane for two years without any marked deterioration.

Twenty years ago, the story runs, an Indian planted a handful of apple seeds, three of which grew. The fruit of only one of the trees was good for anything. The tree is now of great size and a profitable bearer. Last year at the national apple show at Spokane fruit from the tree took first prize for new varieties of apples.

THE KING'S THRONE.

Hard to Say Which is the Real Throne.

The King may be said to have a suite of thrones—or shall we say a set of "occasional thrones?"—on each of which he probably sits at least once. Certainly he only sits on a single occasion upon one of them—that in the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey—the worm-eaten, battered, lion-footed old oak settee which contains the Stone of Destiny, and upon which all the King's predecessors since Edward II. have been crowned. That chair might, perhaps, claim to be the throne of the Empire, as it is infinitely the most ancient, and inasmuch as the King must sit upon it to be crowned.

It is not at all likely that the King would sit upon it often, even if it were in his "ain ingle-nook," because it is an extremely uncomfortable chair. It stands, year in and year out, in the chapel of Edward the Confessor, where it was first placed by Edward I., and it is only removed for the Coronation, when, covered with gold brocade, it is set under the lantern, between the choir and the altar.

Probably the throne most familiar to the public is the great creation which stands upon a dais in the House of Lords. It is often mentioned in the newspapers quite apart from the opening of Parliament—the only occasion upon which it is actually used as a seat. Often a phrase like "this country," "Mr. John Smith, who is greatly interested in this bill," listened to the debate from the steps of the throne." A beautiful rail separates this "Royal seat of Kings" from the faithful peers.

BRITISH STANDARD BEARER.

Lieutenant Harrison, the tallest officer in the British Army, will carry the standard of the Royal Horse Guards Blue in the Coronation procession. The standard was presented to the Blues by King William on August 13th, 1831, Queen Adelaide's birthday. The last time it was carried was the first Jubilee of Queen Victoria, when the Queen went from Slough to Windsor.

AFRICANS LIKE UNIFORMS.

Much money is made out of cast-off police uniforms. Quantities are bought by African traders and exported to various parts of the "Dark Continent," where they are exchanged for palm-oil, ivory, skins, and other merchandise. It is by no means an uncommon sight to see a swarthy savage dressed in the uniform of a policeman, and wearing the regulation helmet of the force.

Stories of the Prince of Wales.

Many quaint and amusing anecdotes are related of the Prince of Wales as a small child, one being that he and his sister and brothers were invited out to tea at some Court lady's house, and when the hour for departure came he could nowhere be found to say good-bye to his hostess.

On investigation it was discovered that he had hurried downstairs alone to secure what he considered his proper place in the carriage.

It is also reported of him that, on his first attending afternoon church one Sunday, he remembered how often he had been told to thank his entertainers for their hospitality; so on this occasion he looked anxiously about for someone to be grateful to. The only person who came handy was the verger, who, rather to his discomfiture, had his hand grasped by the little prince, and was informed in a childish voice:—

"Thank you so much for a very pleasant afternoon!"

Ben's Legs.

"Ben," said his friend, waking up from a reverie in which he had been gazing abstractedly at the shiny carpase of Ben's skating-rink-for-sites, "is ther nothing you could do for your baldness?"

Ben, by the way, is only forty.

"No, lad!" he replied, with decision. "Fifteen years ago I was courting strong, and I tried lots o' things. But about that time t' Prince of Wales—Edward, you know—came to open t' new hospital, and I said to myself as soon as ever I saw him lift'n' his hat to t' crowd, 'Ben, my lad, tha can give it up as a bad job and save thy brass. If ther was ever 'at 'ud cure a bald head they'd ha cured his.'"

John Jacob Astor was fined 6 shillings in London for auto speeding. He's an Anglo-auto-maniac now.

Milby—Watkins.

At 527 Chamberlain street, Friday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock, Miss Lillian Watkins was united in marriage to Mr. Jas. Milby, by Rev. H. J. Keith. A wedding repast was served after the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Watkins will reside in the city.

HORSE DISTEMPER

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline Is a Specific.

"After fifty years experience raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P.E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times aday and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

NERVILINE CURES QUICKLY

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large bottles 25c., five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co'y., Kingston, Ont.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gazetted to its very doors on the Island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Honna River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Honna River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts, and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 30 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the erection of a modern hotel, to be completed by the 1st of September, 1911, and the company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Honna River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Masset Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the Islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the Islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 32 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

BY-LAW NUMBER 1555

A By-law to fix the assessment of The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited).

Passed the third day of October, 1910.

Whereas The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) has represented to the Council of the City of Peterborough that it is the only manufacturing concern in the City of Peterborough engaged in the manufacture of locks and other articles manufactured by it, and has to compete with manufacturers in the same line of business in other places who have received and are enjoying Municipal assistance, making it difficult for the said Company to meet such competition, and has applied to the Council for a fixed assessment on the real estate, plant and business assessment of the said Company in the City of Peterborough at the sum of $25,000, and the said Council has agreed thereto and to pass this By-Law for that purpose, subject to the confirmation thereof by the Legislature.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-Law shall take effect upon and only upon the confirmation thereof by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, and upon the said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) executing an agreement not to oppose the construction of any work as a local improvement abutting or fronting on, of the cost or part of the cost of which might be assessed or charged against the property in Section 2 hereof described, or any part thereof, that the said Council may desire to construct under the provisions of the Municipal Act relating to local improvements.

2. The assessment of the following lands in the City of Peterborough owned, occupied and used by The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) and being Lot Number Four north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, and that part of Lot Number Three north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street described as follows:—Commencing on the western limit of the said Lot Number Three, at a point seventy-seven feet six inches north from the south-west angle thereof; thence northerly along the said western limit of the said lot to the northern limit thereof; thence easterly along said northern limit eighteen feet; thence south and parallel to the western limit of said lot to a point seventy-seven feet six inches north of said Simcoe Street; thence westerly and parallel to the southern limit of the said lot to the place of beginning while used exclusively for the manufacturing purposes of the Company, or the part so used for such manufacturing purposes, and the buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures thereon, and the business assessment there of on which taxes are to be levied, shall be fixed and remain fixed while the same are so used, and while at least an average of one hundred hands are employed therein for at least ten months of each year, at the sum of $25,000 for a period of ten years from the first day of January, 1911, and the return and oath of the assessor or assessors in respect thereof shall be amended accordingly, but the same shall, for school purposes, be and remain liable to assessment and the payment of school taxes and rates to as full an extent as if this By-Law had not been passed, and the assessment for school purposes and the school rates and taxes shall be made, levied and collected thereon in accordance with the provisions of the general law in that behalf, and the said lands shall also be liable for all frontage and local improvement assessments, rates and taxes that are now or may hereafter be charged against the same, and any buildings on the said lands not used exclusively for the business of the Company, and the land appurtenant to same shall not be included in the fixed assessment hereunder, but such buildings and land, while not used as aforesaid, shall be assessed as provided by the Assessment Act then in force; provided, however, that if the said Company shall at any time within the said term of ten years fail or neglect to operate and carry on the said manufacturing establishment substantially to the capacity thereof, and therein to employ at least an average of one hundred hands during at least ten months in each year, then such fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates on the said lands, buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures and on the business assessment thereof shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed; provided always that if the failure to carry on the said business is due to strikes or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures by fire or tempest, the time during which the said business shall so cease to be carried on in consequence of such strikes, or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures (not exceeding in either case one year) shall not be taken as a failure or neglect to carry on the said business, so as to disentitle the said Company to such fixed assessment.

3. The said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) shall, prior to the first day of March in each year, file with the City Clerk a statutory declaration, made by an officer of the Company, who shall therein state his knowledge of the facts, proving that the said Company has complied with and is observing all the terms, conditions and provisions of this By-Law, and on the neglect of the said Company to furnish such declaration it shall be prima facie taken that such terms, conditions and provisions have not been performed, observed and kept, and the said fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates shall be and become payable to the same amount, and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed.

(Sgd.) S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

DR. MAGEE BLAMES DOMESTIC TROUBLE ON NE TEMERE DECREE.

Married Wife on Condition She Become a Protestant—Sang Check in Mate-Mortem Statement Says That Brave Fired Deliberately.

Carp, Ont., July 4.—The shooting of Wm. Shaw, manager of the Magee's drug store at Carp, on Saturday, have leaked out pretty well by now. Shaw was shot by [illegible] near Carp on the afternoon of Dominion Day. Shaw and Mac Motley, brother of the doctor, hired an automobile and chauffeur at Ottawa last Saturday and drove down to Lancaster, where they got a county constable to accompany them to the home of the doctor's father-in-law, D. C. McRae, of Bridge End, where the doctor expected to get possession of his baby boy.

The party were met at the gateway by the doctor's father-in-law and brother, Farquhar McRae and the latter's hired man, who had armed them two guns and a new axe. The doctor's party were forbidden entrance to the house, but he paid no heed to the warnings and searched the premises, while the three men were being engaged in a heated argument by the others of the party.

THE WOUNDING OF SHAW.

Not finding the child, Dr. Magee returned to the auto and told the chauffeur to hurry away as fast as possible, as he feared the men intended to cut the tires of the auto with the axe. The party had just got nicely started and were all looking around at the men on the road behind, when [illegible] a shot was fired by Farquhar McRae, from a 44-calibre rifle. The ball struck the back of the auto seat and glanced down and entered the back of Shaw, breaking a couple of ribs and entering his left lung. He was hurried to Dr. Faulkner's office at Lancaster, a distance of 15 miles, where Dr. Magee dressed the wound, and then took him by train to the Cornwall Hospital, where the doctors held out little hopes of his recovery. The wounded man never lost consciousness during any part of the journey.

REEVE 70 YEARS OLD.

Shaw made an ante-mortem statement at the hospital in which he identified Farquhar McRae as the man who fired the shot. Armed with a warrant Constable Smith, of Cornwall, accompanied Constable Urss, of Lancaster, on his return to Bridge End, and placed McRae under arrest, taking him to Cornwall Jail, where he will come up for preliminary hearing on Friday of this week.

The prisoner is about 70 years of age, is reeve of Lancaster township, and is one of its most respected residents, as is also his brother, Mr. D. C. McRae.

Dr. C. F. Magee and Miss Belle McRae were married on the 21st of October, 1908, by the pastor of the Ashland Boulevard Methodist Church, Chicago. Being a trained nurse, the doctor had engaged her to nurse patients for him a year and a half before this. They were engaged to be married, the doctor says, on condition that she leave the Roman Catholic Church and become a Protestant and she was accordingly admitted a member of the Methodist Church by Rev. Dr. Henderson, of Dominion Methodist Church, Ottawa, six months before her marriage. This she voluntarily did, and she also attended the Carp Methodist Church and Sunday school quite regularly for about a year or so, when it is alleged by her husband that her Roman Catholic friends commenced underhand methods of inducing her to return to their faith. When her husband would not permit of this she left Carp, and returned to her parental roof. This she had done a couple of times, remaining there for a few months, and then coming back to the doctor. The last time she left was in May, when she took their little four-months-old baby with her.

The day Mrs. Magee left Carp the doctor was in Ottawa purchasing her a new set of driving harness, and a carriage for the baby, and on his return home he found they were gone. He immediately tried to get possession of the child, and it is said, made an unsuccessful search of his father-in-law's premises a few weeks ago.

Both father and mother seemed to be deeply devoted to the child. The baby was baptized when a few weeks old by Rev. F. G. Robinson, B. A., pastor of the Carp Methodist Church.

BLAMES PAPAL DECREE.

The doctor alleges that the trouble between them has been caused by the publication of the Ne Temere decree, and presently interference, and says that he believes her intention from the first was to turn him over to the Roman Catholic faith. Dr. Magee states that there were no family troubles outside of religious matters. To all appearances Mrs. Magee was a devoted wife and loving mother, and she was well-liked by her neighbors and all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

SHAW WAS TO WED SOON.

Mr. Shaw is a young fellow of quiet habits and well liked in the community. He came out from Scotland a couple of years ago, and for the past year has been manager of the Carp Drug Store, which is owned by Dr. Magee. Much sympathy is felt for him here, owing to the fact that the affair was no concern of his, and it is said he did not care about starting on the errand. What makes his wounding doubly more sad is the fact that he was to have been married to a young lady here this month, and the bride-to-be is almost heart-broken over the occurrance. At last reports he was doing as well as could be expected.

WARNED BY TELEPHONE.

Cornwall, Ont., July 4.—The McRae shooting case at Bridge End on the afternoon of Dominion Day still continues to be a leading topic of conversation in Cornwall and throughout the district. The Magee party, it is alleged, went to the home of Mrs. Magee's father for the purpose of getting possession of the child. The McRaes, it seems, had been warned by telephone of their coming, and when they arrived they were ordered off the premises. After they had made a search of the McRae house, they started down the road and Farquhar McRae, brother of D. C. McRae, it is said, fearing that they were coming back fired his rifle without taking aim and for the purpose of frightening them. It is alleged he was not aware that any one had been shot until he was arrested by Chief Smyth of Cornwall on Sunday morning.

DROPPED ON ONE KNEE.

In his ante-mortem statement made in the General Hospital, after being brought to Cornwall, young Shaw, the druggist who was shot in the lung, states that McRae dropped on one knee and took deliberate aim.

Shaw's ante-mortem statement has been forwarded to the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto, but what action will be taken by the Provincial authorities has not been made known to the local authorities.

DOWAGER QUEEN OF PORTUGAL IS DEAD

Turin, Italy, July 5.—Maria Pia, Queen Dowager of Portugal, died at the royal chateau at Stupinigi at 3.15 o'clock this afternoon. She had suffered from uraemia.

Maria Pia was a daughter of Victor Emmanuel II., King of Italy, and was born on October 16, 1847. In 1862 she married King Louis I. of Portugal, who died in 1889.

Recently she had been living in Italy with her sister, Princess Clotilde, widow of the Prince Napoleon. The death of the Princess several days ago left the sister prostrated, and she had been reported as seriously ill.

The Queen Dowager passed through many misfortunes. Her brother, King Humbert of Italy, her son, King Carlos, and her grandson, the Portuguese Crown Prince, were assassinated; and her other grandson, King Manuel was deposed from the Portuguese throne.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

THE ORANGE SENTINEL AND THE CATHOLIC REGISTER.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have been a reader of The Times for a number of years, and as you invite correspondence on subjects of public importance, I venture to take advantage of your invitation.

I notice your attitude in regard to religious matters, particularly as to the Ne Temere decree, and I do not like it. You surely see that no good can possibly come out of agitations of this kind. You frequently quote from the Orange Sentinel, a paper published in Toronto, which takes strong ground against everything that emanates from the Church of Rome. This kind of journalism, without conducive of good citizenship, only creates ill feeling and ill will.

What we need in this young country is a united people—with only two objects in life—to serve God, and develop our beloved country.

These are my views, and I trust you will not feel offended by the blunt way I put them. I am no writer, but just a plain Northumbrian.

Reply—Our friend evidently has a wrong conception of the duties and prerogatives of a public newspaper. The Times has not one word to say against any man on account of his religious belief. That is a matter between himself and his conscience. But when a church attempts to override the laws of the land, and uses its force and power to wring special privileges from governments—privileges accorded no other church, then the duty of the public press is manifest. As regards quoting from the Orange Sentinel we may say that as a matter of fact our quotations are more frequently made from the Catholic Register than from the well-edited Sentinel. We will go one step further and say that we have found the former paper to be fair and never abusive, while the latter does not show that spirit of fair play which an intelligent public who read both sides, would expect.—Ed. Times.

SIR FREDERICK OFFERED JOB

London, July 5.—The Express says it understands that the post of high commissioner for Canada in London has been offered to Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia and Defence in the Laurier Cabinet.

May Fix Date To-Day For Reciprocity Vote

Washington, July 5.—Chairman Penrose, of the Senate Finance Committee, announced in the Senate to-day that he would again attempt late to-day or early to-morrow, to get an agreement for a date for a final vote on the Canadian reciprocity bill.

WHOLE FAMILY UNDER ARREST

Row Over Street Car Tickets—Woman Pulled Conductor's Hair.

New York, July 5.—A whole family is under arrest in Long Island City as the result of a row on a trolley car late last night. The prisoners are Wm. Drew, 45 years old; his wife Margaret, 47; and Jeremiah, William, Jr., and Patrick Drew, sons 18, 20 and 24 years old respectively. A young woman who was with the family also was arrested.

The conductor says the head of the family failed to pay two fares that were due. When the car reached the barns an inspector was called aboard, and upon his insistence Drew paid up. Then, the inspector, alleges, as he was about to retire peaceably, Mrs. Drew knocked off his hat, pulled his hair, and punched his face. Six policemen boarded the car, and there was a general mix-up. The arrests resulted.

DUNNVILLE LADY REFUSED ADMISSION TO THE U. S.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 4.—Miss A. D. Parry, one of the best-known residents of Dunnville, Haldimand County, was on her way to Buffalo to see her cousin, of whose serious and possibly fatal illness she had been apprised.

In spite of the fact that she had a return ticket, she was taken off the train at Bluff Rock, put through a severe cross-examination, and although vouched for by M. L. Parry, J. W. Gray, former G.T.R. Agent here, and others, was sent back to this side.

The outcome is all the more surprising from the fact that Miss Parry is, and has been for twenty years or more, owner of property in Buffalo.

WOMEN CLERKS TO GIVE BATHING PARTY ON ROOF

Washington, July 5.—One hundred female typists and women clerks in the McGill Building here provided themselves with bathing suits, and announced to-day that they give a party on the roof of the building the next time it rains.

"It's the heat! driving us to it," said a blonde typewriter. "We can't get to the bathing beaches during office hours, so we are going to take possession of the roof."

It is said to be a serious plan to celebrate the break in the worst heat spell in years—when it comes.

LUMBER MAGNATES BEHIND PRISON BARS

Springfield, Mass., July 5.—Charles P. Chase and Ernest Newton Bagg, both of whom are named in the suit recently brought by the United States Government against the alleged lumber trust, easily carried off the honors in the Fourth of July parade here. The two men, wearing regulation prison uniforms and with their hair closely cropped, rode in a steel prison cell, barred and bolted, resting on a float which was drawn by four horses. The float bore this inscription:

"Local members of the alleged lumber trust getting free board."

Messrs. Chase and Bagg sat on wooden stools. With perspiration rolling down their faces they could be heard by gestures with palms of hand from the continuous roar of applause that followed the passage of the float through the crowded streets.

Mr. Chase, who is president of the Springfield Board of Trade, and also president of the largest lumber corporation in Springfield, was for seven years president of the Massachusetts Retail Dealers' Association, which is one of the defendants in Attorney-General Wickersham's suit. Mr. Bagg, who is secretary of the Massachusetts Dealers' Association, is named in the bill of complaint.

Cured Constipation Quickly

TELLS OF A REMEDY THAT IS SAFE FOR YOUNG AND OLD, FOR ALL STOMACH AND BOWEL TROUBLES.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system, that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me fat worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it, and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back."

No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Ask Orangemen Not to Parade in Hull

To Ask Orangemen Not to Parade — Ottawa, July 5.—That as the Orange Order was a chartered organization he could not refuse them permission to parade through the streets of Hull, but would simply ask them to cancel the procession, was the statement of Mayor Archambault, at the Hull City Council last night. The Council did not consider the matter further after the Mayor's statement.

HEAT KILLED 27 IN CHICAGO

One Day's Record of Deaths From the Heat in a Big City.

Chicago, July 5. — Twenty-seven dead from heat is the record made in Chicago during the 24 hours ended at 4 p.m. to-day. At midnight the mercury stood at 90, but at 4 o'clock it had dropped to 84. If the intense heat of the last four days continues to-day, the health authorities predict that the deaths will be greater than ever recorded in one day in Chicago.

KILLED BY THE HEAT.

London, Ont., July 5.—Mr. W. J. Hillis, a druggist, of Saskatchewan, died this morning at Victoria Hospital from the effects of the heat. Two days ago he was stricken on the street and last night he was taken to Victoria Hospital. He came originally from Watford and was visiting his brother when overcome.

NINE IN ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, Mo., July 5.—Nine deaths from the heat, two in East St. Louis and the remainder in this city, occurred last night. The police have reports of 22 prostrations of which some will die.

Woburn, Mass., July 5.—Lying side by side John P. Hill and Matthew Daly, both 50 years, and close friends were found dead under a tree in the Green street woods early to-day, heat victims.

ANIMALS DYING IN FIELDS AND MILK RUNS SHORT

ALL ONTARIO FACES A MILK FAMINE, UNLESS THE RAIN SOON FALLS.

Record Prices Certain—Half of Tomato Crop Destroyed—Raspberries in Bad Way—Four Die in Hamilton.

Hamilton, Ont., July 5—Hamilton's milk supply was practically cut in half to-day as a result of the drought in the country, and the dealers predicted that unless there is some relief soon Ontario will face a milk famine. People were surprised to-day when their collected their milk bottles to find none than the dairy explaining that they could only furnish their customers with half the regular amount of milk.

Throughout the Niagara district fruit has been ruined on the bushes and trees. Reports are coming in of animals dying in the fields.

The fourth death in Hamilton from the heat, and the second to-day, occurred when Hugh E. Muirhead, 26 years of age, died.

A HUNDRED IN THE SHADE.

Chatham, July 5.—Andrew Harding, driver for the Grant Ice Company, collapsed from the intense heat yesterday afternoon and keeled over from his seat on the ice wagon. He is now at his home in a serious condition. It is still over 100 in the shade here, and the barometer gives no indication of a change in temperature.

RASPBERRIES DRY UP.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 5.—This morning the St. Catharines Cold Storage Company officials stated that it was all undoubted that the sun was rapidly burning out the raspberry crop. Reports received by them from fruit-growers all over the Niagara fruit belt go to show that the sun has cooked up the berries on the bushes.

"If the crop is not pretty well gone it soon will go," was the way he put the matter.

One grower named Thompson, of Jordan, yesterday afternoon went over four acres of raspberries, and got one crate of fruit. The rest of the berries seemed cooked on one side and green on the other.

Many of the tomato crops have been baked right in the fields. This is chiefly the case where the leafage of the vines is light, and the sun has had a chance to pour its rays full on the fruit.

It is estimated that fully half the tomato crop is gone. Hundreds of stalks were dried out by the unseasonably hot weather in May. To both tomato and raspberry growers the outlook is exceedingly gloomy.

Both raspberries and tomatoes will soar to record height in price, even if the heat wave breaks to-night.

GENERAL RAINS OUT WEST.

Winnipeg, July 5. — General rains fell throughout the Western Province yesterday and last night where moisture was most needed.

WITH YOUNG BUFFALO SHOW

Splendid Attractions Besieged With the Great Aggregation.

With the Young Buffalo Wild West show, which will exhibit in this city next Saturday afternoon and night, July 8th, is a group of names to conjure with in the arenic world. Chief among them are Annie Oakley, the world's greatest woman rifle shot; Capt. Bogardus, the undefeated champion marksman of the world; Ambrose Means, the American cowpuncher, famous throughout the world for his reckless exploits in East Africa. Means is the man who had the temerity to enter the Dark Continent armed only with a lasso. He succeeded in capturing alive rhinoceri, lions, tigers, giraffes, and other denizens of the forest with his lasso. Frank Burns, Montana Jack, "Bottle Nose Ben," Buffalo Vernon, "Ziest Tooth Bill" represent a quintette of rough riders the like of whom has never before been gathered under one canvass. It was Buffalo Vernon who succeeded in riding "Old Steamboat," the worst outlaw bronco that they were able to produce at the great Cheyenne "Pioneer's Day" fete. Julia Allen, Prairie Rose, and Maude Burbank are a trio of equestrianesses who are known throughout the world for their fearlessness. There are upwards of 700 cowboys, cowgirls, Indian chiefs, Russian Cossacks, Mexican rurales and lariat throwers, Northwestern Canadian mounted police, U. S. cavalrymen and rough riders from all quarters of the globe with the Young Buffalo Wild West show. The street parade of this mighty monarch of the west is said to be the most elaborate street demonstration ever seen with any travel exhibition. Col. Vernon Stevens, the general manager of this tremendous amusement enterprise, has spared no expense to make this street parade the most glitteringly beautiful and novel affair possible. One of the features of the parade is Col. Stewart and his 20 ox-team. Col. Stewart is the veteran ox driver of the civil war.

COMMENCED WHEAT CUTTING

St. Catharines, Ont., July 5.—Wheat is being cut on the farm of J. Reading, on Queenston road. This is the earliest wheat cutting on record in this district. Several other farmers are preparing to cut their wheat in a few days' time. The continued warm weather has caused very early ripening fully two weeks ahead of time. The straw in most of the wheat fields is very short, very little of it running more than a foot in length.

CLERICAL CONTROL IN QUEBEC.

A careful and judicial examination of the powers and privileges of the clergy in Quebec has been written by Mr. Edward McChesney Salt, says the News. Those who cherish the delusion that this is a free country in reality as well as in name would do well to read it. The book is not long—about 160 pages—Its chief literary virtue is that of brevity. It recites facts, buttressed by episcopal mandement, judicial opinion, sermon, public address or newspaper comment. But it covers the ground. Every point where clericalism has clashed with freedom is set forth.

Mr. Salt shows that journalism in Quebec is on a precarious tenure. The editor of a French paper must follow the example of a certain high personage about to leave Canada, and "walk the tight rope of platitudinous generalities." If on one day he should offend the Church and remain impenitent, his paper might be banned, his investment would vanish, and he would have no recourse in the courts. Unfortunately the position of the Church with respect to education is mediaeval. A newspaper dare not demand the reorganization of primary and secondary schools on a sane and effective basis.

In like manner clerical interference prevented the establishment of a public library in Montreal. The doddering idea that a book which criticises or reflects upon the clergy is improper curbs the progress of the neighboring province. The hierarchy still lives in the atmosphere of the Council of Trent and maintains an Index Expurgatorius. Lest one of the books interdicted might find a place on the shelves Montreal may have no public library.

Theatres are hampered by a censorship that bans the works of some of the world's greatest dramatists. Sarah Bernhardt is improper, Lajane has a cloven hoof. The greater portion of all elementary instruction is church catechism. Many rural teachers have no idea of French grammar and their salaries are a national disgrace. The Church has all the power of an establishment, for it collects tithes and enforces the collection by civil process. Canon law is supported by statute law. Marriages are annulled, because the Council of Trent so decreed.

Yet the public mind stirs in the darkness. He describes the beginning of an anti-clerical movement. "Opposition is forming — opposition to the commercial activities of the monks, opposition to clerical control of the schools. Already the clergy have met several sharp rebuffs." The Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales is the first of the non-clerical secondary schools. The members of the governing corporation are nominated by the Montreal Chambre de Commerce and appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor. Efficient instruction is the birthright of every Canadian child. Do Quebec children receive their due?

PUNISHMENT TOO SEVERE.

The Kingston Standard puts in a plea for a student of the Royal Military College, who, for breaking the rules as to intoxicants, has been deprived of his commission and of the diploma he has won by three years' hard work. It is quite right that there should be strict rules against the use of intoxicants. But the punishment is too severe for a single lapse, especially when it occurred after the course of study had been completed, and was probably a foolish way of celebrating the event. While it is possible that the college authorities felt constrained to inflict this extreme penalty, the authorities at Ottawa have greater discretionary power, and they could be doing substantial justice if they gave the young fellow another chance.

There is a severity which defeats the ends of justice. The loss of the diploma and the commission might kill the heart with black despair and wreck the life of the victim. A lighter penalty might be imposed and the

WEST WANTS 50,000 MEN

Winnipeg, July 4.—That five thousand farm hands could be placed in a single day in Manitoba alone was the statement of Mr. Jas. Bury, superintendent of the Provincial Government Immigration Bureau to-day. There are hundreds of demands every day for men, said Bury, and the demands come in far faster than we can fill them. When harvest time commences there will be at least twenty-five thousand additional farm hands needed in this Province, and another twenty-five thousand in Alberta and Saskatchewan. North Dakota and Minnesota are being scoured for men, and we may have to send to England for a shipload.

WHERE THE "DOME" DID ITS PART.

Ball Baseball Players Give Their Experiences.

"Bonehead Barry!" That's what they usually say of a player when he unaccidentally or otherwise permits himself to be hit on the "dome" by a batted or pitched ball. While some of these plays have been anything but pleasant to the man hit, there's no question but most of them prove humorous to the fans, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"I have seen many players hit on the head with batted or thrown balls," said Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, "but the funniest play of this kind happened when I was with the Giants. "Jack" Dunn was playing third base at the time and a foul fly was sent up near third base.

"I was catching and started after the ball until he shouted 'I've got it.' He seemed to be camped under it all right until the sun got in his eyes and he lost the ball. It came and hit him on the top of the head. The ball knocked 'Jacks' cap off, and, as he was as bald as a doorknob and very sensitive about his slick dome, he made a wild scramble to recover the top-piece."

"A play which seems almost an impossibility, but one that is an actual fact, was performed by Ben Koehler and Hugh Frisk, two former St. Louis outfielders," said Secretary Lloyd H. Richart, of the Browns.

"In a game several years ago a ball was hit midway between center and right. Koehler and Frisk started for it. Koehler, the usually reliable, muffed that he had the ball. But he began dancing around and finally lost in the sun. He 'dashed' to avoid being struck, but the ball came down, hit him on the head, bounded up, and Frisk, the uncertain, caught it for the out."

MUSCULAR CHRISTIANITY.

Teaches Bible Sunday Boxes Monday.

Although he parts his name in the middle, the men who would "kid" A. J. Drexel-Biddle upon the fact are few and far between.

Biddle is as complex a character as you will find in "Who's Who." He preaches, encourages and teaches boxing and instructs the largest and best of the most successful bible classes in Philadelphia.

"Anthony J." to the members of the fashionable set, he is "Tony" to a host of young athletes who have found in him a friend, time and again. His private gymnasium has permitted many young lovers to train who otherwise would not have been able to do so.

Biddle is an unique character in the religious world and the success which has attended his work prove that his theories are sound, even if a radical departure from accepted ideas.

Out in Toronto they've discovered a great fossil. George Foster, please write.

Outfits Confiscated.

On Monday while a bunch of city boys were engaged in illegal shooting partridges and tame geese down the river, they were suddenly pounced upon by Fishery Inspector Kane, and their boats, guns, &c., were confiscated.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual work will be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

NOVEL ATHLETIC MACHINE.

How Invention to Test Runners as They Run Around the Track.

A novel invention in the shape of an apparatus for automatically taking measurements of the work of track athletes at all points in a race has just been installed on the running track in the Robinson gymnasium, Kansas University.

The machine, which is the first of its kind, and the invention of Dr. Naismith, director of physical culture, consists of small bamboo sticks, located along the track so as to divide the course into quarters.

The sticks project over the track and are touched by the breast of the runner as he passes. The bamboos are connected to a make-and-break electrical machine, which transmits the touch of the runner to a kymograph, which holds a lampblacked paper on which marks are made. A clock is used in connection with the kymograph for purposes of timing.

THE FIRST MENU CARD.

Started By a Duke in Brunswick in 1861.

At a dinner given by Duke Henry of Brunswick in 1541 he was seen to every now and then consult a long slip of paper, which reposed at the side of his plate. One of the duke's guests asked what the paper was for. He explained that it was a sort of a programme or catalogue of the dishes he had commanded from the cook. "To the intent that if some delicacy which especially appealed to his appetite were marked for a later stage in the repast, he might carefully reserve his appetite for it." The simplicity and utility of the idea at once took the fancy of the duke and the menu card from that moment became an institution. The new fashion was so much admired it travelled far and near, and was adopted in England and France at once.

Case Held Over.

The case of the Chemong hotel proprietor, charged with a violation of the liquor law, which was to have been heard before County Magistrate Edmison yesterday, was enlarged for a week. Some witnesses who were subpoenaed failed to appear, and the case will come up again, it is expected, on July 16th.

Customs' Receipts.

Peterborough's customs returns still continue to show an increase. For June, 1911, the local receipts were $35,629.87, while for the same month last year they were $32,501.11, an increase of $3,066.76.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,--is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt-would buy Montreal Real Estate ?

To the mer of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advance in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

IS YOUR MONEY IDLE?

Dormant Wealth is useless. Gold hidden in the corner cupboard is WASTING ITS TIME, just as surely as the sluggard is wasting his life. In these strenuous days of commercial activity every dollar should be made to work. ARE YOUR DOLLARS WORKING ALL THE TIME?

Of course YOU have no lazy money. But have you a bank balance that is just vegetating, making a paltry three cents interest on the dollar once in twelve months, three dollars on the hundred, thirty on the thousand?

Don't let your money ape the sluggard. Make it WORK. Opportunity is knocking at your door right now, and I am guiding Opportunity. It is worth your while reading this advertisement carefully. You cannot lose by it; you stand to gain a just deal.

Fruit Farms in British Columbia are my specialty. I have devoted many years to a close study of the soil and the climatic conditions of the Fraser River Valley. I will not handle property that is not ABSOLUTELY A. 1., no matter what the inducement may be. When you deal with W. J. KERR, LTD., you deal with a reliable firm.

If you have never been to British Columbia, you can have but a slight idea of the wonderful and steady increase in land values. The price of yesterday is doubled to-day, to-day's price will quadrupted to-morrow, for the upward movement has only just commenced. The wealth of a province is behind this steady movement.

Six years ago I sold land on the Westminster-Vancouver electric car line for $100 per acre. To-day it sells for from $2000 to $6000 an acre.

Two years ago I sold land in Peachgrove for $100 an acre. You could not buy that same land to-day for less than $2000 per acre.

I have just picked these two instances at random, but they will suffice to show you the enormous increase in values in the past. THE PROFITS OF THE PAST WILL NOT BE A CIRCUMSTANCE TO THE PROFITS OF THE FUTURE. Do you wish to share in these profits? Of course you do.

Investment in good real estate is as safe as a deposit in the Bank of England. There is no better real estate than in the Fraser River Valley.

I have the biggest list of properties in this district, and the prices at which I offer these is always a little lower than the other fellow. That is how I gained my reputation.

I am now placing a Fruit Land Subdivision on the market. This is parcelled into five-acre tracts, close to two railway lines and with splendid roads leading to the property. The Water Supply gushes up in a never-lessening stream from a well 320 feet deep, and can be piped to every house in the subdivision.

This Fruit Land is only a few miles from the city of Westminster, which boasts the greatest farmers' market in Western Canada. Here all products of the soil command a quick and remunerative sale. There is no over-supply; the coast cities are growing fast and consume a great deal more than the surrounding country now produces.

The figure at which I am placing this on the market will increase tremendously in the next few years, and in the meantime the land will pay for itself over and over again with the bumper crops it will produce. Let me send you full details of this remarkable offer. Drop me a line to-day—right now while the matter is fresh in your mind.

A big street parade will be given on the morning of the exhibition, at which time the entire aggregation will be seen decked out in their finest feathers and finery. A feature of the parade, which is said to be the most novel and elaborate street demonstration ever seen in this city, is Col. Stuart and his 20-

BY-LAW NUMBER 1555

A By-law to fix the assessment of The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited).

Passed the third day of October, 1910.

Whereas The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) has represented to the Council of the City of Peterborough that it is the only manufacturing concern in the City of Peterborough engaged in the manufacture of locks and other articles manufactured by it, and has to compete with manufacturers in the same line of business in other places who have received and are enjoying Municipal assistance, making it difficult for the said Company to meet such competition, and has applied to the Council for a fixed assessment on the real estate, plant and business assessment of the said Company in the City of Peterborough at the sum of $25,000, and the said Council has agreed thereto and to pass this By-Law for that purpose, subject to the confirmation thereof by the Legislature.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-Law shall take effect upon and only upon the confirmation thereof by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, and upon the said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited), executing and delivering to the Corporation of the City of Peterborough an instrument not to oppose the construction of any work as a local improvement abutting or fronting on, or the cost or part of the cost of which might be assessed or charged against the property in Section 2 hereof described, or any part thereof, that the said Council may desire to construct under the provisions of the Municipal Act relating to local improvements.

2. The assessment of the following lands in the City of Peterborough owned, occupied and used by The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) and being Lot Number Four north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, and that part of Lot Number Three north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street described as follows:—Commencing on the western limit of the said Lot Number Three, at a point seventy-seven feet six inches north from the south-west angle thereof; thence northerly along the said western limit of the said lot to the northern limit thereof; thence easterly along said northern limit eighteen feet; thence south and parallel to the western limit of said lot to a point seventy-seven feet six inches north of said Simcoe Street; thence westerly and parallel to the southern limit of the said lot to the place of beginning while used exclusively for the manufacturing purposes of the Company, or the part so used for such manufacturing purposes, and the buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures thereon, and the business assessment thereof on which taxes are to be levied, shall be fixed and remain fixed while the same are so used, and while at least an average of one hundred hands are employed therein for at least ten months of each year, at the sum of $25,000 for a period of ten years from the first day of January, 1911, and the return and oath of the assessor or assessors in respect thereof shall be amended accordingly, but the same shall, for school purposes, be and remain liable to assessment and the payment of school taxes and rates to as full an extent as if this By-Law had not been passed, and the assessment for school purposes and the school rates and taxes shall be made, levied and collected thereon in accordance with the provisions of the general law in that behalf, and the said lands shall also be liable for all frontage and local improvement assessments, rates and taxes that are now or may hereafter be charged against the same, and any buildings on the said lands not used exclusively for the business of the Company, and the land appurtenant to same shall not be included in the fixed assessment hereunder, but such buildings and land, while not used as aforesaid, shall be assessed as provided by the Assessment Act then in force; provided, however, that if the said Company shall at any time within the said term of ten years fail or neglect to operate and carry on the said manufacturing establishment substantially to the capacity thereof, and thereon to employ at least an average of one hundred hands during at least ten months in each year, then such fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates on the said lands, buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures and on the business assessment thereof shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed; provided always that if the failure to carry on the said business is due to strikes or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures by fire or tempest, the time during which the said business shall so cease to be carried on in consequence of such strikes, or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures (not exceeding in either case one year) shall not be taken as a failure or neglect to carry on the said business, so as to disentitle the said Company to such fixed assessment.

3. The said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) shall, prior to the first day of March in each year, file with the City Clerk a statutory declaration, made by an officer of the Company, who shall therein state his knowledge of the facts, proving that the said Company has complied with and is observing all the terms, conditions and provisions of this By-Law, and on the request of the said Company, to furnish such declaration it shall be prima facie taken that such terms, conditions and provisions have not been performed, observed and kept, and the said fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed.

(Sgd.) S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gazetted to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Hosmer River Valley, and through within the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Hosmer River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 30 days, for 30 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be set aside to pay for the west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Hosmer River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Mouat Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the Islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 82 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

BY-LAW. NUMBER 1539

A By-Law to fix the assessment of Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company.

Passed the 6th day of June, 1910.

Whereas Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company have represented to the Council of the City of Peterborough that they propose, if they are granted a fixed assessment on their real estate in the City of Peterborough hereinafter mentioned, that they will purchase an additional fifty feet of land adjoining on the north of their present property at the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets, in the City of Peterborough, and will expend at least the sum of $9,000 in erecting thereon an addition to their present factory sufficiently large to enable them to employ from fifty to seventy-five additional employees.

And whereas the said firm are manufacturers of harness, horse collars, horse clothing and other articles of a like nature, and are the only manufacturing concern in the City in this line, and the Council of the said City have agreed to pass this By-Law for the purpose of granting such fixed assessment, subject to the confirmation thereof by the Legislature.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-Law shall take effect upon and only upon the confirmation thereof by the Legislature of the Province of Ontario, and upon Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company executing an undertaking, agreeing not to oppose the construction of any sewers or sidewalks, as local improvements, abutting or fronting on the property in Section 2 hereof mentioned, or any part thereof, that the Council may desire to construct under the provisions of The Municipal Act relating to local improvements.

2. Provided the said firm of B. F. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. BUY ROYAL PORCUPINE

Quoted at 32 to 33 Cents

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 19, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MESSER, M. E., "Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000 par value of shares $1.00. Full paid and non-assessable. No personal liability.

A glance at the list of directors will show the class of men who are putting in their money and time to make this one of the greatest mines in the Porcupine Camp. The directors are:—

JAMES KENDRY, Peterboro, Ontario; ex-Member of Parliament, President Auburn Woollen Mills.

T. E. BRADBURN, Member Parliament, Peterboro, Ontario; Private Banker.

ARCHIBALD L. ALLAN, New York, Hiram Walker & Sons.

SYDNEY BERNHEIM, New York, Bernheim & Leewenthal, Counsellors at Law.

JACOB RAPOPORT, New York, Jacob Rapoport & Co., Merchants.

HAMILTON KILGOUR, New York and London, England, Mining Engineer.

WARREN N. AKERS, Wilmington, Del.

Remember, that our judgment on Hollinger, Dome Extension and Vipond was correct, and we believe that Royal Porcupine will prove one of your best investments.

The Hollinger stock was originally offered at $3.50 and now sells at around $15.50, and Dome Extension was first offered at 40c., and now sells at around 84c.

Royal Porcupine stock may be purchased through any member of the New York Curb Association, or we will be glad to execute your orders.

HORSE KICKED BOY TO DEATH

EDWARD HARVEY, OF DUPONT STREET, KILLED BEHIND FIRE HALL.

Body When Found Badly Mangled—Was Fourteen Years of Age—An Inquest.

Toronto, July 6.—Eddie Harvey, 262 Dupont street, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. Robert Harvey, a Yonge street merchant, was trampled to death by one of the fire department horses in the yard at the rear of Howland Avenue Fire Hall, No. 23, shortly before eleven o'clock this morning.

His prostrate form was carried into the Fire Hall and Doctors Wilson and Nichols were soon upon the scene. Nothing could be done to save him, however, and he passed away seven minutes after the horse had broken loose.

In some unknown way he had gained access to the yard behind the hall. Near the centre of the yard was one of the fire horses tethered to a post. It is supposed that a G. T. R. train which passed at the time frightened the horse. At any rate it broke away from the post, knocked the boy down and trampled upon him, inflicting fearful injuries.

Dr. Johnson, Chief Coroner, has called an inquest.

Howland avenue fire station was opened three weeks ago. Since the opening Captain Graydon and his men have been troubled continually by childre ploitering around the entrance thus endangering their lives. The Harvey lad was among those last night. Captain Graydon warned him of the danger and told him to go away immediately. The lad complied, and no more was seen of him until his bruised body was found at the rear of the fire hall this morning.

SPEED OF MOTOR BOATS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Would you kindly let me know through the columns of The Times if there is a law against speeding motor boats? Are they obliged to carry lights?

Stoney Lake.

Reply—There is no law that we are aware of that prevents any kind of a boat travelling as rapidly as she can. All boats driven by power are obliged to carry bow and stern lights under heavy penalties for not doing so.—Ed. Times.

FAST MOTORING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I happened to be out driving a few days ago, and saw a cloud of dust in the distance, rising up like a large volcano, and in a couple of minutes two autos passed me at a terrific an hour ship, one evidently trying to get ahead of the other. Fortunately I was able to get my horse off the road in time to escape what might have been a serious accident.

I would ask, through your valuable paper, if there is not some authority that will stop such reckless motoring? I hope the police will see to it that those who drive their cars at such a furious speed within the limits of the city are brought to time. In justice to our own young men, I would say that the case above mentioned were cars from Toronto, so I was informed. I do not think our own boys would be so devilishly reckless.

F. E. R.

SHOULD STOP GROWLING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The "Plain Workingman" who writes so smoothly in your issue against disturbing the public peace by reference to the recent decrees of the Pope, does the Pope very little service and the people still less. He evidently does not read, and thinks everything is going on fairly quietly. If he knew of his appalling mistake he would think differently. He probably depreciates the conflict between Religion and Science, and no doubt is entirely against all forms of war, (past and present) disease, misery and hot weather. He probably thinks the invention of Hell itself was a mistake, and many may be found to agree with him. But since he can't stop the Pope and all the other things let him turn to and lend a hand and stop his grouching.

ORANGE PARADE AT HULL CERTAIN TO CAUSE A RIOT

FRENCH PAPER, LE TEMPS, AND THE OTTAWA CITIZEN TAKE OPPOSITE SIDES.

Possibility of Very Serious Trouble in Hull on July 12th is Growing Fast Into a Probability.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—The possibility of very serious trouble in Hull on Wednesday next, the 12th, is growing fast into a probability, and it now looks as if nothing but the intervention of the heads of the Roman Catholic Church on one side, and the Orange Order on the other, can prevent a disturbance which may end in bloodshed.

All endeavors by the Mayor of Hull Dr. Archambault, to persuade the Orangemen to abandon their determination to parade in the city across the river, which is almost wholly Roman Catholic in its make up, have failed, the newspapers are now doing their best to foment trouble. Le Temps, the French paper of Ottawa, is arousing the angry passions of the French-Canadians by urging them to resent the "insult" involved in an Orange parade in Hull, and the Ottawa Citizen retorts with a declaration that the Orangemen have the right of British free men to parade wherever they like under the British flag. It asserts that "in the face of the ultimatum from the Mayor of Hull, it would look as if the Orangemen had either to walk or crawl," and points out that when Mayor Archambault says, "it is as offensive to French-Canadians to have this procession take place as it would be to the Protestants of Toronto if we were to go through their streets with a St. Jean Baptiste procession," he placed himself in a very awkward position.

MALTREATED A PROTESTANT.

"If, as he alleges," says the Citizen, "a St. Jean Baptiste procession is as objectionable to the Protestant citizens of Hull as an Orange procession would be to the Roman Catholic citizens of Hull, then his duty as chief magistrate would be to prevent the holding of either procession. Judging him only by his own statement that a St. Jean Baptiste procession is strongly objectionable to the Protestant citizens of Hull, then it is duty to protect the minority from what he terms the insult and humiliation of being forced to tolerate such a procession. So far from being that, still presuming that his statement correctly represents the situation, he not only permitted a St. Jean Baptiste procession, but his policemen, in at least one case, maltreated a Protestant youth because he refused to take off his hat when the procession was passing. As no punishment whatever was visited by the chief magistrate of Hull upon the policeman, it must be taken for granted that the policeman's conduct was approved by the Mayor of Hull. But when a branch of the Orange Order in Hull arranges for a procession of Orangemen in that city, the Mayor not only does not give it his sanction, but uses a strongly worded protest against such a procession being held. In other words, accepting his own definition of his position, he not only insults and humiliates the minority of the residents of Hull by sanctioning a procession, but he tacitly approves the action of his police, who beat harmless spectators among the minority who refused to take off their hats when the procession, which he himself believes objectionable to them, is passing. ... the public streets.

OUTRAGING THEIR FEELINGS.

"On the other hand, when it is proposed by the minority, or at least such portion of them as is represented by the local Orange organization, to hold a parade, he does his utmost to prevent the parade being held, and vigorously demands that the feelings of the majority shall not be outraged. If the Mayor's statement is true that a St. Jean Baptiste parade outrages the feelings of the Protestant minority to the same extent that an Orange parade outrages the feelings of the Catholic majority, it is too bad that Mayor Archambault did not take action to protect the feelings of the minority, both from himself and the action of his police.

"It suits Mayor Archambault to take this stand now, but he knows quite well that St. Jean Baptiste processions are held wherever and whenever they please throughout Canada, and that these have never been interfered with, or even protested against, for the simple reason that the Protestant majority in Canada, unlike the Catholic majority in Hull, if the Mayor's statement is to be relied on, accords such processions perfect freedom. His contention that a St. Jean Baptiste procession would offend the citizens of Toronto, or any other Canadian city, is absolutely unfounded, and merely an emanation of his nor over fertile brain to justify the prevention of an Orange procession in Hull.

"The Citizen is not aware whether the colleagues of the Hull Orangemen propose to accept the invitation to parade there or not. But apart from all other considerations, the recent actions of the Hull authorities make it highly desirable that it should be demonstrated that in this free country, under the British flag, one law-abidding body of citizens has as much right to march in procession as another.

DANGEROUS HALF MEASURES.

"Mayor Archambault has made the inflammatory statement that a body of Orangemen proposed to hold a procession in Hull to educate the majority of the people of that city. The Citizen has more respect for the good sense of the majority of the people of Hull, but it has no hesitation in declaring that the holding of such a procession would have a very salutary educative influence on the Mayor and police force of that city, in demonstrating to them the inalienable right of British subjects wherever the flag flies. The Citizen would go further and say that if the Orange order demonstrate that right in Hull or any other place in Canada, it should be done in a manner that should thoroughly vindicate the right, and not by any dangerous half measure."

TROUBLE IN HULL OVER ORANGE PARADE

Ottawa, June 6.—That there is liable to be serious trouble in Hull on the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, is greatly feared. The Orangemen are determined to exercise their rights under the flag to celebrate the greatest event in English history—the overthrow of King James by King William, thus securing equal liberty to all classes and creeds. It is said that at least 25 lodges of Orangemen will go to Hull on Wednesday next, and take part in the proceedings. This number is likely to be greatly exceeded, as many other lodges not originally thought of are preparing to join in the celebration, and thus make it a monster affair. The Mayor of Hull is very much excited over the matter, and has conceded that the Orangemen have the right to parade the streets if they so desire. It is said that the Catholic Societies are preparing to resist the Orangemen. If they do, there will be serious trouble.

SERIOUS RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Milton Reid Dislocated Her Shoulder, and Son Probably Fatally Hurt.

Comber, Ont., July 5.—While returning home to Comber last evening Mrs. Milton Reid and her children met with a serious accident. The horse they were driving ran away, throwing the occupants out of the rig.

Mrs. Reid had her shoulder dislocated, and one of her wrists was fractured. Her eldest son was rendered unconscious, and was still in that condition at a late hour last night, while her daughter received several bruises. It is feared the son will die.

DID MOTHER KILL BABE, OR WAS IT A DOUBLE MURDER?

Beamsville, Ont., July 6.—The post mortem on the body of Edna Comfort and that of her son, Roland Comfort, both found in the Beamsville reservoir, is not expected to show any new or sensational developments. The accepted theory of the case is simply one of murder and suicide, and the doctor's work to-day supports that theory. It is a lucky thing for the village water-users, however, that the body of the child came to light when it did. No trace of the child's go-cart has yet been discovered.

The body of the child's mother was only brought up at 11 o'clock last night, after five hours' of hard work. Doctors Fairchild and Findley, with Hill at work on the job, had a busy time.

The woman was not married, this being her second child.

OFF TO PICK BERRIES.

The young mother, whose parents are farmers on the outskirts of the village, suddenly disappeared from home on Monday night. As she had been in the habit of frequently going away to pick berries on neighbors' farms, her parents paid little attention to her absence, feeling that she would return as on former occasions when she would be away for five or six days at a time.

Shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday Mr. I. Tufford, whose farm is near the reservoir, was walking along the side of the basin when he noticed the lifeless form of a child floating in the water. He promptly notified Constable Tufford, a brother, who went out and took charge of the remains. As there were several nasty bruises on the child's forehead the constable's suspicion of foul play was aroused. After the remains had been identified he proceeded to the Comfort home, and discovered that the mother of the dead child was also missing.

The young woman had apparently visited several farm houses, and finally was discovered on the other side of the strawberry patches she had with her her three-year-old boy.

After the midday lunch it was noticed that the girl did not return to work.

TRAPPED IN NEW YORK SUB-WAY—MANY DEATHS REPORTED

New York, July 6.—A blockade in the Subway to-day capped the misery of the hot wave. When the stalled trains finally crept into the underground stations fainting passengers were helped out by the score. Many had to be carried to near-by drug stores and some taken to hospitals. While the blockade lasted the list of heat prostrations grew faster than at any previous time since the extreme hot weather began.

There was no change for the better to-day as compared with Wednesday. At 10 o'clock the mercury had reached 84, and six deaths had been reported up to that time. While the heat was considerably less severe than on Monday and Tuesday, the cumulative effect of four days of suffering kept the hospitals busy with new arrivals. One man gave up the struggle against the weather and threw himself in front of a railroad train on the upper west side. His legs were cut off and he will die.

Relief is promised by to-morrow with hope of thunder showers to-night.

STAND AGAINST EDUCATION TAX

London, July 6.—Dr. John Clifford, the non-conformist minister, has again refused to pay the sectarian State education tax. Dr. Clifford is at present in Canada, and he has written to the authorities saying that they can either distrain his goods or his wife or arrange to imprison him on his return to England.

The non-conformists protest against being taxed for the up-keep of Church schools.

PROPOSES NEW STEAMSHIP LINE

London, July 6.—The Manchester Guardian understands that the Right Honorable Louis Carcourt has addressed a dispatch to Earl Grey regarding a steamship service between Canada and the West Indies. He proposes alternate fortnightly sailings of 16-knot steamers with direct communication with Montreal during the summer.

ROOF GARDEN FOR MEMBERS

Ottawa, July 6.—Officials of the House of Commons are preparing to make the members as comfortable as possible during the heated term. Electric fans are being installed in the chamber of the House and throughout the Parliament Buildings. A ton of ice per day, will be used in cooling the currents of air that furnish ventilation to the chamber. The flat roofs of the new wing will probably be covered by awnings and fitted up as a roof garden to which members can resort for a breath of air from time to time.

Attracting Much Attention.

Every night about 7.30 o'clock, a large number of future big league baseball players collect on the market square to choose up and give an exhibition of fine ball.

Last evening the youngsters drew a crowd of 100 people and an exhibition of spicy ball playing, was given. The score was tied in the ninth, and made things very interesting. The umpire got chased off the field for a bad decision and narrowly escaped with his life. A fight between two of the players was the next course and "the kids" also succeeded in giving a good exhibition of self defence.

After the game a substantial collection was gathered from well satisfied fans and the crowd dispersed.

GET CONTRACT.

Ottawa, July 6.—It is stated in well informed quarters here that the contract for the construction of the ships of the Canadian navy has been definitely awarded to the British-Canadian Shipbuilding and Dock Company, which has its headquarters at Sydney, N. S.

The company includes amongst its directors: Sir Henry Pellatt, of Toronto; Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lt.-Gov. of Ontario; Sir Charles Ellis, chairman of The John Brown Company, of Clyde Bank, Scotland, which constructed the Lusitania and the Mauretania and others prominent in British shipbuilding circles.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

CAUSE, RUSH OF BLOOD. FULLNESS, DIZZINESS.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the steam always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it seizes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute.

Dogs.

Dogs were formerly indigenous to the indigent, but since the advent of dog licenses, whereby a dog, without a maid or a will, is presumed to be guilty until it is proved innocent of same, they have been grafted on family trees, with their own shaggy heredity, as substitutes for children, thereby furnishing considerable consolation for race suicide.

Dogs are divided into two great classes — pedigreed and verdigreed. Verdigreed are of two kinds — mad dogs and dogs. Pedigreed are of several kinds, chief among which are watch dogs and sheep-dogs. Watch-dogs are so called because they are small enough, and usually cranky enough, to be carried around in the place of watches by people who have plenty of time. Sheep-dogs are so called because they are led around by sheepish-looking people.

Those dogs are considered the finest by connoisseurs which look the ugliest to other people.

Challenge the Judge.

It was a case in an Irish court, and, the prisoner seeming hard to satisfy, juryman after juryman was asked to leave the box. However, all things come to an end, even in Ireland, and at last the swearing of the jury was completed. And then the prisoner leaned over the dock and sought the ear of his counsel.

"The jury's all right now, I think," he whispered; "but ye must challenge the judge. I've been convicted under him siviral times already, and maybe he's beginnin' to have a prejudice."

Sophistry of a Sophist.

A certain archbishop, when asked woman to misstate her age, replied: "A lie may be defined as a statement made by one rational being to another rational being, with the intent to deceive. Now, as no rational being would think of asking a woman her age with the expectation of being answered truthfully, one of the elements of the lie is lacking, and the woman's statement cannot, strictly speaking, be defined as such."

Australia has Tallest Tree.

Australia claims to have the tallest tree in the world. It has long been thought that to California belongs this distinction, but, while California trees are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to Australia's eucalyptus trees. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The tallest tree in California yet discovered was found by actual measurement to be 346ft high. Australia's record gum tree can beat this by 146ft.

CANADIAN CHEESE IN ENGLAND.

Stocks Low But Good Outlook for Coming Season.

It is reported on the London market that there is a satisfactory outlook for Canadian cheese for the coming season. Advices received by the British shippers indicate that the cows have wintered well, being in an improved condition compared with last spring. Hardly sufficient cheese remained to supply local requirements in the Dominion, and new fodder may be utilized to supply the deficiency. Fair quantities of Canadian fodder make are expected to arrive in Britain in the latter half of May and in June. The bacon trade has not been quite as encouraging as the cheese department, so far as prices go. Lately values have been on the down grade, whilst it has been difficult to make a clearance, even at lower prices. The prices have proved unremunerative to the importers owing to the heavy cost of raw material. For some time the retailers have been making not little profit, and there is a great reluctance to indulge in excessive speculations. More bacon is on the market at present than can be easily disposed of. So far the arrivals from Canada, Russia, and Denmark have been heavier than was the case last year. Sheen is also plentiful in the United States but this is chiefly of heavy weights, unsuitable for the British markets. There should be an improved demand later on, when London is full of visitors for the June Coronation festivities.

Stock of Cheese.

The stock of Canadian cheese in London recently was larger than was the case at the corresponding period last year, but there is now a decrease; there is a scarcity of September make and under-priced kinds. The output of cheese in New Zealand this season has been interrupted, owing to the adverse weather conditions; the consignments received on this side were fully seven per cent below the previous season's shipments. This may be an important factor in influencing the trend of prices realised for the Canadian and other importations. This year has seen an increase in the quantity of cheese imported from the United States.

THE BOY ON THE FARM.

Kindness Does More Than Harshness for Future Farmer.

There is the making of a good man in the boy on the farm, but he can be irreparably spoiled in the making, if too much is put upon him; if his shoulders are loaded with blame for everything that goes wrong indoors and out; if everybody feels privileged to give him orders, and if he is regarded as a mere machine without capacities to tire, sensibilities to wound, intellect to stimulate, or a soul to inspire with longings for better things. Those into whose hands are committed these youths ordained to eat their bread in the sweat of their faces, have a responsibility above that of merely providing food, shelter and clothing. An employer may be harboring an angel unawares, and whether this be true or not, there is laid upon him the duty of dealing justly and conscientiously with the lad.

A VALUABLE APPLE TREE.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Offered for One Tree.

Thirty thousand dollars was the sum recently offered an eastern Washington nursery company for an apple tree located near Lake Chelan. The proffer was made by a syndicate which desired to propagate the tree. It was turned down by the nursery company, which will develop the fruit itself.

The tree is twenty years old and is called the Chelan. The fruit is golden yellow and is said to be different from that of any other apple grown in Washington. It is also said to possess exceptional keeping qualities, a box having been kept in storage in Spokane for two years without any marked deterioration.

Twenty years ago, the story runs, an Indian planted a handful of apple seeds, three of which grew. The fruit of only one of the trees was good for anything. The tree is now of great size and a prodigious bearer. Last year at the national apple show at Spokane fruit from the tree took first prize for new varieties of apples.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

THE STARTLING ALIBI OF
H. STANLEIGH STORME

(By Wm. Hamilton Osborne).

tal P.

Ever since his arrest, in fact, the newspapers had heaped abuse and calumny upon the police department and its officers.

The comic papers took it up. Everybody—H. Stanleigh Storme included—considered the affair in the light of a huge joke.

H. Stanleigh Storme was not a stranger in the place. True, he had lived there for only about three years, but he had come to town loaded with the best recommendations and letters of introduction from large eastern cities, and, what is more, he had made his advent with his pockets full of money.

He was a man of leisure. Single as he was, and attractive as he made himself, he had been in great demand.

Socially he was a lion, and he was as popular with the men as he was with the women.

For perhaps a year after his arrival Storme had held himself somewhat aloof—he made no attempt to force himself into any circle, the consequence being that within a short period of time he was sought by the most exclusive.

He made no display of his wealth, but the banks knew that he carried large balances, which never dwindled. He even kept in the two savings banks large sums which remained untouched.

He paid his bills, and rarely asked credit—when he did so it was purely as a matter of business, and he always settled on the due date, never earlier or later.

Many a mother with marriageable daughters had courted Storme with assiduity and perseverance, but without success. But Storme avoided entangling alliances of any kind—at least, he had done so thus far.

To all men he was the same courtly gentleman.

Whatever mystery had attended his advent was dispelled as the years went on, and now H. Stanleigh Storme was a much better known man than many an old-time resident of the place.

It was small wonder, therefore, that the town poohpoohed the charge upon which he was being tried.

The courtroom was overcrowded—overcrowded with the beauty and the chivalry, the wealth and the aristocracy of the place.

It was a gay and interesting sight, more like an afternoon reception than aught else.

Storm sat at one of the tables inside the railing, with his counsel next to him. He faced the jury, but as he did so, turned now and then, apparently to seek some familiar face in the audience.

Having found it, he simply raised his eyebrows significantly. He did not nod his head.

He felt that it was unfair to his friends to do it. He preferred to await the issue of the trial.

If at these times he sought the face of Miss Helen Dumont he was disappointed. She was not there, nor in fact were very many of the very exclusive inner set.

Still Storme kept his eyes roving back and forth among the crowd until the trial begin.

Burke—a plain clothes man—was on the stand. He had just been sworn.

The prosecutor leaned against the railing in an easy, careless manner. Burke looked first at the jury and then at the prosecutor.

"Shall I tell my story, sir?" he said.

"Yes, tell your story, Burke," assented the other.

The witness turned to the jury.

"It was on the twenty-third of last month," he began. "I was ordered uptown on special duty. It don't make no difference where I was—it was the night o' that anarchist row in the hall up there I got through at ten minutes after 1.

"It was a bad night—buckets full o' rain an' a hurricane to back it up. It was fierce. An' dark as pitch, too,—half the lights were out.

"I had to walk from Manning's Hall up there 'way across town. There weren't any cars except about once an hour that time o' night, an' I had to get back to headquarters an' report.'

"Wel, now, Burke," interrupted the district attorney, "tell us just what happened, and talk a bit more slowly."

Burke nodded again.

"Well," continued Burke, leaning over confidentially towards the jury box, "I'd reached about Munroe an' Lafayette streets when I heard the sound of a night stick somewhere in the vicinity. I knew by the sound it wasn't a roundsman, an' I stepped to locate it.

"Then I set out on a dead run for the place. About two blocks away I run into Officer O'Connell. He wasn't rappin' then, 'cause, I suppose, he'd heard me comin'. I knew something was up, for he was long past due at that place at that time of night—"

'Is he here?" interrupted the district attorney.

"He is, sir," continued the witness; "there he sits, sir. Well, O'Connell, he says to me—"

The counsel for the defence sprang to his feet.

"Never mind what O'Connell said," he interposed.

The witness snorted and began again.

"In consequence," continued he, with a triumphant smile at the prisoner's attorney—"in consequence of a conversation I had with O'Connell at that corner—'

'Now, what corner?" impatiently demanded the prisoner's counsel.

"The corner o' Washington an' Monroe," returned the witness. "If you'll give me time I'll tell you all there is to tell. At the corner o' Washington an' Monroe and 'in consequence o' that I went with him to the next corner, Washington avenue and First street. That's what I did, sir."

"Well, what did you find there?" asked the district attorney. "Go on."

"I found this bank there, sir, on the southwest corner — Mordaunt's Bank, sir, an' O'Connell told me—"

The prisoner's counsel again jumped to his feet.

"What did you do, Burke?" inquired the district attorney. "Tell us what you did."

"Well," replied Burke, uncertainly, "I didn't do nothin' just then. I went up on the stoop and looked through the little hole in the outside doors, and I didn't see but that everything looked all right, an' I told O'Connell—"

"That is to say, sir," he continued, hastily, "I stayed there with O'Connell for a time, about ten minutes, I should say. And here's where the queer thing happened, gentlemen," and Burke warmed up now that he had reached th interesting stage.

"Me an' O'Connell was just startin' in to reconnoiter when we heard a big racket at the front door—it's on the corner, cater-cornered like. It was the vestibule inside door he tackled first, o' course, 'n' we heard some bolts shook back; 'n' then all of a sudden something snaps very quick and loud and the big iron doors openspout, and a fellow comes down the front steps. He didn't come down right away, either, for he saw us there. We feased him a bit, I guess.

"As I said, it was dark an' rainin' pitchforks, but we could see this fellow come down all right, me an' O'Connell, an' we both snapped our lanterns on him at the same time. So we had him in a light that was double strength.

"An' the fellow had on a high hat—one o' them dull looking things, not a regular stove pipe—an' full dress—we could see just a bit of his shirt—an' a long overcoat. Them's the first things we noticed.

"An' if he hadn't turned round when the light flashed on him we'd a nabbed him then and there. But he did turn round an' looked at us—an' you could a knocked us both down with a feather, me an' O'Connell—for we knew the man well, both of us did.

"Well, to make a long story short, while we was both standing there paralyzed with heart disease pretty near, an' both of us with guns, the fellow turned an' made for it, an' us after him—me and O'Connell.

"We'd a caught him, too, but for its bein' such a night, but it was so dark an' so windy, we couldn't 'rack him by sight or by sound, so finally we lost him an' give it up for good.

"We came back o the bank, an' I stayed there while O'Connell went for young Mr. Mordaunt; an' he dressed himself an' come, an' we found that everything had been smashed open—it was done clever, too, an' sixty thousand odd dollars an' some cents was gone clean."

"Did you find anything else?" inquired the prosecutor.

"Not that night," responded Burke, "but the next day we found that one o' the side windows had been entered The bars were sawn clean apart, an' stuck together again with some kind o' stuff. An' the window pane had been cut an' forced, an' the piece that he'd cut out he'd pasted on again. That's the reason we didn't find it that night. It was done too clever."

"And did you recognise the man?" queried the district attorney.

"I did, sir," answered the witness, an' so did O'Connell. We both knew him—"

...TS $10,000 FOR A TIP.

For Giving Information About Big Property in Bronx.

Thirteen years ago, on a New York park bench, Thomas Corrigan told Patrick Goff about unclaimed property in the Bronx that belonged to a cousin, Henry Goff, who had been drowned leaving no immediate heirs. On the strength of the tip, Goff got possession of property worth $250,000. Corrigan is now suing for $10,000, which he says Goff promised him. Goff says he never promised any such thing, but gave Corrigan $50.

REAL GOLD BRICKS.

Kilns Erected on Ancient Gold Mines in India.

Gold bricks, real ones, may be the means of restoring the ancient fame of Golconda, near Hyderabad, in southern India, once known all the world over for its gold mines, but now a decayed city. The natural pits from which many centuries ago the precious metal was extracted have in course of time filled up with water. A contractor recently obtained permission to make bricks near the place and ten kilns were erected. The first finished bricks aroused curiosity by their yellowish tint, and analysis proved that they contained gold dust. On the basis of the yield of the sample bricks, the ten kilns will aggregate in weight about 12,567 pounds of gold worth over $50,000,000. The site of the find belongs to the Nizam, or native ruler.

IF!

A credulous man was the cause of the commercial traveller.

When Mooney the blacksmith declared he was 60, he believed him, despite the blacksmith's robust appearance, for robust blacksmiths seldom show their age.

When Susan the spinster declared she was 32, he believed her also, despite her crowsfeets and greying hairs(for spinsters do not care to show their age, either.

But when Isaac the idiot wrote the figures 120 under the heading "Father, if living," the Census commissioner rubbed his nose doubtfully, and thought this was a little too much.

"You don't mean to say," he exclaimed, "that your father is really 120 years old?"

"No o' course 'e ain't!" retorted Isaac complacently. "But 'e would 'a' been if livin'."

Her Habit.

"What do you think the young wife of old Moneybags has developed into? She is always crossing or recrossing the ocean. She certainly keeps the transatlantic line busy."

You know, she was formerly a telephone girl.

Sent That Fly.

The transmission of disease by the fly is no longer a mere theory, but is a truth that has been scientifically established.

Keep the flies out of your house. Get screens for the doors and the windows. Be on guard all the time.

Keep screens over articles of food. Don't let flies get near the pantry, kitchen or dining-room.

Be doubly careful about keeping flies out of the sick-room. They are likely not only to bring complications of new diseases, but to carry the invalid's disease to many others.

Those who put in their screens promptly will be taking the best precaution against having disease germs introduced into their homes by flies.

There is more health in a house well screened than in many a doctor's visit.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual work will be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

BRITISH STANDARD BEARER.

Lieutenant Harrison, the tallest officer in the British Army, will carry the standard of the Royal Horse Guards Blue in the Coronation procession. The standard was presented to the Blues by King William on August 13th, 1831, Queen Adelaide's Birthday. The last time it was carried was the first Jubilee of Queen Victoria, when the Queen went from Slough to Windsor.

AFRICANS LIKE UNIFORMS.

Much money is made out of cast-off police uniforms. Quantities are bought by African traders and exported to various parts of the "Dark Continent," where they are exchanged for palm-oil, ivory, skins, and other merchandise. It is by no means an uncommon sight to see a swarthy savage dressed in the uniform of a policeman, and wearing the regulation helmet of the force.

Stories of the Prince of Wales.

Many quaint and amusing anecdotes are related of the Prince of Wales as a small child, one being that he and his sister and brothers were invited out to tea at some Court lady's house, and when the hour for departure came he could nowhere be found to say good-bye to his hostess.

On investigation it was discovered that he had hurried downstairs alone to secure what he considered his proper place in the carriage.

It is also reported of him that, on his first attending afternoon church one Sunday, he remembered how often he had been told to thank his entertainers for their hospitality; so on this occasion he looked anxiously about for someone to be grateful to. The only person who came handy was the verger, who, rather to his discomfiture, had his hand grasped by the little prince, and was informed in a childish voice:—

"Thank you so much for a very pleasant afternoon!"

WHERE THE "DOME" DID NOT PART.

Old Baseball Players Give Their Experiences.

"Bonehead Barry!" That's what they usually say of a player when he accidentally or otherwise permits himself to be hit on the "dome" by a batted or pitched ball. While some of these plays have been anything but pleasant to the man hit, there's no question but most of them prove humorous to the fans, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

I have seen many players hit on the head with batted or thrown balls," said Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, "but the funniest play of this kind happened when I was with the Giants. "Jack" Dunn was playing third base at the time and a foul fly was sent up near third base.

"I was catching and started after the ball until he shouted 'I've got it.' He seemed to be camped under it all right until the sun got in his eyes and he lost the ball. It came and hit him on the top of the head. The ball knocked 'Jacks' cap off, and, as he was as bald as a doorknob and very sensitive about his slick dome, he made a wild scramble to recover the top-piece."

"A play which seems almost an impossibility, but one that is an actual fact, was performed by Ben Koehler and Hugh Frisk, two former St. Louis outfielders," said Secretary Lloyd H. Rickart, of the Browns.

"In a game several years ago a ball was hit midway between center and right. Koehler and Frisk started for it. Koehler, the usually reliable, muffed that he had the ball. But he began dancing around and finally lost in the sun. He 'ducked' to avoid being struck, but the ball came down, hit him on the head, bounded up, and right, the uncertain, caught it for the out."

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,—is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt—would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the men of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your terms are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have beenpresenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties.

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $3,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal." Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gauntlet to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Honna River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Honna River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your money in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street east to Spruce street. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Honna River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1,000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Massett Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Convincing evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island compiled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 23 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, said plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

KOOTENAY JAM A FINE PROPOSITION

The Directors of the Kootenay Jam Company, Ltd., have decided to increase the capital stock of their Company and are offering for public subscription 30,000 additional shares at the par value of $1.00 each. The money derived from the sale of this stock will be applied only for developing the Company's present operations and more particularly for the purpose of organizing new branches of the Company's business.

The Old Factory of the Company was located at Nelson B. C., and the Directors decided to change the location to Mission, B. C. The saving effected by this change alone will be sufficient to pay 7 per cent. on the present paid up capital.

The New Factory is a commodious building of two floors and is 140 ft. long by 75 feet wide, with a floor area of over 16,000 square feet. The steam plant is of the most modern description and capable of handling a large volume of business. The building also has ample accommodation for installing the necessary machinery required by the New Departments.

The cost to the Company of this New Factory will amount to approximately $9,000, and for a building of this size, fully equipped and with a large area of ground, the above amount is a very moderate one.

By the change in the location of the factory from Nelson to Mission, B. C., the Company have the advantage of a large market for the finished product right at the factory doors. The important and growing cities of Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Nanaimo are all within a few hours run and together form one vast market of close upon 250,000 people.

The New Departments which the Company are adding are:—First—Separate Department for the manufacture of Chocolate and Cocoa. The plant for this Department will be one of the most modern, and capable of turning out half a ton of the finished product per working day. The Company are in full possession of figures regarding the plant and a well-known expert will be engaged as Managing Superintendent of the new branch. This New Department, will enable the management to keep all their help fully employed all the year around, instead of being compelled to dispense with them during the slack seasons as heretofore; this will assure us of more reliable help and at a proportionately less expense.

Another new and important Department of the Company's will be the Land Department. This has been organized for the purpose of dealing in fruit ranches and lands located in the vicinity of the Company's factory, and acting as agents for the disposal of same to intending settlers. As an inducement for new settlers to deal with them, the Company are prepared to give a guarantee to all purchasers that they will handle and provide a cash market for all fruit grown on the land. Owing to the nature of the Company's business, we have exceptional facilities for the profitable handling of this branch of the business. The working expenses of the Department will be very small and the profits should make a welcome addition to the dividends of the Company.

NO HATPINS NEEDED.

Hatpins are not required for several of the new types of toques. Instead, the drapery trimming of the toques is wound rather tightly around the head and lower part of the toque body in a manner which reminds one of the cloths women wind around their heads as a dust protector when cleaning house. The free end of the drapery is fastened by means of hooks and eyes after being wound.

TIT BIT KNOWLEDGE.

For the cotton gowns the predilection is for colored embroideries. The colors of the embroideries are pink, rose, old blue, light blue, lavender and yellow.

Sleeves are short in all save the strictly tailored garments, and by short is meant a termination of the sleeve just at or an inch or more above the elbow.

Sashes are worn a great deal with afternoon toilets.

Paris decrees black velvet slippers for evening toilets.

Blind embroidery and English eyelet are both favorites for the separate white waist.

It is going to be a great cotton season, and cottons are going to be tolerated where formerly they have been prohibited.

To be really fashionable this season one must be slender. An silhouette is the rule of the day, a rule modish women are trying religiously to follow.

If a net blouse is to be laundered it should be ironed on the wrong side while it is quite damp, with a clean and moderately hot iron. This causes the new fabric to stiffen. Lace may be treated in the same way.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gauntlet to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Honna River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Honna River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grubbing of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Honna River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that the Island Railway railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Masset Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the Islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island supplied with an illustrated edition of the resources of the Islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 32 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

KOOTENAY JAM CO.

A FINE PROPOSITION

The Directors of the Kootenay Jam Company, Ltd., have decided to increase the capital stock of their Company and are offering for public subscription 30,000 additional shares at the par value of $1.00 each. The money derived from the sale of this stock will be applied only for developing the Company's present operations and more particularly for the purpose of organizing new branches of the Company's business.

The Old Factory of the Company was located at Nelson B. C., and the Directors decided to change the location to Mission, B. C. The saving effected by this change alone will be sufficient to pay 7 per cent. on the present paid up capital.

The New Factory is a commodious building of two floors and is 140 ft. long by 75 feet wide, with a floor area of over 16,000 square feet. The steam plant is of the most modern description and capable of handling a large volume of business. The building also has ample accommodation for installing the necessary machinery required by the New Departments.

The cost to the Company of this New Factory will amount to approximately $9,000, and for a building of this size, fully equipped and with a large area of ground, the above amount is a very moderate one.

By the change in the location of the factory from Nelson to Mission, B. C., the Company have the advantage of a large market for the finished product right at the factory doors. The important and growing cities of Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Nanaimo are all within a few hours run and together form one vast market of close upon 250,000 people.

The New Departments which the Company are adding are:—First—Separate Department for the manufacture of Chocolate and Cocoa. The plant for this Department will be one of the most modern, and capable of turning out half a ton of the finished product per working day. The Company are in full possession of figures regarding the plant and a well-known expert will be engaged as Managing Superintendent of the new branch. This New Department will enable the management to keep all their help fully employed all the year around, instead of being compelled to dispense with them during the slack seasons as heretofore; this will assure us of more reliable help and at a proportionately less expense.

Another new and important Department of the Company's will be the Land Department. This has been organized for the purpose of dealing in fruit ranches and lands located in the vicinity of the Company's factory, and acting as agents for the disposal of same to intending settlers. As an inducement for new settlers to deal with them, the Company are prepared to give a guarantee to all purchasers that they will handle and provide a cash market for all fruit grown on the land. Owing to the nature of the Company's business, we have exceptional facilities for the profitable handling of this branch of the business. The working expenses of the Department will be very small and the profits should make a welcome addition to the dividends of the Company.

NO HATPINS NEEDED.

Hatpins are not required for several of the new types of toques. Instead, the drapery trimming of the toques is wound rather tightly around the head and lower part of the toque body in a manner which reminds one of the cloths women wind around their heads as a dust protector when cleaning house. The free end of the drapery is fastened by means of hooks and eyes after being wound.

TIT BIT KNOWLEDGE.

For the cotton gowns the predilection is for colored embroideries. The colors of the embroideries are pink, rose, old blue, light blue, lavender and yellow.

Sleeves are short in all save the strictly tailored garments, and by short is meant a termination of the sleeve just at or an inch or more above the elbow.

Sashes are worn a great deal with afternoon toilets.

Paris decrees black velvet slippers for evening toilets.

Blind embroidery and English eyelet are both favorites for the separate white waist.

It is going to be a great cotton season, and cottons are going to be colored where formerly they have been prohibited.

To be really fashionable this season one must be slender. An silhouette is the rule of the day, a rule modish women are trying religiously to follow.

If a pet blouse is to be laundered it should be ironed on the wrong side while it is quite damp, with a clean and moderately hot iron. This causes the new fabric to stiffen. Lace may be treated in the same way.

MUSCULAR CHRISTIANITY.

Teacher Bible Sunday Scene Monday.

Although he parts his name in the middle, the man who would "kid" A. J. Drexel-Biddle upon the fact are few and far between.

Biddle is as complex a character as you will find in "Who's Who." He preaches, encourages and teaches boxing and instructs the largest and one of the most successful Bible classes in Philadelphia.

"Anthony J." to the members of the fashionable set, he is "Tony" to a host of young athletes who have found in him a friend, time and again. His private gymnasium has permitted many young boxers to train who otherwise would not have been able so do so.

Biddle is an unique character in the religious world and the manner which he attended his work proves that his [illegible] is radical.

At the Police Court yesterday Earl F. Schweier, the particulars of whose arrest appeared in our last issue, was charged with breaking into the house of J. W. Edwards, Sherbrooke street, with intent to commit an indictable offence, and stealing therefrom one revolver, one pair of trousers, $3.25 in cash and a box of cartridges. He pleaded guilty to the charge and Mr. R. E. Wood, Crown Attorney, asked for a remand until Saturday. The offence was committed on the 29th of June.

Sad Accident in North Monaghan.

On Wednesday afternoon a sad and fatal accident occurred in North Monaghan, resulting in the death of Mr. Thomas Andrews, of that township. It appears the deceased was helping to haul hay into the barn, and on getting down from the load, slipped and fell, alighting on a cross beam in the barn and breaking several ribs. He was conveyed to his home and medical aid summoned, but the shock to his system was too great, and he passed away several hours later. A further notice in reference to deceased will be found elsewhere.

Drowned at Cobourg

William Cook, a former resident of this city, was drowned in Cobourg a few days ago. He worked when in Peterborough for Mr. Adam Hall, and left for Cobourg on Tuesday evening. It is supposed that he accidentally fell into the lake off the pier. The body was recovered yesterday, and will be sent to Madoc where the deceased resided before coming to Peterborough.

To Play At Scarboro.

The 57th Band has secured a week's engagement to play at Scarboro Beach, beginning on July 17th, giving two programmes daily. This is an evidence of the popularity of the band as a musical organization, and reflects the greatest credit on Mr. Rupert Gliddon, its talented leader. The proposition means considerable work for the band as twelve different programmes will have to be given the contract, which was signed yesterday providing for this. The band will be paid $700 and expenses for the week's engagement for thirty men.

Wheel Came Off Express Waggon Eastern League.

Yesterday morning, about 10.30 o'clock, while an express waggon was proceeding along Charlotte Street, at a fairly good gait, one of the front wheels got loose and fell off in front of the Curling Rink. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. BIG ELECTRICAL STORM

YESTERDAY MORNING'S STORM DID MUCH DAMAGE.

Several Barns Burned and Other Property Destroyed—Was Fierce on Stoney Lake — Bridgenorth Also Suffered.

The electric storm yesterday morning was one of the worst that has occurred in years, so far as damage to property is concerned. Following the extreme heat of Wednesday, it rapidly developed into a grand display of heavenly artillery and fireworks. In places the wind did considerable damage, tearing down buildings and uprooting barns, &c. At Bridgenorth the premises of Mr. A. John, suffered, as also did several outbuildings belonging to people in the neighborhood.

At Lakefield an unoccupied house near the station was practically demolished. In Smith the fine barns of Mr. Harry Garbett, near Lakefield were struck by lightning and totally destroyed, the handsome house being with difficulty saved.

Lightning struck the chimney of Mrs. Armour, 145 Rubidge street. Running down the chimney it smashed out every stop and finally made its exit through the hall into the street, carrying with it clouds of smoke and dust. The roof of the dwelling of Mrs. Pethwick, 195 Park street, also suffered damage. Tiles and beams were shivered, and pieces of the wood were thrown out on the street. Men are now at work repairing the damage.

During the electric storm this morning, a bolt came in on the wire in the C. G. E., and burned out one of the big machines in the Test Dept., and a number of employees of that department were thrown out of work for a few hours.

A barn in Otonabee and one in Dummer are also said to have been destroyed.

BUFFALO WILD WEST

An Aggregation That is Exciting Wide Interest.

With the Young Buffalo Wild West show, which will exhibit in this city next Saturday, July 8th, afternoon and night, is Ambrose Means, the dare-devil American cowboy, who, with the Buffalo Jones expedition, invaded the East African veldt, and so astonished the animals of the dark continent that they humbly submitted to the indignity of being "bound hand and foot" by Means and his associates. Speaking of this exploit before the New York Press Club ex-President Roosevelt said: "I speak with absolute accuracy. To tackle these beasts with a rifle is one thing, but to tackle them with a rope, the way that Buffalo Jones and Ambrose Means did, is a perfectly marvelous feat. Everybody laughed at the idea. I didn't think it possible to rope a lion or rhinoceros, and I congratulate these men with all my heart." Ambrose Means will, at every exhibition of the Young Buffalo Wild West show, give vivid illustrations of just how he accomplished what is conceded to be the most daring deed ever conceived by man in all the history of the world, using a herd of charging buffaloes in the demonstrations. Means is one of the bright stars in the Young Buffalo Wild West show, but he is not the "whole show" by long odds. There are at least a score of men and women with the aggregation who have won international fame for acts of skill and deeds requiring extraordinary nerve. Annie Oakley, the world's greatest woman rifle shot; Capt. Bogardus, the undefeated champion marksman of the world, Curtis Liston and Col. Stewart form a quartet of sharpshooters the like of which has never before been gathered for any tented amusement enterprise. There are over 700 men and women with the Young Buffalo shows, and Rough Riders from all quarters of the globe. A big street parade will be given at 10.00 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition at which time the Indians from ten tribes, cowboys, Cingalese, cowgirls, Mexican rurales and lariat throwers, U. S. cavalrymen, and N. W. mounted police will be seen.

BUY

ROYAL PORCUPINE

Quoted at 32 to 33 Cents

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 19, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MEISSNER, M. E.,
"Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000 par value of shares $1.00. Full paid and non-assessable. No personal liability.

A glance at the list of directors will show the class of men who are putting in their money and time to make this one of the greatest mines in the Porcupine Camp. The directors are:—

JAMES KENDRY,
Peterboro, Ontario; ex-Member of Parliament, President Auburn Woollen Mills.

T. E. BRADBURN,
Member Parliament, Peterboro, Ontario; Private Banker.

ARCHIBALD L. ALLAN,
New York, Hiram Walker & Sons.

JACOB RAPOPORT,
New York, Jacob Rapoport & Co., Merchants.

HAMILTON KILGOUR,

WARREN N. AKERS,
Wilmington, Del.

Remember, that our judgment on Hollinger, Dome Extension and Vigond was correct, and we believe the Royal Porcupine will prove one of your best investments.

The Hollinger stock was originally offered at $3.50 and now sells at around $15.50, and Dome Extension was first offered at 40c., and now sells at around 84c.

Royal Porcupine stock may be purchased through any member of the New York Curb Association, or we will be glad to execute your orders.

DRUG CLERK LIKELY TO DIE M'RAE NOT ALLOWED BAIL

SHAW, THE CARP MAN WHO WAS SHOT BY McRAE, MAY NOT LIVE 24 HOURS.

Crown Attorney Protests Against Manner in Which the Case Has Been Conducted.

Cornwall, Ont., July 7.—The attendance at the arraignment this morning of Reeve F. D. McRae, who is charged with shooting Shaw, the Carp drug clerk, at Bridge End, Glengarry, when Dr. Magee tried to recover his son last Saturday, was much smaller than most people anticipated In fact, outside of the neighbors and friends of Mr. McRae, the accused uncle of Mrs. Magee, who had come up to hear the case, less than two score were present. Police Magistrate Denis of Cornwall presided, Counties Attorney Dingwall appeared for the Crown, J. A. Chisholm and R. A. Pringle, K. C., for the prisoner.

Mr. Dingwall said that the complaint was improper and objected to the ante-mortem statement of Shaw, which was drawn up by Mr. Pringle, who now appeared for the defence. He had not been permitted to see the wounded man. He read a note from Dr. D. O. Alguire that shows that Shaw's condition was much worse, and that he might not live twenty-four hours. He could not understand why he had not been sent for when Mr. Shaw's statement was made. He had telegraphed to Dr. Magee to be here this morning, but he had not arrived, and he, The Counties' Attorney, was not at the moment prepared to go on. The charge should be changed from shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm to shooting with intent to murder.

Pringle's Explanation.

R. A. Pringle explained that he was called out at bed time to the Cornwall General Hospital to take the ante-mortem statement of Mr. Shaw, who was said to have a very short time to live. He would have been recreant to his duty had he not gone at once, which he did. The police magistrate was then aroused and taken to the town hall, where the various sections of the act were read to Dr. Magee and the information laid on which Mr. McRae was arrested on Monday. He had declined being retained, for the prosecution, until he had consulted Dr. Magee by phone. With the laying of the information his duties ended.

$15,000 Bail Offered.

Mr. Pringle then pointed out that a prisoner convicted under either sections 264 or 273 was liable to the same punishment. He had no objection to a reasonable remand of seven days, but would ask that Mr. McRae be released on bail in the meantime. They were willing to give $15,000 bail. He pointed out Mr. McRae was a well-known farmer, who besides his own work, had to attend to his duties as Reeve of Lancaster township.

Police Magistrate Denis said that he did not wish to exercise his power to grant bail just at present. He would suspend his judgment on this point in the meantime, and would remand the accused till next Friday.

It will be remembered that Shaw was shot by McRae when leaving with the automobile party that had tried to recover Dr. Magee's baby, which the mother, a Roman Catholic, who left her husband because of religious differences, possessed.

READY TO RACE THOUSANDS ORANGEMEN INTO HULL

Trains at Pembroke and Newington to be Held Ready to Race Orangemen to Hull If There is Any Trouble There on July 12th

Ottawa, July 8.—T-R-O-U-B-L-E—in capitals and with a big "T" is evidently anticipated by the Orangemen when they parade in Hull on the Twelfth of July.

Ominous to a degree are the latest reports regarding the preparations for the day.

It has been learned that the Orangemen who intended going to Pembroke, Newington and other nearby towns on the Twelfth, are to make arrangements with the railway companies to leave the excursion trains which take them to these places, all day at the various points at which celebrations are being held.

The object of this is, that at the first intimation that their brethren at Hull are in difficulties, the Orange parades at these places will be called off, and thousands of Orangemen will be rushed Hull-ward, as re-inforcements. In fact, the preparations begin to take on the appearance of the mobilizing of an army, and there are those who are already expressing the fear that the Twelfth of July at Hull will be marked by something very nearly resembling a second "Battle of the Boyne."

So much feeling has been aroused on both sides in connection with the affair, and other recent incidents have so stimulated antagonism, that the saner heads of both Orangemen and Catholics are finding it difficult to see how it will be possible to prevent a clash, if a parade is held.

The trouble at Buckingham was serious; but it is pointed out that Buckingham is a village of two hundred inhabitants, and the Orangemen there outnumbered the Catholics five to one.

At Hull, however, it will be very different. Four-fifths of Hull's 30,000 population is Catholic, and should trouble commence, and the reinforcements proposed be brought in from the outside towns, the difficulty is likely to assume proportions of a most serious and regrettable character.

JEROME CRONK HANGED HIMSELF

To a Beam in the Barn at Refuge Institution.

Bellleville, July 7.—Jerome Cronk, aged 56 years, an inmate of the county of Hastings house of refuge, yesterday ended his existence by hanging himself in the barn of the institution. The victim was at times melancholy and had at various times made the remark that he would be better dead than alive. Cronk was committed to the institution from the town of Trenton 8 months ago. An inquest will be held.

STRANGE MURDER BAFFLES POLICE OF SYRACUSE, N.Y.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 7.—The body of a man, tied securely in a heavy burlap bag, was found floating in Oswego Canal near Phoenix, two miles north of here, this morning. The hands and legs were held tightly together with strong wrapping twine and the Oswego County authorities have started in to ferret out what appears to be the strangest murder mystery ever known to these parts.

The man appeared to have been about 50 years old, probably 5 feet, 7 inches in height and weighing 170 lbs. The features are badly decomposed, the face being beardless.

No one in Phoenix could identify the body.

LOST SIX MILLIONS AND NOW HASN'T A CENT LEFT

New York, July 7. — Edward L. Harper, who tried to corner the Chicago wheat market in 1897, lost $6,000,000 in twenty minutes, and incidentally carried down to wreck the Fidelity bank of Cincinnati, of which he was vice-president, for which he was sent to the Ohio penitentiary for ten years, has no income, and his shirt studs and cuff buttons are in pawn. These facts were brought out here yesterday in the examination of Harper in supplementary proceedings on a judgment of $2.77½, obtained by Herman Cohen last November for money loaned.

SHOT YOUNG MAN AND TOOK AWAY HIS LADY COMPANION

New York, July 7. — Five young men, believed to have been members of a notorious west side gang, jumped from a taxicab in Central Park last night, ran through shrubbery to a bench, shot a young man there and carried off the young woman with them. They put the girl inside the taxicab and were gone before anyone of a number of spectators, including a policeman, could reach them, or could even get the number of their automobile.

Frederick H. Reine, 21 years old, is the man that was shot. He escaped with a scalp wound. One bullet, fired at close range, cut a gash along his right temple but did not break the skull. He declined to give the name of the girl who was stolen from him.

NEW VESSELS NUMBER 294

Canada's Shipping Increasing Rapidly—Over 40,000 Men Employed on Various Ships.

Ottawa, July 7.—Two hundred and ninety-four new vessels were built and registered in Canada last year, the estimate of value being $1,022,735, and the tonnage registering 22,283. The total number of sailing vessels on the register books at the end of the year was 7,904, an increase of 136. The tonnage aggregates 750,929. Steamers numbered 3,332 with a gross tonnage of 554,974. The estimated total value of Canadian shipping is $22,527,870, and 40,070 men are employed.

THEIR MAJESTIES IN OLD IRELAND

TAKE ROYAL YACHT FROM HOLY HEAD AND SAIL FOR KINGSTOWN.

In Dublin To-Morrow—Mayor's Determination to Present Address Is Embarrassing to King.

London, July 7.—King George and Queen Mary with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, departed to-day for Ireland, where they will land to-morrow.

The Royal party will proceed to Wales on Wednesday.

From Holyhead the Royal party took the King's yacht Victoria and Albert, and this evening they will arrive off Kingston Harbor, where they will be greeted and saluted by the first and second divisions of the home fleet. Their Majesties will not land until to-morrow morning, when there will be an official reception by Viceroy Lord Aberdeen and the principal naval, military, and other permanent officials. The only elected dignitary who will be present in other than his official capacity, will be Mayor Farrell, whose decision to welcome the King, despite the protests of the populace of Dublin, is proving most embarrassing to the King.

Farrell's determination to welcome the King "in the name of the people" it is feared, will stir up a demonstration of disloyalty. Farrell will meet the King at the city limits and present the "municipal keys" and make a welcoming address, a reply to which is bothering the King more than his speeches ordinarily do.

SPARE ITALIAN WOMAN'S LIFE PLEA OF HUNDRED THOUSAND

Ottawa, July 7.—A hundred thousand is the estimate of the number of petitions, letters or other communications received here praying for the exercise of clemency in the case of Angelmo Napolitano, the woman under sentence of death at the Soo. Steaks have been received by the Minister of Justice. Many petitions have gone direct to Earl Grey and all the Cabinet Ministers have been communicated with on the subject.

Several United States newspapers have run coupons of a petition for commutation and these by the thousands are coming in. The case has awakened an interest that is wholly unprecedented. There is not the minimum of probability that the woman will hang, but her case will be considered only in due course. Three others are ahead of it and the evidence has not yet been reviewed. The execution is fixed for August 9th.

TO DECIDE FATE OF MURDERERS

Ottawa, July 7.—A special meeting of the Cabinet has been called for this evening to consider recommendations by the Minister of Justice in three murder cases, those of Thomas Robertson, of Calgary, sentenced to hang on July 28; of J. D. Tebo, of Digby, N. S., sentenced for July 24, and W. Carroll, of Soo St. Marie, condemned to die on July 26.

No action has been taken in the case of Angelina Neapolitano, the woman under sentence of death at the Soo, and none will be until after her accouchment, which is expected any day.

MURDER REPORT EXAGGERATED

Fergus, Ont., July 7.—The story going the rounds that an umbrella man was beaten to death by some roughs from Arthur, who brought him to the hospital here, after becoming alarmed at his condition, is almost without foundation.

The facts are that an umbrella man by the name of McCosh visited Arthur two weeks ago. He had with him a dog and some of the wags of the village got it from him. This so enraged him that a fight ensued in which the umbrella man was beaten. An information was laid and the case was settled out of court. The parties then pretended to be friends and drove to Fergus where all were apparently feeling the effects of the dry weather, and soon became intoxicated. A fight ensued in which McCosh again suffered, being given a black eye, so that his face swelled beyond recognition. He was advised to go to the Royal Alexandra Hospital at Fergus, where the swelling was reduced and he left town the following Monday, and he did not die.

McCosh, when not under the influence of liquor, seems a very reliable man. He is about forty years of age. The names of the Arthur young men were P. O'Neil and "Yankee" Green. How the "colored" report got into some of the papers cannot be ascertained here.

SHIP GONE ON THE ROCKS

San Francisco, Cal., July 7.—Telephone messages to the Marine Exchange early to-day reported the steamer Santa Rosa, crowded with passengers, had gone on the rocks between Point Conception and Arguello. The Exchange communicated by wireless with the steamer President, supposed to be near the scene, to hurry to the rescue.

CHOLERA BREAKS OUT IN PORTS OF SOUTHERN ITALY

Vienna, July 7.—Censored telegrams from Italy printed here report cholera throughout the southern seaports of Italy. In Palermo there are one hundred cases daily, with an average of fifty deaths.

Conditions at Messina are also very bad.

These despatches say the Italian Government denies there is any cholera in any of the seaports, declaring the death lists are no greater than in former years. Travelers, however, bring alarming reports.

IF BABIES COULD TALK.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see in many places the Medical Health officers are interesting themselves in saving the babies. In Ottawa, for instance, th following circular is sent to every house where a child is born. It represents what a baby would say if it could talk:—

1. Please let me sleep in a cot all to myself and keep my nursery window open.

2. Please nurse me yourself as God meant you to) till I am nine months old.

3. Please feed me regularly, let me sleep all I want, and don't stick pins into my clothes, and then I promise not to cry.

4. Please scald or sterilise Dairy Milk before giving it to me to drink, and remember to cleanse and scald my bottle every time I use it.

5. Please don't give me artificial foods unless ordered by Doctor, or scraps of anything left over by the "grown-ups," or I am afraid I shall be very ill.

6. Please let me have loose clothes, as I love to move my arms and kick my legs quite a lot.

7. Please give me a bath every day and let me splash about as much as I like.

8. Please let me be out in the open air all you can. I love to sleep out in my "P'ram."

9. Please don't let lots of stupid "grown-ups" kiss and dandle me; it makes me so cross. All I want is to nurse my Golliwog and "play bears" with Daddy.

10. Please give me lots of fun with other little boys and girls; when I am bigger tell me all the things every boy and girl should know, and don't let me hear about them first from horrid big boys and girls whom I am sure to meet some time soon.

Signed,
BOBBY.

THE PRICE TOO HIGH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the city has secured an option on the Lakefield dam for $200,000. This seems a big price for an undeveloped power, and I hope the Council will go a little slow in dealing with this important matter. I understood this property was purchased from the Stricklands for about $50,000. If this is so, is $150,000 rather a big jump?

I think if the price was fixed at about half the above sum there would be little opposition to making the purchase.

SUNDAY LAWS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As The Times invites discussion on public matters, I would like to say a few words on our Sunday laws.

Within its proper sphere a law in regard to the observance of Sunday is worthy of the support of all classes of citizens; but it must be careful to keep it within its proper sphere and not to extend it to include matters that are clearly beyond the powers of the legislature.

To observe Sunday as a day of rest and to prevent all persons as far as possible from pursuing the work of their ordinary calling, so that they and those dependent upon them or employed by them shall have one day's rest in seven will meet with the approval of every one; but to at-

MR. J. H. BURNHAM AND THE CATHOLIC REGISTER

The following "graceful" tribute to Mr. J. H. Burnham, of this city, in The Catholic Register will be read with interest. The Times knows that Mr. Burnham has the Decree in his possession, and that he has read it. Moreover, The Times also knows that Mr. B. must have spoken the truth or the Register would reply by argument and not by mere verbal abuse to a man who is studiously polite in his controversial letters and not a novice in the literary art by any means. This is what the Register says:

"BLIND BURNHAM TO THE RESCUE."

3. "Suburban" chips a letter signed "J. H. Burnham," from the Globe of June 29th, asking for comment Here is Mr. Burnham's opening sentence: "There is a tendency at the present moment in the discussion of Roman Catholic ecclesiastical affairs for non-Catholics to allow their attention to be drawn away from the main point of recent differences, and while being attracted by side issues like 'No Temere,' to allow it to become inaccurate and easily foiled." To judge from the bungled English of this sentence and from the statements that follow, it is a case of a very blind bigot with a very defective education in elementary English, assuming the role of leader. Leaving the recent Eatrance pupils to point out what noun the word "it" stands for in this opening sentence of Mr. Burnham's letter, we pass on. "Protestants are," he says, "to ignore side-issues like the 'No Temere' decree and are to pass on to that 'epoch-making one' called 'The Pope and Modernism,' of which 'No Temere' is only a 'by-product.'" Now, I suppose it matters little by what name a Papal decree is designated, but since Mr. Burnham uses the above title at least twice, and in quotation marks to denote the Pope's encyclical entitled, "Concerning the Doctrines of Modernists," I believe it would not be rash to say that he never read the decree in question, but simply learned about it through the newspapers and gave it what he thought an appropriate name. Add to this his statement that the famous decree condemning Modernism asserted the infallibility of the Church in temporal as well as in eternal affairs, and if we have not positive proof that J. H. Burnham never read the decree which he invites his brethren to "read, mark, learn, and digest," we at least have a positive proof that Mr. Burnham is malicious slanderer."

TO GET AFTER MILLIONAIRE

New York, July 7.—When the hearing of Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, accused of the attempted murder of W. E. D. Stokes, multi-millionaire want to know why it is that the private man, was resumed before Magistrate Freschi to-day, it was plain that the girls intended to insist that they shot in self-defence. The aged club man, still on the stand, was severely cross-examined by Clark Jordan attorney for the girls, the latter endeavoring to show that Stokes was not sent for by Miss Conrad to get the letters he had written to Miss Graham, but that he went to the house hoping to see the Conrad girl alone.

That some of these letters are still missing developed to-day and an effort is to be made to ascertain their whereabouts. Attorneys for the girls want to know why it is the private detective of Stokes' hotel, the Ansonia, was permitted to enter and ransack their apartments, to take the letters from a tin box in a closet, when the apartment was supposed to be under the guard of the local police department.

On behalf of the girls, Attorney Jordan said just before court opened, that he had a number of witnesses who have not yet been mentioned in the case whom he will call if necessary. He refused to indicate who they were or what they would testify to.

"Before we are done with this case" he added, significantly, "we will make Mr. Stokes sorry he did not follow out his original intention of going to Europe and dropping the case."

ADVICE TO MISS GRAHAM.

The following extracts from W. E. D. Stokes' letters to Lillian Graham might be termed "A Worldly Man's Advice to a Young Girl."

"Marry some rich young fellow whose companionship will be worth more to you than all the worthless admiration of a cheap stage or a heartless social life."

"No matter how nice a girl is, let her once go on the stage, and she is spoiled."

"Keep your head. Don't touch wines, beers, or liquors. They will ruin your complexion."

"Get this little cheque cashed, and when the money comes, blow it in on something."

"I am too old, so all I can do is to be polite, and some day I will come across a divorcee or a widow who has had all the matrimonial experience she wants for life, and we can be just good friends."

"I want to talk over with you a Chicago widow. She has a little nose and black hair, and does not like Chicago because the dirty streets, the jogs and such things remind her of her late husband."

"I am over twice as old as you, and I advise you to drop all ideas of stage life; there's nothing in it. If you won't take my advice, I can't blame you, for I told Maude Adams when she was a little girl that she was sure to make a failure if she went on the stage."

"Keep your head. . . . The most crushing part of your letters is to give your love to Clarence. I never heard of such a cruel act in my life."

The two defendants and Miss Graham's sister, Mrs. John Singleton, wife of a wealthy California mining man, who accompanies them in court listened to Stokes' testimony yesterday with frequent derisive smiles. All three dress in the daintiest of summer costumes and present a refreshing sight in the torrid court room.

A CANADIAN AMONG THE MURDERED MEN

San Deigo, Cal., July 8.—The steamer Ensenada yesterday brought the preliminary report of Consul Frederick Simpich in reference to the killing of an American at Alamo by Mexican Federals.

The report is a voluminous one, and has been forwarded to the State Department at Washington. Its contents are unknown.

In addition to the four white men reported killed, there were several Americans at Alamo at the time of the killing. They are thought to have made their escape. Of the four men killed one was a Canadian, another was a Frenchman.

OUR CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

TO-DAY'S TRICK FOR THE SUPPER TABLE.

Here's a bully scheme for "working" dad for some spending money. Tell him you can make a quarter stick to the wall without using glue or anything else.

If he feels like arguing the matter, ask him if he will give you a quarter if you can make it stick to the wall. When he "bites" take the quarter and slam it flat against a smooth surface of wood—say the bookcase or a door panel—pressing it hard with a downward sliding motion, against the wood. Take your hand away and the coin will stick tightly.

The striking and pressing expel the air between the coin and the wood, forming a vacum which will hold the millionaire's dollar or Johnny's penny just alike.

BOY CAN MAKE.

Some Descriptions of Useful Articles for Camping.

Many boys look forward to going into camp as soon as school is closed, taking for their camping grounds some piece of woods or small island near their homes. It is also good fun to set up a camp in the back yard if one's parents do not wish to have one go away. Boys who are interested in this sort of good time will find it a good plan to start soon to make some of the necessary articles of the camp equipment. A boy reader has sent to this page some descriptions of articles which are useful for campers and which may be made at a very small cost or without any cost at all.

To make a camp lantern take a can and puncture it. A small block of wood may be hollowed out to make a holder for the candle. The block of wood is set inside the pail and the light shines through. This pail may also be used for carrying small fish or bait.

Another lantern is made of a glass jar which has a tin cover. Puncture holes in the cover and make a basket for the candle of wire which is twisted around so as to hold the candle, as shown in the picture. There are two long strands of wire which come up through the lid and form a handle for the lantern.

A camp warmer and cook stove may be made of a pail.

The article to be cooked may be put in a covered pail and then covered with hot coals. To make an oven fill thepail with hot coals. The articles to be roasted may be placed on top of these coals.

ASOF AND HIS PONY.

An Arabian Story for Canadian Children.

Asof loved his pony Selim very dearly. He used to whisper in his ear that when he grew to be a man he would buy him a string of the loveliest pearls to hang around his neck and feed him on rose sugar drops. One day Asof's uncle came to see Asof and brought him a box of sweetmeats of most beautiful colors and shapes, 25 in all.

"Have a good time with these candies," said he. He knew his little nephew had a sweet tooth, and the sugar roses, violets and lilies were made of the purest creamed sugar.

Asof nodded his head.

"I will have the best of times," said he. "I will eat five candies myself and feed the rest to Selim."

"To Selim!" echoed his uncle.

"Yes, to Selim!" merrily laughed Asof, and off he scampered to have a good time with his pony.

AN AFTER SUPPER THUNDER "STORM."

Here's some homemade, individually applied thunder that will outthunder old Vulcan himself. You can produce it on nights when there isn't a cloud in the sky—right in the house, and only one person at a time will hear it.

Place a piece of string around the other fellow's head, taking care that his hands cover his ears. Then cause the string to vibrate by drawing the moistened finger and thumb along the string.

The effect will be that of a rolling peal of thunder, audible only to the person operated upon.

INSECTS TOOLS.

There is a little fly called a sawfly, because it has a saw to work with. The fly uses it to make places where the eggs will be safe. What is more strange it has a sort of home-made glue which fastens them where they are laid.

Some insects have cutting instruments that work just as scissors do. The poppy-bee is one of them, whose work is wonderful. This bee has a boring-tool, too. Its nest is usually made in old wood. This borer cleans out the past for use. When all is ready, the insect cuts out pieces of leaves to line the nest and to make the cells. These linings are cut in the shape of the cells. You would be surprised to see the care taken to have every piece just the right size.

FUN FOR FRIVOLOUS FROLICS.

Seated in a circle you begin to count, passing rapidly from one to the next but instead of saying "seven" the player says "Buz" which must be repeated at 14, 21 and each multiple of seven; also instead of five or any multiple of five, take 10, 15, etc., the player must say "Bang." A forfeit must be paid each time one fails to "Buz" or "Bang" at the right time.

BRITISH STANDARD BEARER.

Lieutenant Harrison, the tallest officer in the British Army, will carry the standard of the Royal Horse Guards Blue in the Coronation procession. The standard was presented to the Blues by King William on August 13th, 1831, Queen Adelaide's birthday. The last time it was carried was the first Jubilee of Queen Victoria, when the Queen went from Slough to Windsor.

AFRICANS LIKE UNIFORMS.

Much money is made out of cast-off police uniforms. Quantities are bought by African traders and exported to various parts of the "Dark Continent," where they are exchanged for palm-oil, ivory, skins, and other merchandise. It is by no means an uncommon sight to see a swarthy savage dressed in the uniform of a policeman, and wearing the regulation helmet of the force.

Stories of the Prince of Wales.

Many quaint and amusing anecdotes are related of the Prince of Wales as a small child, one being that he and his sister and brothers were invited out to tea at some Court lady's house, and when the hour for departure came he could nowhere be found to say good-bye to his hostess.

On investigation it was discovered that he had hurried downstairs alone to secure what he considered his proper place in the carriage.

It is also reported of him that, on his first attending afternoon church one Sunday, he remembered how often he had been told to thank his entertainers for their hospitality; so this occasion he looked anxiously about for someone to be grateful to. The only person who came handy was the verger, who, rather to his dismay, had his hand grasped by the little prince, and was informed in a childish voice:—

"Thank you so much for a very [illegible]"

A VALUABLE APPLE TREE.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Offered for One Tree.

Thirty thousand dollars was the sum recently offered an eastern Washington nursery company for an apple tree located near Lake Chelan. The proffer was made by a syndicate which desired to propogate the tree. It was turned down by the nursery company, which will develop the fruit itself.

The tree is twenty years old and is called the Chelan. The fruit is golden yellow and is said to be different from that of any other apple grown in Washington. It is also said to possess exceptional keeping qualities, a box having been kept in storage in Spokane for two years without any marked deterioration.

Twenty years ago, the story runs, an Indian planted a handful of apple seeds, three of which grew. The fruit of only one of the trees was good for anything. The tree is now of great size and a profitable bearer. Last year at the national apple show at Spokane fruit from the tree took first prize for new varieties of apples.

BUY

Quoted at 32 to 33 Cents

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 19, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MESSER, M. E.,
"Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

[illegible]

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000; par value of shares $1.00. Full paid and non-assessable. No personal liability.

A glance at the list of directors will show the class of men who are putting in their money and time to make this one of the greatest mines in the Porcupine Camp. The directors are:—

JAMES KENDRY, Peterboro, Ontario; ex-Member of Parliament, President Auburn Woollen Mills.

T. E. BRADBURN, Member Parliament, Peterboro, Ontario; Private Banker.

ARCHIBALD L. ALLAN, New York, Hiram Walker & Sons.

SYDNEY BERNHEIM, New York, Bernheim & Loewenthal, Counsellors at Law.

JACOB RAPOPORT, New York, Jacob Rapoport & Co., Merchants.

HAMILTON KILGOUR, New York and London, England, Mining Engineer.

WARREN N. AKERS, Wilmington, Del.

Remember, that our judgment on Hollinger, Dome Extension and Vipond was correct, and we believe the Royal Porcupine will prove one of your best investments.

The Hollinger stock was originally offered at $3.50 and now sells at around $15.50, and Dome Extension was first offered at 40c., and now sells at around 84c.

Royal Porcupine stock may be purchased through any member of the New York Curb Association, or we will be glad to execute your orders.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

THE STANDING ALIBI OF
H. STANLEIGH STORME
(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd).
(By Wm. Hamilton Osborne).

The district attorney visibly trembled with excitement.

"Who was it, Burke?" he asked.

Burke bent his gaze upon the man at the next table.

"It was the man that sits there, sir, at that table — H. Stanleigh Storme."

As he said it, he pointed with his finger. There was an audible murmur in the court room, which had been as still as death.

"The prisoner?" continued the prosecutor.

"The prisoner, yes, sir," assented Burke. "I knew him well by sight, sir, an' I saw him well sir, an' it's the same man. It's H. Stanleigh Storme, sir. I can swear to that."

"Cross examine," said the state's attorney briefly.

The counsel for the defense rose with a smile upon his face.

"Mr. Burke," he began, in a suave voice, "you have seen Mr. Storme since that night, have you not?"

"Yes, sir," replied Burke.

"You know where he lives?"

"I didn't then," returned Burke; "we don't keep track of everybody from headquarters, but I do now. He lives at the Gouverneur up town."

"And you attended there next day, did you not, for the purpose of apprehending him?"

"I did, sir."

"And at that time is it not a fact that you made a careful search of his apartments at the Gouverneur, for the purpose of finding something to connect him with this crime?"

"It is,' sir."

"And did you find anything calculated to arose suspicion?" went on the prisoner's counsel.

"I did not, sir," replied Burke.

"That's all," announced the counsel for the defense.

"Wait a minute," exclaimed the judge, as the witness started to leave the stand. "Burke, are you sure of what you say? Think. Isn't it possible that you may have been mistaken? This is a serious matter, officer. You must be very careful. Are you sure this is the man?"

"Your honor," returned Burke doggedly, "my record shows that I'm a careful man—your honor knows I can't be mistaken. I was never surer of a thing in all my life.

"And I swear that that man who sits there—H. Stanleigh Storme—was the man that robbed that bank that night, so help me God!"

"One moment," put in the prisoner's counsel: "what day of the week was that, did you say?"

"I didn't say, sir, but it was Wednesday morning, the twenty-third o' last month. Roundsman O'Connell," continued the witness, turning to the judge, "will tell you just the same as I have, your honor."

Burke stepped down.

O'Connell took the witness stand and gave his testimony and left it. Burke stood corroborated in each detail. There was no cross examination of this witness.

"The prosecution rests," announced the counsel for the state.

CHAPTER VI.

The Sheriff's Testimony.

The prisoner's attorney rose. A flickering ghost of a smile played around the corners of his mouth.

He departed from the usual rule and made no opening statement to the jury. To him it seemed unnecessary.

"I call the sheriff of the county," he announced.

The sheriff—a stout, good-natured looking man, with a broad, genial, honest face—had been seated quietly in the body of the court room outside the railing, an unnoticed spectator.

Now he rose and made his way, with some difficulty, through the crowd.

As he went he nodded to the judge, the counsel, and some of the jurymen. He did not look at Storme, nor did Storme look at him.

He took the stand, and was sworn.

He settled himself comfortably in the chair, threw one leg over the other, and waited for the question.

"Sheriff," began the counsel for the defense, carelessly, would you mind stating to the jury just where you were at 2 o'clock on Wednesday morning of the twenty-third of May last?"

The sheriff looked around and smiled.

"On Monday night, on Tuesday night and Wednesday night, the twenty-first, twenty-second and twenty-third of last month," he replied, deliberately and with an evident relish of the situation, "I was in the green room of the Montauk Club in this city—on each night from 10 o'clock in the evening until after 3 o'clock the next morning."

"When you say Wednesday night, do you mean night or morning?"

"I'll explain that," said the sheriff. "When I say Monday night I mean that I began Monday night at 10 and ended Tuesday morning at 3. On Tuesday night I began at 10 and ended Wednesday morning at 3. And so on. I was there three nights and mornings, beginning with Monday night."

"Will you state just what you were doing?"

"Certainly," responded the sheriff. "We were playing cards. We were disposing of some old scores that we had waited for some months to pay off."

"Was anybody with you? If so, state to the jury just who it was."

"Yes," returned the sheriff, leaning forward in his turn as all witnesses have a way of doing; "there were three people with me, making four altogether—three of us played each night, and the fourth man looked on and kept us company."

"And these four——"

"These four," continued the sheriff, "were myself and John R. Cassidy, the hardware merchant, and H. Stanleigh Storme, the prisoner at the bar."

"John R. Cassidy is here?"

"He's here," assented the witness.

"And the fourth man—who was he?" inquired the attorney.

The sheriff was plainly embarrassed, but he nerved himself nevertheless for the ordeal.

"The fourth man," he began, looking nervously around, "the fourth man was—was the—the—the judge presiding at this trial."

He blurted this out in a desperate sort of way, and yet with an apologetic air, too.

There was a prolonged titter in the court room at the judge's expense. The judge rapped for order, but at the same time nodded in a dignified way in confirmation of the testimony.

"His honor, then, was the man who was looking on?" inquired the counsel, anxious to place the court in the most favorable light, and expecting an affirmative answer to the question.

The sheriff looked first at the council and then at the judge—at the judge and then at the lawyer again.

He didn't know what to do. The judge turned red.

"I don't think, Mr.—er—er—" he said to the counsel for the defendant, "that it's at all necessary to go into that. Proceed with the next question," he continued, pounding with his gavel to check the incipient merriment.

The sheriff leaned back in his chair with a sigh of relief. Order was restored.

"Was the prisoner there on each occasion?" resumed the counsel.

"He was," returned the sheriff, still a bit rattled.

"Every night?"

"Every night," replied the sheriff. "He was the first man on hand, and the last man to leave. He was with us all the time."

"How far is the Montauk Club from the Mordaunt bank?"

"It's a good three miles," replied the sheriff.

"Take the witness," concluded the counsel for the defense, as he settled back in his seat with satisfaction written on his face.

The district attorney rose with a frown. There was a loud buzz of conversation in the court room, which his honor stopped with a few raps upon his desk.

The district attorney was plainly non-plussed, and he showed it. Still he maintained his composure.

"Sheriff," inquired he, looking that individual squarely in the eye, "how did you fix the night of May the twenty-second, or the morning of the twenty-third? By the way, which was it?"

"Both," replied the sheriff, laconically.

"Well, how do you fix it, then? Why do you remember it?"

The sheriff returned the district attorney's stare with interest. The two men were politically opposed to each other, and there was no love lost between them.

"I'll tell you how I fix it," said the sheriff, shaking his finger at the examiner. "I could fix it, anyway, by other things, but I know by one thing in particular. When I got there that night there were two men ahead of me—one of 'em was Storme, and the other Cassidy. It was a few minutes after ten when we started in, because they said I was late an' I said I wasn't an' I found that my watch was about ten minutes slow.

Cold on The Chest

Had Suffered for Weeks—Used Fourteen Different Remedies Without Effect.

Cured Quickly By "NERVILINE."

No stronger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher, who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N.S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimonial to the efficacy of your wonderful liniment, "Nerviline," I consider it the best remedy for a cold, sore throat, and wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest, that fourteen different remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

TESTIMONIAL NO. 3785.

"You are at liberty to publish this signed letter, which I hope will show the way to health to many that need to use Nerviline.

ORANGEMEN IN HULL.

Strenuous objection is being taken by certain individuals and fraternities of Hull to the contemplated Orangemen's parade there on the coming Twelfth of July, says the Ottawa Journal. Several of the Roman Catholic societies have sent resolutions to Mayor Archambault petitioning him to stop the celebration. Petitions were presented the city council from the Cercle Reboul, Court Notre Dame de Grace, C. O. F., Court St. Redempteur of St. Joseph's Union, Cercle Notre Dame of d'Alliance Nationale C. M. B. A., Young Men's Congregation, Catholic School Commissioners and St. Patrick's Court, C. O. F.

The Protestants, to be sure, are a feeble minority in Hull. But is that any reason why they should not enjoy the ordinary privileges of British citizenship? An Orangeman's parade is a peaceable affair, even dull and uninteresting to many people. Certainly it will harm no one. For the residents of Hull to speak of "fearing trouble" if the parade is held, is an ominous confession. There will be trouble only if trouble is deliberately made. Is there any reason in common sense or equity why the Orangemen might not hold their procession as well as the splendid parade of St. Jean Baptiste societies the other Sunday?

MAXVILLE TOWN PARTLY BURNED

Ottawa, July 6.—The little town of Maxville, on the Grand Trunk Railway in Glengarry county was almost destroyed by fire last night, the loss being in the neighborhood of $100,000, with less than half that amount of insurance.

Assistance was sent from Ottawa, but the fire was under control when it arrived. The fire broke out in Smiley and Robertson's factory about 9 p. m., from some unknown cause and quickly spread to surrounding buildings.

COMMUNICATION CUT OFF.

Jumping across the Grand Trunk tracks the platform of the station caught and the station itself was soon attacked. Telegraph poles on both sides of the rails were burned down, while the rails were twisted and bent by the heat of the fire. Five box cars loaded with hay, standing on the siding, were next reduced to a mass of twisted iron and steel before they could be pushed to safety. Four others were saved by heroic work by the villagers.

The village was next to absolutely barren of means of fighting the fire, only a small hand force pump being available. This supplemented by a bucket brigade of about seventy men, fought the fire for five long hours, and by splendid work kept the flames from spreading to greater proportions. The only water available was from the wells in the village and over each well a woman stood guard, pumping out the water and filling and refilling the buckets as they were passed and repassed backwards and forwards.

The fight against the flames centered around the residence of Thomas Dingwall which adjoined the Commercial Hotel on the main street. If that had gone all the street would have been swept. Even as it was the residents of both hotel and houses had moved all their belongings out into the street, standing guard over them all night long.

THOUGHT TOWN WAS DOOMED.

At the time Mayor Robertson sent word to Ottawa for help it was thought that the whole town was doomed. Then George Gordon, the G. T. R. operator, wired Ottawa that the station was burning under his feet and that he had to cut off the connection. Soon after this the station wires were broken, the poles being burned right through and in their fall pulling the wires down with them.

All night long and far into this morning the people of the village worked their hardest to keep the fire within bounds. Large burning brands from the lumber piles in Smiley & Robertson's mill yard were carried broadcast by the wind.

[illegible] embers prevented the Montreal-Ottawa express from passing [illegible] delayed for six hours, being held up in the train to the east of the village. The stalled passengers were taken through to Ottawa on the special.

FARMERS TO MEET BORDEN.

Arrangements are being made by the farmers of the three prairie provinces to meet Mr. R. L. Borden when he comes West next month. It is felt by the farmers that as Mr. Borden is Premier of Canada in prospect, he should be made fully aware of the desires of the Western people.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier toured the West last summer he was met by the organized farmers at every point where he held meetings, and the demands of the farmers were firmly and courteously placed before him.

Mr. Borden will hold thirty meetings in the West, and it is the intention to have a delegation meet him at every point and lay before him the needs of the West. The same matters will be brought before Mr. Borden as were discussed with Sir Wilfrid last summer, though the demands of the farmers are now crystallized into more definite shape.

THE LAUGHING FOUNTAIN.

A Persian Story for Canadian Children.

Althy was a dear little girl of six years old. Her mamma was dead, but her papa called her his star, and her old nurse Mernel loved her dearly and looked after her with the tenderest care.

Althy's papa had made for his little girl a garden in which grew the loveliest flowers in the midst of which a tinkling fountain played. The fountain was the great delight of little Althy's heart; its spray was so pearl-like and the music of its falling water so light and happy. She would sit for hours watching it, and listening to her old nurse talking of her mother in paradise. One evening, when the moon hung in the sky like a great yellow pearl and the fountain tinkled even sweeter than usual, her nurse, who had also been her mother's nurse, cried: "Hark, I hear your mother laughing."

Althy listened. "It is the fountain, nurse," said she.

"Ah, yes," sighed the nurse, "It is the fountain!"

That night Althy, weeping sadly, awoke from sleep.

"What is it, heart of my heart?" inquired the nurse.

"I dreamt," said Althy, "I dreamt that my mother was dead."

The nurse, knowing not what to reply, remained silent.

Through the open window could be heard the laughing fountain.

Althy brushed away her tears.

"Ah, no," said she. "It is not so, I can hear her laughing, laughing!"

Her head dropped. She was sleeping again.

SHE WAS TOO GOOD FOR HIM.

"Do you really mean it, Mr. Spooner, when you say I am the best girl in the world?" asked a young lady of an ardent admirer.

"Indeed I do, Dora," responded the young man. "I say it again—you are the best girl in the world."

"And the loveliest, I thank you said?"

"The loveliest without doubt."

"I think you said something about my accomplishments, too?"

"I did. I said they excelled those of any other girl."

"I believe you called me sweet?"

"A sweeter woman never breathed," quoted the ardent lover.

"You used the word 'perfect,' too, did you not?"

"I did. I look upon you as the pink of perfection, propriety and modesty, the empress of my heart, the peerless one among the beauteous creatures of your sex, a maiden adorable, enchanting, and worthy of the hand of the best man on earth. Say the word that will make me the happiest man on earth, my own Dora."

"Before I give you an answer, Mr. Spooner, I should like to ask you one question."

"A dozen if you like."

"One will be enough. Don't you think you have a great deal of assurance to expect a woman with all those excellent qualities to marry such an ordinary man as you?"

Mr. Spooner is still a bachelor.

KOOTENAY JAM CO. A FINE PROPOSITION

The Directors of the Kootenay Jam Company, Ltd., have decided to increase the capital stock of their Company and are offering for public subscription 30,000 additional shares at the par value of $1.00 each. The money derived from the sale of this stock will be applied only [illegible] developing the Company's present operations and more particularly to the purpose of organizing new branches of the Company's business.

The Old Factory of the Company was located at Nelson B. C., and the Directors decided to change the location to Mission, B. C. The saving effected by this change alone will be sufficient to pay 7 per cent. on the present paid up capital.

The New Factory is a commodious building of two floors and is 140 ft. long by 75 feet wide, with a floor area of over 16,000 square feet. The steam plant is of the most modern description and capable of handling a large volume of business. The building also has ample accommodation for installing the necessary machinery required by the New Departments.

The cost to this Company of this New Factory will amount to approximately $9,000, and for a building of this size, fully equipped and with a large area of ground, the above amount is a very moderate one.

By the change in the location of the factory from Nelson to Mission, B. C., the Company have the advantage of a large market for the finished product right at the factory doors. The important and growing cities of Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Nanaimo are all within a few hours run, and together form one vast market of close upon 250,000 people.

The New Departments which the Company are adding are:—First—Separate Department for the manufacture of Chocolate and Cocoa. The plant for this Department will be one of the most modern, and capable of running out half a ton of the finished product per working day. The Company is in full possession of figures regarding the plant and a well-known expert will be engaged as Managing Superintendent of the new branch. This New Department will enable the management to keep all their help fully employed all the year around, instead of being compelled to dispense with them during the slack seasons as heretofore; this will assure us of more reliable help and at proportionately less expense.

Department of the Company's will be the Land Department. This has been organized for the purpose of dealing in fruit ranches and lands located in the vicinity of the Company's factory, and acting as agents for the disposal of same to intending settlers. As an inducement for new settlers to deal with them, the Company are prepared to give a guarantee to all purchasers that they will handle and provide a cash market for all fruit grown on the land. Owing to the nature of the Company's business, we have exceptional facilities for the profitable handling of this branch of the business. The working expenses of the Department will be very small and the profits should make a welcome addition to the dividends of the Company.

The Company was awarded a contract by the Canadian Naval Department for the supplying of the Canadian Navy and made a shipment of over three tons of the famous "Kootenay Brand" of goods. These goods were especially prepared and packed for this contract and the Company have just received a repeat order, which is a practical endorsement of the quality of our goods. We have also a valuable contract from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. This in itself constitutes a splendid advertisement for our goods. In addition to these Government and public contracts, the Company are under agreement to ship 18 carloads to the North-west during the coming season. The value of this contract amounts to $45,000.

WHY THIS OFFER OF STOCK IS MADE.

We offer this limited amount of stock in order to take advantage of an exceptional and favorable opportunity of enlarging our business. BUFFALO WILD WEST

An Aggregation That is Exciting Wide Interest.

With the Young Buffalo Wild West show, which will exhibit in this city next Saturday, July 8th, afternoon and night, in Ambrose Means, the dare-devil American cowboy, who, with the Buffalo Jones expedition, invaded the East African veldt, and so astonished the animals of the dark continent that they humbly submitted to the indignity of being "bound hand and foot" by Means and his associates. Speaking of this exploit before the New York Press Club recently, Means said: "I found that the only way to capture the animals was to rope them, and I had to do it with absolute accuracy. To tackle these beasts with a rifle is one thing, but to tackle them with a rope, the way that Buffalo Jones and Ambrose Means did, is a perfectly marvelous feat. Everybody laughed at the idea. I didn't think it possible to rope a lion or rhinoceros, and I congratulate these men with all my heart." Ambrose Means will, at every exhibition of the Young Buffalo Wild West show, give vivid illustrations of just how he accomplished what is conceded to be the most daring deed ever conceived by man in all the history of the world, using a herd of charging buffaloes in the demonstrations. Means is one of the bright stars in the Young Buffalo Wild West show, but he is not the "whole show" by more of men and women with the aggregation who have won international fame for acts of skill and deeds requiring extraordinary nerve. Annie Oakley, the world's greatest woman rifle shot; Capt. Bogardus, the undefeated champion marksman of the world, Curtis Lipton and Col. Stewart form a quartet of sharpshooters the like of which has never before been gathered for any tented amusement enterprise. There are over 700 men and women with the Young Buffalo shows, and Rough Riders from all quarters of the globe. A big street parade will be given at 10.00 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition at which time the Indians from ten tribes, cowboys, Cingalese, cowgirls, Mexican rurallies and lariat ply[illegible] throwers, U. S. cavalrymen, and M.

HARDISTY

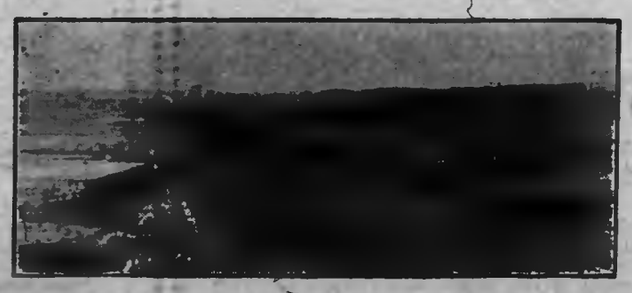
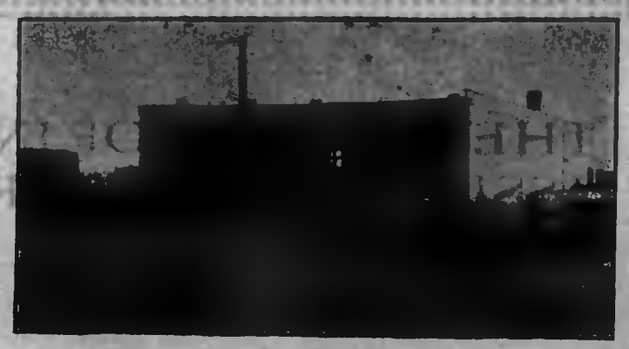
The Town of Hardisty is expending $15,000 in Cement walks alone this year. The Residential Streets are all being boulevarded, making it the most enchanting City in the West.

A large Public Park has already been reserved, beautifully located, running to the shore of a beautiful lake, which abounds with different kinds of fish. Several small lakes are in close proximity to Hardisty, which is bound to make it one of the finest summer and health resorts in the West. Within six miles from Hardisty is the famous Buffalo Park, which is a source of wonder and delight, containing the largest herd of Buffalo now in captivity. Hardisty has a typical sunny Alberta climate, conductive to the production of every kind of wild fruit and berries which grow in abundance all along the shores of Battle river and lakes.

This is Hardisty's new C. P. R. Station, the largest and best equipped outside the large cities.



A few of the C. P. R. Sidings at Hardisty.



C. P. R. Round House and Stalls at Hardisty.

HARDISTY already has 25 miles of side tracks, having a capacity of 1,000 cars, with an auxiliary yard having a capacity for 500 more, which will be doubled this year to cope with the immense traffic. The C. P. R. has already expended at Hardisty over $300,000 in Round Houses and Machine Shops. 8 more Stalls are being added this year to accommodate the increasing business of the company.

HARDISTY ASSURES ONE OF THE BEST PROFIT MAKING INVESTMENTS IN THE WEST.

As can readily be seen on the map, Hardisty is the centre of the great Transcontinental traffic, the shortest route by 300 miles from Winnipeg to the great west. Hardisty is a splendid freight distributing point with direct connection with Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, and Winnipeg. Hardisty is the key to the last Great West, and the open door through which passes Alberta's great products of grain, timber, live stock and minerals.

The C. P. R. employs seventeen train crews, running to and from Hardisty daily, besides those employed in connection with the Round Houses, Machine Shops, Stores, Coal Shutes, etc.

Hardisty has the beautiful Battle River running past its door, affording no end of sport for the huntsman and fisherman, also assuring excellent sites for manufacturing concerns, and at the same time supplying the town with water if needed.

Hardisty has large General Stores, Hotels, Churches, Banks, Hardware Stores, Wholesale and Retail Butcher Shops, Lumber Yards, Implement Shops, Livery Barns, Large Schools, Hospital and Printing Offices.

Hardisty's surroundings are the best for mixed farming in the west, being three weeks earlier than the general run of places.

Spread out before you is the picturesque town of Hardisty, the Wonder Town of the West. It is cleft by the beautiful Battle river flowing pure and sparkling, affording water privileges that few towns can boast of.

POWDER PAPER BOOKS.

A book of powder paper is always a luxury in travelling, and one of these books, which costs but a quarter encased in a dainty linen cover or a cover of ribbon or silk, will immediately find its place among the toilet articles in the dressing bag.

Still another convenience for the traveller is a collection of small chamois lined silk or linen bags, in which to keep when not in use the coin of different countries. A tourist in these days of rapid locomotion will often cross the borders of three or four countries where different money will be needed in each place. The name of the coin should be marked on each bag, as, for example, French, German, Italian, and so on. Instead of the bags a collection of five or six tiny leather purses will make a welcome gift, but these purses should all be stamped or burned with the names of the various countries which the tourist is to visit.

Mark Twain said:

"A beautiful sunset made Berangar a poet; a mother's kiss made Benjamin West an artist, and fifteen dollars a week makes us a journalist."

As Done in France.

"Some years ago," writes a well-known motorist, "I was being driven by a French friend of my acquaintance. He is so careful over his personal expenditure as he is reckless on his Panhard. I did not like the combination, but it is best to be tolerant to foreigners. Passing through a village near St. Albans we encountered a hen. She was stalking across the road like a conspirator one moment, and dead the next. She never knew what struck her. Adolphe, which is my friend's name, pulled up.

"'It is useless to go to her assistance,' said I.

"But Adolphe jumped out of the car and went. I thought it very kind of him. He picked up the dead bird and came running back.

"'Helas! she is not young,' he panted. 'But she will do well for soup, au bouillon de poulet, tres delicat.'

"'Good heavens, you're not going to take her home?'

"'Mais certainement! Here she would be wasted. It is as we do in France. Vive la chasse!'

"I had heard that motorists were not popular in the French villages. From that day I have understood."

HOUSE NUMBERS.

Germans Started the System in Berlin.

Before the advent of the house number, only business signs, coats of arms, and house names marked the different buildings. Then, in London, for instance, one had to look for Mr. Jones, should he desire to call upon that man, in, say, "Whitechapel, not far from the Blue Bear."

It is thought Berlin, in 1795, was the first city to employ the numbering system. The German innovators did not put odd numbers on one side of their streets and even numbers on the other; they merely started from the Brandenburg Gate and numbered straight ahead, taking no account of change of street.

As they proceeded, therefore, the numbers grew higher, the height to which they attained being limited only by the supply of houses. The first house they numbered was number one, the last the number that betokened the total number of houses in the city.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual work will be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

JERUSALEM'S PUBLIC OVENS.

One Cave-like Vaults Running Below Street Level.

There are public bakeries in Jerusalem. The dough is kneaded at home and carried in great lumps to the public ovens. These are to be found in almost every street. They are cave-like vaults, running down below the street level. At the back of each vault is the oven, with a sort of well before its open door. In the well stands the baker, with a long paddle in his hand, upon which he puts in and takes out the loaves.

The oven floor is marked out in blocks, so that the baking of each family is put on a separate block. The loaves, which are about an inch thick, are of the size of a tea plate and have a hole in the centre. The baker makes them from the dough, bakes them, and returns them hot from the oven to the customer. He receives two cents for each half dozen loaves, or he may instead take a roll of one loaf for each dozen. Before starting the baking he greases the floor of the oven with olive oil.

NEW PARAGRAPHS.

Electric carpets are the latest invention for the heating of rooms, the cost for one room being estimated at a halfpenny an hour.

In Corea marriage is even more important and essential for a man than it is for a woman, as, until a man be wed, he is a being of no account. If a father has not selected wives for his sons ere they reach the age of twenty he is considered worthless and neglectful.

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Fulstead, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,500 times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

WATERWORKS FOR FARM.

An increasing number of enquiries are received asking for methods of supplying water to country homes. It has been one of the drawbacks of life on the farm compared with the city that while water might be in abundant supply it has not been convenient for all purposes of the household. In response to the demand for better appliances many improvements have of late years been made in pumping and piping outfits. Water in the house for free use is coming to be recognized as one of the first requirements in sanitary living. Further than this it is a labor saving arrangment that is in keeping with the modern machinery and appliances used elsewhere on the farm.

THE SUFFERING EDITOR.

A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper as follows:—

"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared:—

"When the nag is looking all right sell him to someone."

The increased production of milk, in Ontario is looked upon as an indication that the farmers of the province generally are beginning to see greater possibilities in dairying. The cities are taking a great deal of milk, which to a considerable extent changes the cheese factory situation.

Haying Has Commenced.

Haying has commenced in many parts of the surrounding country. Farmers at Otonabee and Douro have some of their meadows cut. They report the crop very fair this year.

CANADIANS AND INVENTION.

Dr. A. Grahame Bell and the Telephone.

Canada has every reason to be proud of her brilliant student in practical science—Professor A. Graham Bell—the inventor of the telephone, which has done so much to revolutionize the social and business world. The doctor first saw the light in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1847 and came out to Canada in 1870, where he carried on his investigations that consumated not only in the great invention with which his name is associated with, but the photophone, induction balance, and telephone probe, and (with C. A. Bell) graphaphone. He has made a thorough study of the education of the deaf. In recent years he has taken great interest in the laws of flight and aviation generally. This brilliant Canadian is the holder of many degrees and a member of many learned societies. His Canadian home is in Nova Scotia.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,-- is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt-would buy Montreal Real Estate ?

To the mer of good judgment,— these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have beenpresenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature' has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties.

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal." Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gazetted to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Hosma River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Hosma River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Hosma River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Masset Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 82 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of Times", Peterboro'.

FARM AND FIELD

STOCK RAISING IN SIBERIA.

The Mongols Make the Best of Local Horse in Siberia.

The most important occupation in the Province of Transbaikal is stock raising. Cattle, horses and sheep predominate, altho a limited number of camels, deer, goats and swine are raised. The horses average between twelve and thirteen hands high, and can draw a load of over one thousand pounds, and if driven in a troioka (three horses harnessed abreast) they can cover thirty to forty miles a day. Journeys of thousands of miles at an average rate of forty miles a day have been made by riding these animals. The horses are kept in the open throughout the year, and in winter find their food under the snow. Some improvement has been made in breeding these horses, and only recently Arab blood was introduced.

The cattle are of Mongolian origin and are inferior and very small. They live in the same manner as the horses, and it is remarkable how they can withstand the severe climate and lack of food. Experiments have been made to improve the stock, but the results are noticed only in the first and second generation, the probable reason being that they are given so little care. These cattle produce little milk or beef. The camel is also of Mongolian origin, and the sheep are a little over two feet in height, the tail varying in weight from two to ten pounds. The wool is coarse, thick and of medium length.

BEE HIVES.

Successful Farmers Have Their Section Boxes Ready for Swarming.

The wideawake farmer does not wait until his bees have swarmed and are clustered on a treetop before he thinks of preparing a hive for them. All preparatory work, such as making and painting hives, wiring brood frames and getting the section boxes ready for the anticipated honey crop, should be done at leisure times during winter and early spring, before the rush of other work takes place. How easy it will be to manage a dozen or more colonies of bees next summer if everything is set in readiness now. For instance, if a swarm issues it will only be the work of a few minutes to take a hive from the barn and hive the swarm into it. If a honey flow bursts forth suddenly, what satisfaction it will give you to know that you have on hand a few hundred section boxes ready to set on the hives at once. If this work is put off until summer time, it is more than probable it will not be done at all. When feeding the bees be careful and not spill any of the sweets about the apiary, for robbing is often started in this way.

HOW SWINE CAN PAY.

Raising of Pigs Neglected in Canada.

First choose your breed. When your choice is made, purchase pure-bred brood sows. If you cannot afford to buy many, buy one good one, and by saving all the desirable females you will, in the course of a few years, have a good-sized herd. Do not spare a few dollars or a long drive to get a good boar.

The vigor of the constitution of the offspring depends on the dam, but the outward form and limbs depend more on the boar. The boar should be wide between the fore legs, with large girth behind them, that denotes active heart and lungs. Straight, strong limbs and erect hoofs indicate solidity of animal framework. Smooth skin and soft hair denote active liver and general health. Do not trade a long body for a short nose. These same qualities should be found in the female.

During the pregnancy of the sow, she should be allowed plenty of exercise and proper food, and there will be little trouble in giving birth to her offspring. A sow carrying pigs is engaged in a work which demands a full supply of tissue-making foods. Clover, wheat, bran and linseed meal and such foods, rich in protein, should be furnished her. There is a great mistake made by many hog raisers who give their brood sows corn and water for a diet; they think because they look well that such foods are all right, but they wonder why their sows have trouble giving birth to their offspring and many times eat them.

When the pigs are a few weeks old they should be given a creep where they can help themselves to grain. The males should be castrated when about two months old and while they are still with their mothers.

MANITOBA FOR GOOD ROADS.

Representatives of Manitoba Good Roads Association and Manitoba Union of Municipalities met last week in Winnipeg, and after considerable discussion on the financing of road work throughout the province passed a resolution to the effect that the government be asked to guarantee the bonds of the municipalities. It was proposed that the redemption of bonds be extended over a period of twenty to thirty years and further, that the amount of money to be raised do not exceed four per cent of the total assessment of the municipality.

ACUTE DISPEPSIA

RESTORATIVE NERVINE POWER CURES QUICKLY WITH THE RIGHT MEDICINE.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Chenier, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin (yellow), nervous. The stomach became disturbed and impaired apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were relieved of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

At George and Simcoe streets a boy jumped from the sidewalk and stopped the team after a sharp struggle. The lad ran into the crowd without giving his name.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. An Old Landmark Gone.
Yesterday evening about 5.30 the old power house at Auburn, was completely demolished by dynamiting. The machinery having been removed it was decided to dispose of it in this way, in order to clear the space for a new power plant which is now being built by the Peterborough Light and Power Co.

To Study Natural History.
Yesterday the Fire Department headquarters had an appearance which would lead an observer to suppose that the firemen were about to study bird life. A canary man was in town and he visited the station, with the result that he disposed of seven birds. When Chief Howard's stalwarts had time they took a huge delight in watching the antics of the birds.

Steamer Beaver in a Storm.
The steamer "Beaver", of which Mr. Jos Young, of this city, is in charge, met with disaster on Thursday. The boat had in tow several cribs of logs en route for Lake Simcoe, where they were to be shipped by rail to Toronto. When in Sturgeon Lake a severe storm arose and the cribs were driven ashore and the steamer had difficulty in making port. It is said that the cribs will have to be rebuilt, as they are too heavy to be taken up stream.

Y.M.C.A. Camp.
The Y.M.C.A. Junior Camp at Stoney Lake is in full swing. Last night the senior members held a large meeting to arrange for their camp on July 15th. They propose to have their headquarters on Juniper Island and to travel over the surrounding country. The camp will be under the leadership of one of the officers. Judging from the food the boys are taking they intend to have a good time.

Young Lady Meets Savage Animal.
At the home of a prominent citizen on George street where repairs are being completed, a small ground hog, probably with the intention of inspecting the work, slipped through the boards and wandered upstairs. This savage animal hied himself up a flight of stairs and into a young lady's bedroom. The appalling scream of the young lady alarmed the household. An heroic neighbor came in, and after several unsuccessful throws, finally roped the animal in the most approved Montana style, with a light fishing line.

tempt to legislate so as to deprive persons of having any form of innocent enjoyment on that day is pernicious legislation.

The law should not consider the day of rest as in any way connected with religious observances. Religion does not come within the province of legislative enactments and it is a good thing that it does not. It is not, therefore, the religious element in the day of rest that the law should deal with; and yet some of the provisions in the Dominion Lord's Day Act seem aimed more at preventing people from having innocent pleasure than for any other purpose. Section 6, for example, says:—

"It shall not be lawful for any person on the Lord's Day except as provided by any provincial act or law now or hereafter in force, to run, conduct, or convey by any mode of conveyance any excursion on which passengers are conveyed for hire and having for its principal or only object the carriage on that day of such passengers for amusement or pleasure and passengers so conveyed shall not be deemed to be travellers within the meaning of this Act."

Now, many poor people have Sunday as the only day on which they can go on an excursion for pleasure. The rich can take a day's excursion or a week's trip any time. It would seem as if this restriction could very well be eliminated from the Lord's Day Act without great harm.

MONSTER PETITIONS FOR WOMAN'S LIFE

MULTITUDE OF AMERICAN PEOPLE PLEAD WITH CANADA TO SHOW CLEMENCY.

Governor Takes a Hand — Indiana Man Makes a Personal Plea — Petitions Based on Inaccuracy.

Little Rock, Ark., July 8.—A local paper to-day mailed to Governor-General Grey, of Canada, a petition bearing the names of 21,011 Little Rock residents, asking for the pardon of Mrs. Angelina Napolitano. Governor G. W. Donaghey headed the petition.

All New Orleans Signs.

New Orleans, July 8.—Mayor Behrman's signature heads a monster petition that will contain one hundred thousand names by July 15, addressed to Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, urging clemency for Mrs. Angelina Napolitano, who awaits execution for killing her husband in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Governor Makes Appeal.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 8.—Declaring that mercy extended to Mrs. Angelina Napolitano may be of infinite value to her and her children, and further that it is not the business of the State to take human life, Governor Marshall, of Indiana, to-day addressed a letter to the Governor-General of Canada, petitioning him to at least commute the condemned woman's sentence to life imprisonment.

The case of the woman soon to become a mother, and under sentence of death to be imposed as soon as her child is born, was laid before the governor in detail. He was deeply moved and immediately arranged to communicate with the Canadian authorities. The letter follows:

"You will pardon the seeming impertinence upon the part of an executive of one of the United States of America in addressing you this letter, respectfully petitioning you to commute at least to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed upon Mrs. Angelina Napolitano at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

"The request which I prefer has nothing whatever to do with the orderly administration of law in the Dominion of Canada. It may be that my own views are mistaken ones, but I believe that it is not the business of the State to take human life, and I am deeply impressed with the truth of this view in a case in which a woman, goaded to the point of desperation by the vicious proposals of her husband, in a moment of anger and hot blood, took his life. Her death will do no good. Mercy extended to her may be of infinite value to her and her children.

"If I have transgressed any of the proprieties you will pardon me, but I have been so deeply moved by this case that I feel it my duty to prefer this request.

"Respectfully yours,

"THOS. MARSHALL, Governor."

There is no evidence, except Mrs. Napolitano's own word, that she was forced by her husband to live a life of shame in order to provide him with money. On the contrary, it is known that her husband slashed her with a knife for living with another man. The Crown argued that it was in revenge that she hacked off his head while he slept.

WAS 105 IN THE SHADE

The temperature was 105 degrees in the shade on George street yesterday morning. In the evening at six o'clock it was down to 90 degrees.

MURDERERS ESCAPE GALLOWS

Commutation of Sentence Recommended in Two Cases, But Another Must Die.

Ottawa, July 8.—The Cabinet yesterday considered and passed upon three capital cases. It is understood that commutation of sentence has been recommended in the case of Thomas Robertson, of Calgary, who turned King's evidence, and whose accomplice, Fiske, was hanged last week. In the case of William Carroll sentenced to be hanged at Sault Ste. Marie, there is every reason to believe that executive clemency has been recommended. The crime was entirely without motive, and he had been an inmate of an insane asylum.

In the case of John Tebo, of Digby, N. S., it is understood that the law will be allowed to take its course. The murder in this case was prompted by the desire of the prisoner to get possession of the money of his victim. There was no defence.

WILL MOROCCO BE SLICED UP?

The recurrence of the Moroccan trouble, which is unsettling the stock markets of Europe, appears to be the result of deliberate violations of the Algeciras treaty, to which the principal powers of Europe, and also the United States, were parties. Loopholes in the treaty permitted Spain and France to conduct pacifying expeditions which more firmly established themselves in strategic positions, both for military and commercial purposes. It is understood, however, that Russia and Britain approved of every step taken by France. Instead of making a formal protest against French aggression, Germany suddenly announced this week that she had sent a warship to Agadir, which virtually means that she has seized that port. This being a fait accompli, puts her in as advantageous a position as France and Spain when the powers meet, as seems necessary to draw up a new treaty. The constant revolutions in Morocco, with their dangers to trade and life, make it appear quite possible that the new agreement will provide for the partition of Morocco, a course that has been strongly urged in European newspapers. In that event, France, Spain, and England would probably divide between them the north part, and Germany secure territory in the south. Agadir, where Germany is now established, is 500 miles south of the straits of Gibraltar. At one time England held Tangiers, opposite Gibraltar, and it is unlikely that she will ever allow a foreign nation to occupy it.

In the present difficulty, Spain strongly supports Germany, as she objects to France getting a foothold on the south shore that might enable her, in war time, to establish a blockade. The Berliner Tageblatt has described France's actions as "shaking the mailed fist."

WHITE PERIL IN S. AFRICA

Johannesburg, July 8.—A native has been shot dead while attempting to assault a white woman, Mrs. Hunley, the wife of a miner.

She was attacked by the native while she was in bed during the absence of her husband on night work. Seizing a revolver, she fired twice at her assailant, killing him on the spot.

THE KING AND QUEEN ARRIVE IN DUBLIN

King and Queen Arrive in Dublin — Dublin, July 8.—King George and Queen Mary received a quiet but cordial welcome to Ireland to-day.

A banner was stretched outside the City Council Hall at Pembroke, a suburb of the capital, which refused to present an official address to the King, reading: "Welcome, We Want Home Rule."

Lord Mayor at Home.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin, whose threat that he would present an address to his Majesty despite the contrary decision of the corporation, it was feared would lead to trouble, remained at home.

The Lord Mayor said to-night: "I mean to see the King in State before he leaves Dublin but I cannot say now when or where the meeting will take place. Anyway I do not mean to do anything to mar the harmony of the reception. It would be easy for a few irresponsible youths to create a scene that would be interpreted as hostility to the King. There is nothing that would be more satisfying to the Unionists, and I do not mean to play into their hands."

The King's reply to the address presented upon his landing at Kingstown, in which he said: "I and the Queen hastened our visit to the Irish people in whose welfare our interest is deep and abiding," had the effect of establishing an immediate friendship between their Majesties and the men lining the streets.

Entered the Capital.

The Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, having on board their Majesties the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, anchored in Kingstown harbor last evening. To-day the Royal party entered the capital. They were received on shore by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and driven in state carriages to the Castle, where apartments had been specially prepared for their occupancy during their stay here.

Streets Were Crowded.

The occasion was made a holiday, and the streets were crowded with people who had come to see what to them was an interesting pageant. Students from Trinity College gathered in force on College Green and gave their Majesties a loyal and enthusiastic welcome. The threatened counter-demonstration did not materialize.

Orange and Green.

The town had been prettily decorated by a non-political committee, who were supported by citizens. The Nationalists adopted a passively friendly attitude, did not participate in the official receptions and did not interfere with the same. They decorated their premises always, however, with the Irish flag.

In the general decoration there was a discreet intermingling of orange and green.

The police kept quietly in the background, the soldiers doing the work ordinarily entrusted to the police force. There was little of this work to be done as order reigned everywhere.

YOUNG CARP DRUG CLERK DIES FROM HIS WOUNDS

REEVE McRAE, WHO SHOT AT AUTOMOBILE PARTY, WILL BE CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Trouble Over a Baby—Dr. Magee Had Been Trying to Get It When Wife's Uncle Fired.

Cornwall, July 8.—William Shaw, the young Carp drug clerk who was shot at Bridge End, Glengarry, last Saturday afternoon, passed away yesterday. The bullet which caused his death is believed to have been of .44-calibre, and came through the back of an automobile before breaking a rib and landing in his left lung. He was motored to Lancaster, and taken thence to the Cornwall General Hospital. All the time he retained consciousness, and until yesterday morning it was believed that he would pull through. He took a bad turn, however, and passed away late in the afternoon.

Shaw was 28 years of age, and a native of Scotland. He came to Canada six years ago, was employed in Dr. Magee's drug store at Carp, and was highly thought of by the whole community. He was to have been married this month. Shaw, it will be remembered, went with Dr. Magee to recover the latter's baby, and was shot by the uncle of Magee's wife, Reeve McRae.

Immediately on information of his death Dr. C. J. Hamilton called for a coroner's inquest, and at 8 p. m. the following jury viewed the remains at the General Hospital: J. B. Atchison, foreman; W. Fitzgibbon, A. Laframboise, C. R. Deroche, C. A. McHaffi, Fred Harding, Regis Giroux T. Dextras, John Ridley, Turner Gregson, and W. P. Boyd.

After Dr. D. O. Alguire had been given charge of the post-mortem, the inquest was adjourned till 10 a.m. on Thursday, July 13, at the Cornwall courthouse.

The charge against Reeve McRae will now be changed to one of murder.

TEN MILLION FEET OF LUMBER DESTROYED BY FIRE AT AYLMER

Ottawa, July 8.—For a second time this week disaster has struck the village of Aylmer on the Quebec side of the river, ten miles from here. Fire broke out in the lumber piles there at noon, and ten million feet of lumber, saws for the American market has gone up in smoke. At three o'clock the fire was fairly well under control.

The village of Aylmer was threatened, as the lumber is piled right within the corporation limits, but only a couple of small houses were affected.

It is estimated the lumber was worth $350,000 and it was insured for around $200,000. It was owned partly by the Fraser Bryson Lumber Company and the balance by the McAuliffe Davis Company. It had all been sawn at Ritchie Bros.' mills and piled in yards near there.

There was trouble at first getting water pressure, but detachments from the Ottawa and Hull brigades went there and rendered what assistance they could.

LOCAL ORANGE LODGES ATTEND GEORGE ST. CHURCH

Last night the Orangemen of this city, attended the George Street Methodist Church where a special sermon had been arranged by Mr. Couch. The procession was most dignified and was witnessed by a large crowd. The lodge members took six minutes to pass the Y.M.C.A. They entered the church in a most reverend manner.

The Rev. Mr. Couch said in part that a great debt is owing to the foreigners who have made their homes in Canada for educational advantages they have brought from abroad but that our institutions are best if manned by our best men and are poorest if manned by our men of inferior ability. He dwelt at length on ways in which we should get a perfect unity, but, as to knowledge which has a relation to intelligence. Orangemen stand for a free religious discussion. He held that keeping old doctrines simply because of their age is poor unity, and that knowledge is the Fire of Life. He claimed that catholicism and patriotism are antagonistic to each other in some ways. He saw a certain agreement as to symbols and worship but not to a great extent. The Catholic Church, he said, thought only by proxy, or through the superiors of the Church, and that Protestants would never do this.

Pere Hyacinthe did not attack any order in particular in the Catholic Church, but stood out for the Protestant faith as a whole. Mr. Couch claimed that it was for this the Pere left his Church. The birds seek out their particular food and do not swallow what is brought to them, as do the sheep. This comparison was used to bring out that the Catholic Church had not improved in two thousand years, and that Protestants are not spiritual sheep.

The speaker spoke at length on the common schools. He considers them necessary for bringing all classes together and putting them on an equal footing in order that the clever pupils, rich or poor, would have the same chance for honors. No institution has the right to bring forth a man of inferior abilities as its chief. Orangemen stand for equal opportunities. The Common Schools offer an education which is a protection against the greed and graft of fellow creatures. Common schools should be made so good that the rich would send their sons to them in preference to the private schools. Religion, he thought, should be left out of school work if it interfered with this. Valuable though the Bible is it should not be forced into the schools in defiance of the opinion of the parents.

Teachers are now specialists and religion should be taught at home.

The speaker advised that churches should be made to feel the responsibility of teaching religion.

No man can be right with the world and without religion. All people believe in practical religion. The speaker believed that the Catholic Church is too formal, though he admired many of its members, who had outgrown some of its teachings. He referred to the unity of the Catholic Church as superficial. That Catholics quarrel on the inside but Protestants show their quarrels openly.

A better day is coming; Protestants can't go back, he said, to the old religion. Here much laughter was caused by an apt comparison. The old teachings can't be brought in again.

The sermon closed with a very earnest prayer.

A large number of the congregation who were not in the procession, remained seated as the Orangemen marched out, while the excellent choir sang a beautiful hymn.

CASTRO LANDS IN VENEZUELA TO GET BACK PRESIDENCY

EXILED PRESIDENT LANDS WITH THE INTENTION OF ACCOMPLISHING REVOLUTION.

Has Thousand Troops—Gomez Seized Control Years Ago, With Encouragement of Foreigners.

Willemstadt, Curacao, July 8.—The Venezuelan Government has positive news that Cipriano Castro, the exiled President of Venezuela, effected a landing on the western part of Venezuela and to-day had a following of one thousand men.

Castro has had a very stormy career. While Dictator of Venezuela he was in constant conflict with foreign countries, notably the United States, France, Germany, Britain and Holland. While away in Europe for his health, Vice-President Gomez seized control. Castro tried to return, but the steamship company put him off at Fort de France, Martinique. He was given two days by the French Government to leave ythat place, and against his will was put on a steamer and shipped back to Europe. For a couple of years Castro lived in the Canary Islands, but two months ago he disappeared.

After a telegraphic hunt lasting several weeks, Castro was located by the United States authorities on board the steamship Consul Grostuck an obsolete gunboat, formerly owned by the Italian Government, at Port de Paix Hayti.

Secretary of State Knox was especially anxious to locate Castro and prevent his return to Venezuela.

Castro is a dapper little man of boundless energy, and with considerable wealth. He was supposed to be hopelessly ill.

A Big Farm.

One of our subscribers, who has been out in the western country told us this: A commercial traveller drove up to a ranch in Alberta just as the rancher was going for a ride. The rancher's wife and children were crying around him. "What's the matter?" asked the knight of the grip. "Paw's going to the other side of the ranch", answered one of the children between sobs. "Well, what's there in that for sorrow?" "Boo-hoo, he won't be back for two years."

LAW ABIDING PETERBOROUGH

The large crowd in this city on Saturday was very orderly. Chief Thompson's men were much commended for their efficiency in keeping the traffic clear, as well as for their courtesy to the out of town visitors. Many of the men were on duty long hours in the heat, but they kept order without having to make a single arrest.

A well known Des Moines woman, after suffering miserably for two days from bowel complaint, was cured by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by all dealers.

COCHRANE HAS SERIOUS FIRE

NORTHLAND PRINTING OFFICE AND THE COCHRANE HOTEL WERE BURNED.

Loss Is About $17,000—Weekly Paper, Whose Plant Was Recently Inspected, a Heavy Sufferer.

Cobalt, Ont., July 8.—Fire yesterday evening destroyed the Cochrane Hotel, the Northland printing office, and two residences in Cochrane.

The fire started in the hotel and the inefficient fire protection allowed it to get headway.

The Cochrane Hotel is a three-storey structure, owned by Jas. O'Reilly, valued at $10,000. The Northland had a neat office, owned by Otta Thorning, and the loss is complete, running up $5,000 or more. Between the two places were two residences, one owned by N. Service, valued at $1,000, and the other owned by the hotel. Both were destroyed.

The buildings are situated on Fourth avenue between Third and Fourth streets. The buildings on the opposite side of the street were saved with difficulty. The Northland was the weekly paper. The members of the Toronto Board of Trade inspected the premises on their trip north recently.

This is Cochrane's second fire. It is likely that the burned places will be rebuilt immediately.

Mr. David Porter, the well known butcher of this city, erected the hotel at Cochrane about two years ago, but sold it last February to a Sudbury man.

BUFFALO BILL WILD WEST SHOW CROWDED

The Buffalo Bill Wild West Show gave two performances on Saturday, afternoon and evening, both of which were attended by a large and interested crowds. The shooting exhibitions by Miss Annie Oakley and Captain Bogardus were particularly thrilling and were wildly applauded. There was some first class roping and riding. Some of the horses showed much careful training. The spirit of the great west, dying perhaps, but not dead, was brought out to a high degree.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. BAD FOR BARBERS.

Among the many suggestions made for commemorating the reign of King Edward VII., the quaintest is that now put forward by Captain MacIlwaine, R. N. Captain MacIlwaine's suggestion is that the men of the British Empire, following the example of the late King, should put their razors aside and proceed to grow beards. Our present King, sharing the views of his father, grows a beard, and makes his staffs do the same. The beard is the exception, not the rule, among men of the present day.

A Salvation Army Baronet.

A scion of one of the oldest of the noble families of England, Sir Genille Cave-Brown-Cave, 12th baronet of Stanford, is now a member of the Salvation Army in Brooklyn. His patrimonial estates in England were so encumbered that years ago he came to this country to make a living and had been employed on ranches in the west. He became one of the most expert of cowboys, and held the record for roping and branding a steer in the shortest time. The freedom of the plains appealed to him. Some months ago Sir Genille decided on going to England on a visit and travelled east as far as New York. There a Salvation Army lass with her tambourine and a frank look in her blue eyes lured him from a public resort, in which he and a party of friends were regaling themselves, and interested him in the work of the army. He is now working as a janitor and trying to save from his wages the $100 matriculation fee required at the Salvation Army training school for officers of the army.

Our Four Great Railways.

The United States had thirty million people before the country was connected by railway from ocean to ocean. Four years from now, when Canada's population will probably approximate ten millions, we will have four transcontinental railway systems. And no one doubts that there will be traffic for all of them if we maintain our fiscal independence and encourage interprovincial trade. If the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways do as much to develop Canada and advertise it through the world as the Canadian Pacific Railway has done the progress of Canada during the next twenty-five years will surpass that of the United States in any twenty-five years of its history.

Young Borup Writes a Book in Slang

When Commander Peary took George Borup, a graduate of Yale, on his last polar trip, he added a live one to his party. Young Borup, only twenty-three years old, was the benjamin of the crew. Members of the expedition say that no night was too dark for Borup fun-making.

Since his return to America, Borup has written a book entitled "A Tenderfoot With Peary." He writes mostly in slang, but his story is perhaps the most interesting, popularly, that has ever been written of the arctic regions. Whatever young Borup had to do he did in a spirit of fun.

For instance, when Commander Peary set him to work at photography, Borup made his work doubly interesting by applying a spirit of hu

WHERE THE "DOME" DID ITS PART.

Old Baseball Players Give Their Experiences.

"Bonehead Barry!" That's what they usually say of a player when he accidentally or otherwise permits himself to be hit on the "dome" by a batted or pitched ball. While some of these plays have been anything but pleasant to the man hit, there's no question but most of them prove humorous to the fans, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

I have seen many players hit on the head with batted or thrown balls," said Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, "but the funniest play of this kind happened when I was with the Giants. "Jack" Dunn was playing third base at the time and a foul fly was sent up near third base.

"I was catching and started after the ball until he shouted 'I've got it.' He seemed to be camped under it all right until the sun got in his eyes and he lost the ball. It came and hit him on the top of the head. The ball knocked 'Jacks' cap off, and, as he was as bald as a doorknob and very sensitive about his slick dome, he made a wild scramble to recover the top-piece."

"A play which seems almost an impossibility, but one that is an actual fact, was performed by Ben Koehler and Emil Frisk, two former St. Louis outfielders," said Secretary Lloyd H. Eckart, of the Browns.

"In a game several years ago a ball was hit midway between center and right. Koehler and Frisk started for it. Koehler, the usually reliable, called that he had the ball. But he began dancing around and finally lost in the sun. He 'ducked' to avoid being struck, but the ball came down, hit him on the head, bounded up, and rink, the uncertain, caught it for the out."

NO HATPINS NEEDED.

Hatpins are not required for several of the new types of toques. Instead, the drapery trimming of the toques is wound rather tightly around the head and lower part of the toque body in a manner which reminds one of the cloths women wind around their heads as a dust protector when cleaning house. The free end of the drapery is fastened by means of hooks and eyes after being wound.

TIT BIT KNOWLEDGE.

For the cotton gowns the predilection is for colored embroideries. The colors of the embroideries are pink, rose, old blue, light blue, lavender and yellow.

Sleeves are short in all save the strictly tailored garments, and by short is meant a termination of the sleeve just at or an inch or more above the elbow.

Sashes are worn a great deal with afternoon toilets.

Paris decrees black velvet slippers for evening toilets.

Blind embroidery and English eyelet are both favorites for the separate white waist.

It is going to be a great cotton season, and cottons are going to be tolerated where formerly they have been prohibited.

CANADIANS AND INVENTION.

Dr. A. Grahame Bell and the Telephone.

Canada has every reason to be proud of her brilliant student in practical science—Professor A. Graham Bell—the inventor of the telephone, which has done so much to revolutionize the social and business world. The doctor first saw the light in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1847 and came out to Canada in 1870, where he carried on his investigations that consumated not only in the great invention with which his name is associated with, but the photophone, inductive balance, and telephone probe, and (with C. A. Bell) graphaphone. He has made a thorough study of the education of the deaf. In recent years he has taken great interest in the laws of flight and aviation generally. This brilliant Canadian is the holder of many degrees and a member of many learned societies. His Canadian home is in Nova Scotia.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,-- is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt-would buy Montreal Real Estate ?

To the men of good judgment,— these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruits, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

Young Lady Meets Savage Animal.

At the home of a prominent citizen on George street where repairs are being completed, a small ground hog, probably with the intention of inspecting the work, slipped through the boards and wandered upstairs. This savage animal hied himself up a flight of stairs and into a young lady's bedroom. The appalling scream of the young lady alarmed the household. An heroic neighbor came in, and, after several unsuccessful throws, finally roped the animal in the most approved Montana style, with a light fishing line.

As Done in France.

"Some years ago," writes a well-known motorist, "I was being driven by a French friend of my acquaintance. He is so careful over his personal expenditure as he is reckless on his Panhard. I did not like the combination, but it is best to be fair-minded to foreigners. Passing through a village near St. Albans we encountered a hen. She was starting across the road like a champion one moment, and dead the next. She never knew what struck her. Adolphe, which is my friend's name, pulled up.

"'It is useless to go to her assistance,' said I.

"But Adolphe jumped out of the car and went. I thought it very kind of him. He picked up the dead bird and came running back.

"'Bless! she is not young,' he panted. 'But she will do well for soup, au bouillon de poulet, très delicat.'

"'Good heavens, you're not going to take her home?'

"'Mais certainement! Here she would be wasted. It is as we do in France. Vive la chasse!'

"I had heard that motorists were not popular in the French villages. From that day I have understood."

KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

THE STANDING ALIBI OF

H. STANLEIGH STORME

(By Wm. Hamilton Osborne).

"Now we started in to play, understand. And when you're playing cards time flies like the dickens. We've got a tape up there in the green room and it runs all night as well as all day. The telegraph people here run it "And I want to tell you," continued the sheriff, "that the news of this very robbery came in over the ticker while we were sitting there—Storme and the rest of us—about half past two in the morning. And Storme was there—sat next to me. And I said to Storme, when the news came in, 'Storme,' I said, 'Mordaunt's safe's been cracked, and there's a pile of money gone.'

"And I called up headquarters then and there, and we found out all about it. That's how it was, and that's how I know, and his honor can tell you just what I tell you, too That's all there is about it.

"And I want to tell you," concluded the sheriff, officially, and for the benefit of the reporters who were taking down his testimony. "I want to tell you, counsellor, that the county detectives would never have made a bull like this, either, and don't you forget it—never in God's world."

The sheriff stepped down, and John R. Cassidy stepped up.

His testimony was identical. It was the purpose of the prisoner's counsel to call the prisoner, but just as he was to do so, the prisoner plucked him by the sleeve.

After a short conference, the attorney for the defence announced that the defence closed his case.

The judge's charge was mormal and formal in the extreme. At the close of it, the jury although invited to retire, declined to do so, and without stepping from the jury box returned a verdict of "not guilty."

And then the crowd piled up on top of H. Stanleigh Storme and showered him with congratulations.

This was the only precarious experience that Storme had suffered during the whole thing. Two-thirds, perhaps, of his friends and acquaintances were in the court room.

Every individual among the number insisted upon shaking him by the hand. The crowd packed the isles, waiting for him.

Storme had his eye fixed wistfully upon the exit. For some reason he was anxious to get way.

He thanked his counsel briefly, together with his witnesses, and then hurried along. Finally he reached the open air.

But there still clung to him a little bevy of men and women.

Suddenly he glanced down the street.

"There," he explained to his friends, "is a man I want to see—a man I must see."

And he hurried off. As he went he glanced at his watch.

There was no man, but he simply wanted to get away, that's all.

On the way he passed Officer O'Connell and Burke, the plain clothes man. As he did so he smiled upon them in a way that was childlike and bland.

They returned the salutation with curt nods of their heads.

"Well, Jim," said O'Connell to Burke, as Storme left them far in the rear, "what d'ye make of it, any way?"

"Billy," returnd Burke, solemnly, "I don't know what to make of it. The only solution I have arrived at is that the devil must have been stringin' us that night. That's all I've got to say."

O'Connell shook his head doubtfully. And they quickened their pace and—followed Storme.

Away up the street Storme forged ahead with rapid steps.

"An alibi," he muttered to himself, "is a blamed good thing."

CHAPTER VII.

The Shadowers and the Shadowed.

It took Storme some time to escape entirely from the clutches of his over enthusiastic friends. All the way along the street he met them.

By means of one pretext and another, however he finally eluded them and slipped down a quiet street From this one he emerged into a more open thoroughfare, and finally stood before the Gouverneur, his bachelor apartment home.

Once there, he glanced hastily up and down the street to make sure that no one saw him, then quickly unlocked the door and stepped inside. He ascended noiselessly to the second floor apartment. He entered it, and hastily passed through room after room.

"Nobody here," he remarked with a sigh of relief. "I am all alone."

He seated himself at a desk and began to write.

"It is just as well," he said to himself, "to write once more, now that it's all over. It was just as well, too, to write before, when — the first — catastrophe occurred. It's safer if anything. It's taking chances—big chances perhaps—but in a safe quarter, after all."

He wrote hastily as follows:

My Dear Miss Dumont,—

It seems better to address you as for the present. There are certain things to which I prefer to refer by letter alone.

"You will recall that I wrote you on the twenty-fourth of last month requiring you to make no reference in my presence, or to me, to anything which might have happened. That request was not prompted by any desire to be spared humiliation—it was a part of the peculiar circumstances which have constituted a part of my present life.

"Now that I have been vindicated in your eyes and in the eyes of the world I ask you to make to me no reference to to-day's happenings, nor to such vindication, nor, indeed, to this letter or the other.

I have many good reasons for making this request, which will appear later. I close with the expression of much regard. Sincerely,

"H. STANLEIGH STORME."

"A bit formal, perhaps," continued Storme, "but certainly imperative. This complication with Miss Dumont was certainly unlooked for—and yet" —he smiled to himself—"not altogether unfortunate, for me. I don't know after all, but that it is a good thing — a very good thing, perhaps after all."

He enclosed it in an envelope, addressed the latter, and sealed it carefully with wax, upon which he impressed the seal ring he wore.

He looked at his watch.

"There's plenty of time. I'll send this up by messenger. That's best."

Rising from the desk, he drew upon his head a soft felt hat which partly covered his face, and stole downstairs again. He carefully opened the front door and looked out.

The street was deserted—almost But not quite—for at each end of the blocked lounged one man, intent, apparently, on everything except the Couverneur or H. Stanleigh Storme.

"Great Scott!" murmured Storme to himself, "so soon again?"

He retraced his steps and re-entered the hall and, passing through to the rear of the apartment house, made his exit through an alleyway.

Once clear of the place, he hastened towards the centre of the town and handed his message in at a local delivery office with instructions to send it out at once.

In the meantime one of the two men who had stood outside sauntered up and accosted the other.

Did you see him then, Jim, when he stuck his head outside?"

Burke nodded—for it was he.

"He won't come out till dark, now," he replies, "you see if he does."

"Well," returned the first man, "he saw us all right, all right—though he can't be sure just who we are since we're all togged out in this way. We might just as well stick together now for a while, anyway. Gimme a chaw o' tobacco, will you? That's the ticket."

There was a silence while he carefully adjusted the stuff to suit his taste.

Suddenly he grasped the other man by the sleeve.

"Geo!" he exclaimed. "Look a here. How the devil now did he get out? He gave us the slip, after all."

He pointed down the street.

Burke nodded his head.

"He's been out—blamed if he ain't," assented he, "and now he's coming back. He's a slick one, all right. Went out the back way, prob'ly, an' now he's comin' back as bold as brass."

The object of their remarks disappeared within the house. He looked neither to the right nor to the left. Most certainly he did not see the two plain clothes men, or, if he did, he gave no sign.

It was now fairly late in the afternoon.

"Stumpy," exclaimed Burke, "go around the corner there and 'phone headquarters. We may see another man. An' you keep that allayway under yer eye, too."

"We got this fellow now where we want him, an' it's a blame good thing I forgot something and had to come back. We'll camp on his trail; we'll follow him, no matter where he goes."

"Stumpy," he continued, "let me tell you. I told it in court, an' I say that there man is the man who robbed that bank, and, by George, I'm

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analysed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that athick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Any good druggist or dealer can supply the large 25c bottles of Nerviline.

CHILDREN OF THE STATE.

In Massachusetts inquiry has been made as to what becomes of "State children"—children who from poverty or other misfortune, or some juvenile offence, have passed under the care of the State. Out of 240 cases examined, it is found that the majority are leading self-supporting, respectable lives, the drawback being that 68 per cent. are engaged in unskilled labor. According to a summary published in the Springfield Republican, ninety-one men earn an average wage of $12 a week. There are 36 men who earn $15 a week or more. Eighteen earn $1,000 a year, while the highest paid man of the group earns $30 a week. The 34 men engaged in skilled trades are painters, machinists, moulders, plumbers, carpenters, shoe workers, electricians, engineers, firemen, stenographers and bookkeepers, tinsmiths, telegraphers, chauffeurs, and blacksmiths. The 166 unskilled workers are farm workers, factory workers, drivers, expressmen, stablemen, etc., brakemen, motormen and conductors, clerks, hotel and restaurant employees, janitors, elevator men, etc., lumbermen, milk wagon drivers, messengers and errand boys, and laborers. Of the 68 woman, 66 per cent. are married and the others are engaged in independent gainful occupations.

The reports on morality are highly encouraging. Nearly seventy-five per cent. stand well in the estimation of the community; only five per cent. have criminal records. This leaves about twenty per cent, who are not criminal, but not quite as good as their neighbors think they ought to be. Neighborhood opinion is apt to be narrow and censorious, sometimes condemning characteristics which are merely unusual or unconventional, so that the twenty per cent. no doubt may be regarded as average people, having good and bad streaks and impulses, like those of us who are not wards of the State. The best results are obtained when the boy is "caught young" and removed from a bad environment. There is a surprising resemblance be tween human beings who live under similar conditions.

COURTESY TO TRAVELERS.

A Western railroad company announces that it intends to establish a school of manners for the instruction of its employees, especially those who come in contact with the general public in the matter of selling tickets or other public business. The Buffalo Evening News commends the proposal heartily, and proceeds to denounce the employes of American corporations in strong language.

The average employe of a public service corporation is a bear; he has a good word for nobody; he takes it as a personal affront if some luckless passenger asks him a question of the sort he is put there to answer; it is his particular delight to hurl covert insult in every direction, and, by a generally aggressive and what he deems a superior air, to prove to himself and the world at large that he is quite as good as anybody else.

That our public service in America is the worst in the world is the matter of habitual rudeness, seldom indifference, curt performance of simple duty, and absolute lack of manners is a truism.

The language is strong, but it accords with the experience of a good many travelers in the United States. Englishmen have frequently expressed surprise at the rough, overbearing manners of American officials, and the meekness of the general public. The latter characteristic has been explained by saying that the American is too busy to quarrel with officials. He does not want to expend in that way vital energy which he could use in his business. But if a widespread courteous protest were made, the nuisance might be quelled, and the lot of millions of people made happier.

An excuse urged for the officials is that people ask "fool questions" and apply to the wrong persons for information, going to the hotel clerk, for instance, instead of to the ball-boy. All this simply means that an inexperienced traveler, who above all others needs help and courtesy, is punished by rudeness and sometimes positive insult for the dreadful crime of inexperience. It means that a man or woman who has not much money to spend on travel, and for whom a little trip is the event of a lifetime, is deprived of pleasure and humiliated.

Railway companies and proprietors of hotels could very speedily end this abuse so far as their employes are concerned. A city which desired to attract visitors might find it profitable to establish a bureau of information for strangers, and to take special care of those who are not experienced in travel.

A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD.

By Constance Romance-James.

John Chalmers was finishing the portrait of a child, the best thing he had ever done, when his wife entered the studio, That he was conscious of her entry was attested by the frown which darkened his face as she closed the door. Yet he neither spoke nor loked round, but drawing a thin silk curtain over the picture proceeded leisurely to scrape the paint from the palette in his hand.

Mrs. Chalmers stood for a moment by the door, watching him, then moved one step forward and stopped again.

"Jack."

He turned to look at her with a grave face.

"So you have come back?"

She clasped and unclasped two thin white hands nervously. It was so difficult to explain he rerrand. If only her husband would storm and rage. Instead of which he stood calm, unruffled, apparently not very much interested in her re-appearance.

"Will you not sit down?" he asked presently, with cold politeness. "You seem a little upset."

"Upset!" with an angry flush that dyed her pale cheeks scarlet. "A little upset! That is so like you, John Chalmers."

A faint smile played over the painter's handsome face.

"I have not altered much in six months, Beatrice. But what can I do for you? You have left Mr.—er—Mr. Waring?"

"For the moment, yes."

"How very interesting." Each word came deliberately. "And if one may venture to inquire, what do you intend to do now?"

His words stung her pride into expression. "You need have no fear," she said bitterly. "I did not come here to-day to propose that you should take me back again."

"I must confess," he answered blandly, "that the idea never occurred to me. You make for happiness, at whatever cost. And we discovered, did we not, that our union was not conducive to happiness?

"But it might have been." The words came quickly, almost before she realised she had spoken.

Chalmers looked at his wife sharply. "It might have been?"

"Yes, yes, yes," she cried passionately, leaning forward in her eagerness. "It might have been. If you had been more human——it might have been. People worship you for your art's sake. If you had been a little less self-sufficient, a little more attentive to me, your young wife—it might have been. Above all, if you had not taken me to live with your stern puritanical sister, Isabella, who misjudged me as only a soured, middle-aged woman can hate and misjudge the high-spirited vivacity of a young girl—I tell you again, it might have been."

"And was it to point out my faults you condescended to honour me with a visit to-day?"

Mrs. Chalmers gave a miserable little laugh. "I forget. Pointing out faults is your prerogative, yours and Isabella's. No, John, I did not come to upbraid you. I came to ask you—to talk about—Bubbins."

"The child."

"Our child."

"She is well looked after in every way. Isabella——"

Mrs. Chalmers put her hands to her ears. "No! For God's sake not that. Don't tell me Isabella is a second mother to her, John." She crossed over to where she sat beside the easel playing indicerently with palette and brushes, and beat her tall, girlish figure down to his level. "John, the child is nothing to you. Though only three, it's already plain to see how unlike you she is in every way. She has all my characteristics. Every day you are reminded of the unfortunate fact. You must hate her——"

"Won't you give me credit for any fatherly feeling?" he interrupted.

"It is not your fault." The full gaze of her sad eyes was turned upon him. "When the gods endowed you, they decided you could do without anything as commonplace as affection. There was a time once—long ago—when you seemed to be alive. I thought to have married a flesh-and-blood man, and I found him only a thing of stone, feelingless—cold." She gave a little shiver.

"And did you find what I lacked in the man of your matterer choice? Did he understand you as no one else could? I am curious to know."

"You speak in enigmas. I have no idea what you are driving at. Don't you understand? I have come to ask you to let me have Bubbins."

"Bubbins? Let you have the child?" He was startled out of his pose.

"Why do you speak like that? I did wrong in leaving you, and I have suffered. If I am a foolish woman, I am not a bad one. Let me have her, for pity's sake. I can't"—a little sob—"I can't live without her. Rise above yourself, Jack. Mrs. Chalmers laid her hand pleadingly on her husband's arm. "Will you?"

"No," shaking off her hand roughly. "No, no; it is impossible."

"Why? Will you tell me why?"

"You know why. When you left this house as—as you did you forfeited the right to——"

"Daddy!" cried a small imperative voice.

"Daddy!" She pulled his sleeve to attract his attention. "Daddy, somefinks the matter wif Mummy. She's crying. I 'spect you'd better kiss her and make her well. Come!

The big man reluctantly allowed himself to be led to his wife, who still sat with her face hidden in her hands.

"Beatrice!"

A hand was laid on the bowed head. At his touch she looked up, and Bubbins climbing on to the settee, laid her cool cheek against her mother's tear-stained one with a sigh of relief.

"Listen, Beatrice. After all, I am only human. I cannot deny you what you ask. You shall have the little one, provided you let me see her sometimes,

WILL TAFT AGAIN BE PRESIDENT IN 1912

A number of things have combined lately to make President Taft's renomination in 1912 appear to many a practical certainty, says the Literary Digest. Colonel Roosevelt's emphatic assertion that he would regard his own nomination in 1912 as a "calamity," the rumored mustering out of the anti-Taft Progressive Republican League, the winning over of some of the Senators who were looked upon as the bodyguard of the La Follette Presidential boom, and the identification of the present Administration with such popular issues as Canadian reciprocity and unlimited arbitration, all combine, according to the prevailing opinion of the press to this result.

Among other factors mentioned as contributing to the same end are the Supreme Court decisions in the great trust cases. It will be remembered that during his first year in office President Taft said publicly, with characteristic frankness, that there were many signs that "this Administration is not popular." But now even the Democratic papers are testifying that the situation has undergone a substantial change.

"Mr. Ballinger is gone, Aldrich is in retirement, and Mr. Taft instead of being in alinement with the foremost of the reactionaries still remaining in Congress, stands before the country as the man of his party, in sharp antagonism to men like Root and McCumber, and with La Follette and others of his ilk powerless for the time being to catch the ear of the country," remarks the Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier (Dem.), which adds, that while "his re-election depends very largely upon whom the Democrats shall put forward to oppose him," his re-nomination "seems to be assured."

"Politicians may not be with him, but the Republican people are," comments the Wilmington, (N.C.) Star (Dem.), "and for that reason the President will be a formidable candidate against our nominee in the next election year."

As the Phoenix Arizona Democrat (Dem.) sees it, Mr. Taft "will be renominated, but not re-elected."

"Mr. Taft is stronger than he was, but his party is weaker than it was," thinks the Brooklyn Eagle (Ind. Dem.), and the New York World (Dem.) agrees that "in his messages and speeches on Canadian reciprocity he has placed himself far in the lead of his party." And the St. Louis Republic (Dem.) remarks: "It is the Taft of the second year, solicitous that the Taft of the first year shall be forgotten, who will make the 1912 run. And whatever the rank and file, who have no hope of office, may do, the insurgent leaders, who do hope for office, will support him. What else is there to do?

The Marlborough Street (London) magistrate does not encourage thrift amongst beggars. One who was caught with £454 in his possession has not only been sent to jail, but ordered to pay the expenses of his keep there.

FACTS ABOUT THUNDERSTORMS.

From the Montreal Star.

It is an undoubted fact that a large proportion of the fatalities from lightning are among people taking shelter under trees, and it has been naturally, but incorrectly, assumed that it is safer to get soaking wet in the open than to take shelter under a tree in a thunderstorm. In Hungary where the deaths from lightning are 7.7 per million of inhabitants, it was found in the three years from 1901 to 1903, that while 15 per cent. of the fatalities occurred under trees, no less than 57 per cent. occurred out in the open. In the United States in 1900 there were 10 per cent. in the open. As a protection, from lightning, a house is better than a tree, but a tree is better than nothing. Much also depends on the kind of tree and its location. Any tree standing alone is more likely to be struck than one in a wood and in equal numbers of oak, fir, pine, and beech trees a series of observations extending over many years in Lippe, Germany, lead to the conclusion that the respective chances of being struck are: Oak, 57, fir, 30, pine, 5, beech 1. The soul is also said to make a great difference, the respective liability so found in Germany being: Loam 22, sand 9, clay 7, chalk 1. In great cities the risk of human life is insignificant compared to the terror inspired, and the immunity has probably been increased by the multiplicity of good electric conductors, such as telegraph and telephone wires, and steel frame buildings. That telephone companies, however, should have difficulty in attempting to restrain people from trying to use the telephones during severe storms shows the need for a little popular education on the subject.

HARDISTY

The Town of Hardisty is expending $15,000 in Cement walks alone this year. The Residential Streets are all being boulevarded, making it the most enchanting City in the West.

A large Public Park has already been reserved, beautifully located, running to the shore of a beautiful lake, which abounds with different kinds of fish. Several small lakes are in close proximity to Hardisty, which is bound to make it one of the finest summer and health resorts in the West. Within six miles from Hardisty is the famous Buffalo Park, which is a source of wonder and delight, containing the largest herd of Buffalo now in captivity. Hardisty has a typical sunny Alberta climate, conductive to the production of every kind of wild fruit and berries which grow in abundance all along the shores of Battle river and lakes.

This is Hardisty's new C. P. R. Station, the largest and best equipped outside the large cities.

A few of the C. P. R. Sidings at Hardisty.

C. P. R. Round House and Stalls at Hardisty.

HARDISTY already has 25 miles of side tracks, having a capacity of 1,000 cars, with an auxiliary yard having a capacity for 500 more, which will be doubled this year to cope with the immense traffic. The C. P. R. has already expended at Hardisty over $300,000 in Round Houses and Machine Shops. 8 more Stalls are being added this year to accommodate the increasing business of the company.

HARDISTY ASSURES ONE OF THE BEST PROFIT MAKING INVESTMENTS IN THE WEST.

As can readily be seen on the map, Hardisty is the centre of the great Transcontinental traffic, the shortest route by 300 miles from Winnipeg to the great west. Hardisty is a splendid freight distributing point with direct connection with Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, and Winnipeg. Hardisty is the key to the last Great West, and the open door through which passes Alberta's great products of grain, timber, live stock and minerals.

The C. P. R. employs seventeen train crews, running to and from Hardisty daily, besides those employed in connection with the Round Houses, Machine Shops, Stores, Coal Shutes, etc.

Hardisty has the beautiful Battle River running past its door, affording no end of sport for the huntsman and fisherman, also assuring excellent sites for manufacturing concerns, and at the same time supplying the town with water if needed.

Hardisty has large General Stores, Hotels, Churches, Banks, Hardware Stores, Wholesale and Retail Butcher Shops, Lumber Yards, Implement Shops, Livery Barns, Large Schools, Hospital and Printing Offices.

Hardisty's surroundings are the best for mixed farming in the west, being three weeks earlier than the general run of places.

Spread out before you is the picturesque town of Hardisty, the Wonder Town of the West. It is cleft by the beautiful Battle river flowing pure and sparkling, affording water privileges that few towns can boast of.

THE NEW PHASE.

It must have been quite two a.m. when I was awakened from my slumbers by a voice, apparently from heaven.

"Nah then, funny, wot yer gettin' at there?" was the burden of its speech.

It was, by oral evidence, Matilda.

Matilda is our Domestic Permanency, my wife's proud boast to outsiders, her domineering tyrant in the house. Matilda's bedroom was above ours, and she was evidently talking out of the window. I could imagine the gargoyle effect.

"With you great boots," continued the voice, "a-treadin' over our flowerbeds, an' what good you think you're doin' of or ever will do in the cabbin' line with them feet. . . ."

A pause, evidently for breath.

Who was this Romeo? Had I been less comfortable I should have got up and looked out of the window.

"And I'll thank you to stop flashin' that there dratted light up at my window. What you think you're goin' to see at this time o' night I don't know. No, I ain't got me tarara on. Wot's that? Winder left open, won't the master come down? Not 'im! Not if there wasn't twenty burglars 'e wouldn't. 'E's too snug in 'is bed. With 'is feet on 'is 'ot bottle."

During breakfast a terrific crash from the kitchen reduced my wife to tears. I rang the bell fiercely—I always got as far as that—and an akimbo form appeared.

"It's yer Uncle Josiah's dessert-service gone, and if I won't a stayer I should give notice immediate, own' to shock."

"But what was my best china doing ——" began my wife feebly.

My blood was up.

"Look here, you'll take a month's notice and go!"

I was eyed with a stony stare.

"Oh, Matilda, we couldn't dream of parting with you!" protested my wife hastily; and with an indescribable sniff the stayer disappeared.

And every attempt at giving notice had elicited the intention of going straight to one of our most intimate friends.

"And we couldn't refuse a good reference after six years; and think what she could say about us!" wept my wife.

I hastily agreed, remembering the small hours of that morning.

"Amelia," I demanded suddenly, "what do we pay Matilda?"

"One hundred and twenty-five dollars a year and her keep must be quite another $250."

"Then if we pensioned her on $250 a year we should save. Besides Uncle Josiah's china."

"But she'd never leave—she's too accustomed; is it likely she'd leave this house which she practically owns, for two rooms? Besides, she'd go to Mrs. Robinson-Jones."

"Perhaps if she found a loving heart," I suggested. An idea of meteor-like brilliance occurred.

"But this is a 'No Follower' place."

I rang the bell firmly.

The look of silent scorn which preceded withdrawal could only mean "I could have had them any time I liked in spite of you."

That day I called at the police-station and inquired for the man who had been on night duty in our secluded road. I was directed to a busy greengrocer, and there in command of the situation was Romeo.

I grasped his hand wormly.

"Are you a married man?" I said.

He looked at me sadly.

"No hearly in the morning, sir?"

I saw his point and hastened to clear myself. He was not a married man, he was not even casting an eye.

"Though there's a many. . . ."

I hastily agreed.

"Give me a young woman with sperrit," he went on. "Now, there's a female I encountered last night on professional duty. . . ."

I shook both hands—he had met me half-way. It was soon arranged. Robert was to woo and win Matilda, in consideration whereof he was to receive $250 per annum for the term of his natural life.

He was naturally suspicious. I cited breakages and incompatibility of temper.

"But, of course, a policeman——" I insinuated.

"I'll see to that, sir," he replied genially.

The wooing was short. My wife and I became adepts at coughing and rattling the kitchen door-handle before entering, and with fiendish intent stocked the abode of the couple with crockery. The marriage settlement, so to speak, was drawn up in black and white.

For a year after our villa was the abode of joy. We obtained a treasure, who was only a moderate stayer, we entertained our friends, even seemed to save money.

And then we went abroad in summer, and in consideration of Matilda's changed character as shown by the entirety of her own household crockery, we installed her and Robert as caretakers and gave the treasure a month's holiday.

On our return we were met by Matilda, who, as per contract, was to have left the house the morning of our return.

"Where's Jane?" faltered my wife.

"The gal has gone. Likewise box and brown paper parcel, owing to words over filthy cupboards left behind. There ain't no cause to look blue. Robert and me can stop till quited, as man and wife. It's 'andy o' doin' bits of jobs in the garden when of. And you may be thankful as there's no encumbrances an' I can come. As the regester young person sez to me, 'There's not many in these days as is stayers.'"

That was some years ago.

"And that—Raven, never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting."

No applications for the place have permeated. I pay them $250 a year, they live rent free on the fat of the land, and he draws Justices's pay as well.

But one can get used to everything.

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The varieties of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. If convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in season, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by ploughing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is an item to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made by the Ontario college at Guelph. Since that time the classes have grown larger every year, so that the present enrollment is nearly 1,000 with an additional 400 at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

CORN TILLAGE GOOD FOR SHEEP.

Experiments Prove That Silage Has Great Advantage Over Roots as Economical Feed.

The Dominion Experimental Farm is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in stock food.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farm, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, twenty-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

BUY

Quoted at 32 to 33 Cents

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 10, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MESSER, M. E.,
"Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000; par value of shares $1.00. Fully paid and non-assessable. No personal liability.

A glance at the list of directors will show the class of men who are putting in their money and time to make this one of the greatest mines in the Porcupine Camp. The directors are:—

JAMES KENDRY,
Peterboro, Ontario; ex-Member of Parliament, President Auburn Woollen Mills.

T. E. BRADBURN,
Member Parliament, Peterboro, Ontario; Private Banker.

ARCHIBALD L. ALLAN,

The Hollinger stock was originally offered at $3.50 and now sells at around $15.50, and Dome Extension was first offered at 40c., and now sells at around 84c.

Royal Porcupine stock may be purchased through any member of the New York Curb Association, or we will be glad to execute your orders.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have beenpresenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Montezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties.

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal" Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gazetted to its very doors on the Island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Homna River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Homna River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company has now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Homna River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Massett Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Convincing evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 32 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of Times", Peterboro'.

FARM AND FIELD

THE UPKEEP OF THE SOIL.

Results of Ten Years' Experiments Successful.

Experiments have recently demonstrated the virtues of phosphorus in striking fashion. In Ohio ten-year tests have shown that a phosphorus fertilizer accompanying manures would practically double the yields of corn, wheat or hay as compared with lands where no fertilizer was used. In another instance the average yield of corn was increased nine bushels an acre when raw rock phosphate was used during the previous four or five years.

A rational and practical method of maintaining soil fertility is being rapidly established by the soil chemist and bacteriologist. It involves the use of mineral fertilizers to meet the present deficit, accompanied by proper soil management to encourage the growth of the desirable forms of germ life. Nitrogen may be supplied by growing leguminous crops or by the addition of manures from livestock. A supply of potash, if needed, may be furnished in the form of a mineral fertilizer, kainit, or, on limited areas, in wood ashes, or more concentrated forms, such as potassium chloride. Phosphorus may be supplied at a minimum cost through raw rock phosphate or other commercial forms.

The soil must be kept sweet by liming and through drainage. Proper tillage, frequent but not deep soils—will aid. The countryman may invoke the counsel of the chemist, but should test general principles by local trial before applying them on a commercial scale. Above all, the true countryman will not be niggardly with his soil, but will liberally replenish the stores from which he expects an abundant return.

AUTHORITIES REPORT ON CROP.

Prospects Good in Canada.

The seeding and growing season for the whole of Canada has opened late this year, and the month of April has been marked by hard frosts. But May has been favorable to cultivation of the land, and the rainfall has been sufficient for healthy vegetation.

Fall wheat, which is grown chiefly in Ontario and Alberta, showed an average condition of 91 per cent. at the end of April, being 99 per cent. in Alberta and 91 per cent. in Ontario. In Ontario, however, the April frosts were destructive in some regions, and from 12 to 24 per cent. of the area sown has been reported as winter-killed. The Central counties, North of Lake Ontario, suffered worst, the average loss as reported being 24 per cent. In the Western counties 37 per cent. of the area in crop has been destroyed. In the Southern counties, North of lake Erie, the loss is 10 per cent.; in the Northern counties and districts, 12.6 per cent.; and in the Eastern counties, between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, 15 per cent. For the whole of Canada, the area winter-killed is reported to be 21 per cent., and the per cent. condition of the growing crop is 82.

About 12 1-3 per cent. of the clover was heaved out by the spring frosts, and the average condition of hay and clover at the end of April was 89 per cent. Alberta shows better than any other part of Canada, its average being 94 1-3 per cent. Nova Scotia comes next, with 96.75; and in Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan it is 94, and in Manitoba 93 per cent.

MARKET FOR MEAT.

Argentine Finds a New Market for Its Meat.

A new market for Argentine meat has been secured in northern Italy. The mayors of Rome and 58 other cities in the northern part of Italy have combined to promote the importation of frozen meat from Argentina. Negotiations in southern Italy have similar arrangements in view for that section. Efforts are being made by the Argentine authorities to have the Swiss regulations modified so as to permit the entry of sheat into that country. At present every carcass imported into Switzerland must be accompanied by the tongue, heart, liver, spleen and kidneys. It is thought that a Swiss inspector may be stationed at Buenos Ayres to pass upon carcasses intended for his country and so relieve the trade of this prohibitive order.

ONTARIO FRUIT OUTLOOK.

Ontario's orchards were not in blossom on the 5th May, when correspondents made their return to the Department of Agriculture. The season is said to be later than usual. Fruit buds, however, promise to be plentiful, and after the lean orchard yield of 1910 a liberal yield is expected. War upon scale, codling moth, and other pests is being conducted with more vigor than ever, and several correspondents point to the improved appearance of fruit trees as the result of work done in the last year or two in the way of spraying, pruning, and the better general culture of orchards. A few reports of damage to trees from mice come from some of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa countries.

NEW WAY OF CATCHING RATS.

Catching rats with oyster shells is the unique method employed by some pearlers round about Broome, West Australia. They leave a large oyster on the floor of the cabin at night. It opens for a breath of fresh air, and the smell of fresh meat attracts the rats. When the rodent thinks he'll try a little supper, the oyster suddenly decides that he doesn't like fresh air. Next morning the shell is prized open, and the dead rat thrown overboard.

S. E. ARMSTRONG,

Do You Value Health

REGULATE AND CLEANSE YOUR SYSTEM.

Spring cleaning does not answer the body. The prime element in the maintenance or in the recovery of health is activity of liver, kidneys and skin. Not occasionally but only by weekly stimulation of these functions can poisons, waste matter, and accumulations within the body be driven out so that the blood and inward parts be purified and kept wholesome. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the mildest laxative medicine known; they purify the blood, fortify the activity of liver and kidneys, increase the eliminating power of the skin and create a general feeling of well being—the outcome of wholesome conditions within. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a general tonic to the digestive system; they restore functional effectiveness to all the organs of secretion and contribute in this way enormously to the stability of health.

For general family use in all cases of biliousness, bad blood, indigestion and disorders of the stomach, Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c., all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

A HUMAN DYNAMO.

Fisherman Had 38,000 Volts of Electricity Pass Through Him and Still Lives.

Marinette, Wis., July 7.—Thirty-eight thousand volts of electricity passed through the body of Max Engles at High Falls yesterday, and he is still alive. While fishing in the rear of the power house, Engles touched one of the power wires with his steel rod. He was knocked unconscious and for some time it was feared he was dead.

Artificial respiration revived him, and he is now on the road to recovery. His entire right side is badly burned.

HEART RIGHT

When He Quit Tea and Coffee

Life Insurance Companies will not insure a man suffering from heart trouble.

The reason is obvious.

This is a serious matter to the husband or father who is solicitous for the future of his dear ones. Often the heart trouble is caused by an unexpected thing and can be corrected if taken in time and properly treated. A man in Colorado writes:

"I was a great coffee drinker for many years, and was not aware of the injurious effects of the habit till I became a practical invalid, suffering from heart trouble, indigestion and nervousness to an extent that made me wretchedly miserable myself and a nuisance to those who witnessed my sufferings.

"I continued to drink coffee, however, not suspecting that it was the cause of my ill-health, till on applying for life insurance I was rejected on account of the trouble with my heart. Then I became alarmed. I found that leaving off coffee helped me quickly, so I quit it altogether, and having been attracted by the advertisements of Postum I began its use.

"The change in my condition was remarkable. All my ailments vanished. My digestion was completely restored, my nervousness disappeared and, most important of all, my heart steadied down and became normal, and on a second examination I was accepted by the Life Insurance Co. Quitting coffee and using Postum worked the change." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ontario.

"There's a reason" and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in packages.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Saturday afternoon at the Brinton Carpet Factory grounds, Peterboro, hooked up with Brooklin. There seemed to be some hard feeling on both sides as in places there seemed to be some dirty playing. Brooklin gave a good argument right from the kick off but the Peterboro boys were one too many for them. Up to half time the work on both line-ups was about even, but after the interval the Peterboro boys made things fly. On the Peterboro eleven the work of Simonite, centre half, was classy, though he showed a tendency to ramble in parts of the field where he was not wanted. Score:

Saturday afternoon at Exhibition grounds, the Canadian General Electric outfit proved too much for St. James, winners of the Church League in one of the cleanest games ever seen around this city. Right from the kick off the C.G.E. forced things but the Church boys gave them a scrimmage that they will remember. Referee Harris handled the game in a most satisfactory manner. FOUR WEEKS OF WORK BEFORE BIG STRUGGLE

Government Will Try to Put Through General Business First.

Ottawa, July 7.—Nearly all of the Cabinet Ministers will be back in Ottawa next week, following Sir Wilfrid Laurier's return here on Tuesday next. There is considerable work ahead of the Cabinet in cleaning up arrears of business accumulated during the past month, and in completing the Government's legislative program for the balance of the session.

Nearly half of the Government business, as planned for the session, remains to be put through, and four weeks of solid work can easily be put in after the House resumes on July 18 in clearing off the order paper before the decks are cleared for the final struggle with the redistribution bill and the reciprocity agreement.

PETROLEA WOMAN KILLED BY A JEALOUS BOARDER

YOUNG MAN SHOT MIDDLE AGED WOMAN TO WHOM HE HAD PROPOSED MARRIAGE AND WAS REJECTED.

Invaded Mrs. King's Residence and Shot Her Down in Cold Blood —Murderer Under Arrest.

Petrolea, July 10.—This town was stirred to its depths on Saturday when it was learned Mrs. Frederick King, who lives over the Flats, had been shot to death by William Moore an employe of the Wagon Works Company. The cause of the shooting was a clear case of jealousy. The murderer, who is about twenty years of age, boarded with the King family until about a month or so ago, and was asked to leave the house by one of Mrs. King's sons, owing to the vile language he had been in the habit of using, and also because he had got behind with his board bill. He then went to live with his mother, a Mrs. Perkins of this town, later going to his grandmother's in Oil Springs, leaving there to attend camp in Goderich.

Called on Mrs. King.

Upon his return from camp he called at the King house and asked to see Mrs. King, of whom, notwithstanding the fact that she was over twice his age he was enamored. He was met at the door by a daughter of the murdered woman, who informed him her mother was out of the house. He did not say anything at the time, but went away quietly, only to return this morning about 11.30 o'clock. He entered the house, which has a front and side door with a verandah running on the side and across the front, at the side entrance, without knocking, and found the family preparing dinner. In the room at the time were the victim and her daughter Florence, a child of fourteen years, and a married daughter, a Mrs. Hollifield. The latter being nearest to him, asked "What do you want?"

Shot Four Times.

"You stand back," he replied, and immediately pulling a twenty-two calibre rifle out of one of his pant legs, aimed it at Mrs. Hollifield, who dropped to the floor to avoid the shot, which struck little Florence in the wrist, just at the pulse.

The child screamed and ran out of the house, followed by the sister and mother, the mother turning to the right, the other two to the left, screaming for help.

The frantic mother ran down the verandah, followed by the enraged man and attempted to make for the side door, but was shot in the left side twice before she reached the door, the shots being only six inches apart. In her agonay and excitement the terrified woman dashed against the door and fell to the floor of the verandah.

At this moment a man named Macdonald, a clerk in the post office, passed on his way to dinner, and seeing Moore with a rifle, pointed at the prostrate form, shouted to him, asking him what he was doing. For answer he fired another shot into the woman, while Macdonald ran to telephone for a doctor.

The Arrest.

The murderer then threw down the gun and walked into the arms of Policeman Whitlock, who had come up, and was taken to No. 2 police station, being transferred to No. 1 by an auto a half hour later. Here he showed symptoms of opium poisoning. Dr. Dunfield was hurriedly called and washed out the man's stomach and used antidotes to prevent the opium from having a fatal effect. There are hopes of his recovery. On Friday the murderer procured a one-ounce bottle of laudanum at Dale's drug store, and had apparently taken all of it before he went to the victim's house. The bottle was afterwards picked up by G. F. Pitkin.

The woman was taken into the house with blood streaming from her wounds, and died in her daughter's arms five minutes later. Florence was taken to the Charlotte Eleanor Englehart Hospital, and is in a very weak condition, owing to loss of blood. Unless complications set in she will recover.

Left Six Children.

The murdered woman, who was 42 years old, came to Petrolea about a year and a half ago, from Gladwin, Mich. Prior to living in Gladwin, the family lived for a time in Owen Sound and also in Sarnia. She and her husband had not been living together, owing to some domestic difficulty, but the family, which consisted of three boys, a sailor in Montreal Harry and Sandy in Petrolea, and three girls, Florence Lizzie and Mrs. Hollineld, also of Petrolea.

"I can't understand why Will would do such a thing," said Mrs. Hollifield to a reporter. "Poor mother never did anything to him. He appeared to be fond of her, and I believe it was a case of jealousy. About two or three months ago he asked mother to marry him, but she refused, saying that she had been married once, and she was not going to marry again even if she could. He did not say much at the time, but to-day's sequel explains his silence."

Acted Strangely.

About Moore not much is known. He came to Petrolea last fall from Oil Springs and secured a position in the wagon works. Only a few weeks ago the gas exploded, burning him severely about the head. He was taken to the hospital and since resuming work his fellow workmen say that he has been acting strangely. Only on Sunday night last Moore attended a Salvation Army meeting, and seemed to be greatly impressed.

In the Bot cell at the police station the prisoner is in a dazed condition, and seems to feel his position keenly. "Oh, it's awful, it's awful," he keeps moaning. "I never thought I would come to this. I've worried; oh, I've worried; oh, why did I do it? I was driven to it."

BOY SCOUTS TO CAMP AUG. 1ST

The Third Troop of Boy Scouts, paraded in nearly full strength last night at the Armories under the command of Scout Master Miller. The troop had a very smart appearance, particularly the Cycle Patrol. A business meeting was held after the parade to discuss the coming camp.

The boys expect to go to Chemong on August 1st, about twenty-five strong, under the command of the Scout Master and others. A clergyman will also be present. They are to carry complete scout kits, such as full dress uniforms, field service kits, etc.

The camp will be run altogether by the youngsters. They will draw rations and cook them without help. They will mount their own guards, and will have their own signallers, both for day and night work, the latter in conjunction with the night attacks which are planned. There will be a galloper and a Despatch Patrol. Each patrol will occupy a Bell tent. They will have a full hospital chest in charge of a competent man. The boys will be taught how to make rope bridges, fires, and to learn the habits of game. On each Sunday the troop will parade for religious service. They expect to have a church parade before they go.

The boys, who are nearly all from school, expect to be away two weeks in each of which there will be a visiting day.

TOWN OF KELSO IS WIPED OUT

Loss May Reach $250,000 — Main Portion Destroyed by Fire.

A telegram was received at the offices of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission, about two o'clock yesterday afternoon that the town of Kelso of the railway line was destroyed by fires. The blaze demolished an amount of property which may reach $250,000 value. The buildings destroyed were the Kelso House, the Tremont House the Richen's House and Stables, Traders Bank, Dumas, Starr and Co.'s store, Catholic Church, Northern Supply Co., Queen City Oil Company and several dwellings. It is now under control. Most of the town is wiped out.

ORANGEMEN TO PARADE IN HULL

Ottawa, July 10.—About two thousand Orangemen are expected to participate in Wednesday's Orange parade in Hull. It will occur in the afternoon with lodges from Wright Pontiac and Labelle counties taking part. The programme is to assemble near the Hull depot for the parade and then have a picnic and speech making. Some profess to fear trouble, but the prevailing opinion in Hull is that things will pass off quiet ly. The Chief of Police will head the parade.

CORONATION SEGTS. RETURN

Last night the Coronation contingent consisting of Col. Sergt. Succs. Col. Sergt. Lavalle and Sig. Sergt. Brightman drove to the Armories, where they were entertained by the following: Sergeant Bandmaster Glidden, Sergeant Major Smith, Quarter Master Sergt. Edwards, Color Sergeant Playford, and Sergeants Metheral and Harding, all of the 57th. A fine luncheon was served in the Sergeants' Mess for the returned ones who had some fine stories to tell. The verdict of the trio was that, "There's nothing too good for England. They used us like Princes."

MAY VISIT CANADA IN 1912

If He Does Not Come Here Next Summer, the Trip Will Be Made Later On.

Quebec, July 10.—The Prince of Wales will certainly visit Canada either in 1912 or 1913. That is the definite news brought by the Ministers and soldiers who returned on the Empress of Britain.

His Royal Highness will not reach his majority until May next, when he will be 18 years old, and both he and his uncle, the Duke of Connaught are very anxious that he should come out next summer and make a tour of the Dominion from coast to coast.

It has, however, been suggested that it would be better to defer the trip for a year in order that it may coincide with the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Transcontinental from Prince Rupert to Quebec and Moncton. It would be a great thing to have the official opening presided over by the Heir Apparent, but if that cannot be arranged, it is possible that if the Prince comes next year some sort of spike driving or foundation stone-laying in connection with the great enterprise will be arranged.

THE CROP LOSS HEAVY, THE HEAT PLAYS HAVOC

VALUE OF GENERAL CROPS WILL BE AS GREAT AS LAST YEAR—SMALL FRUITS HAVE SUFFERED — RASPBERRIES RUINED — APPLES GRADE LOWER.

Parched Fields Could Stand Deluge of Rain—Returns Will Not Justify the High Expectations of Last Month, But Will Be as Good on the Whole as Last Year.

Toronto, July 10.—"The general farm crops of Ontario will probably equal the total valuation of last year of $301,000,000 despite the fact that the long continued heat has played havoc with the hay crop and the fruit has already been severely injured."

Such is the opinion of the executive head of one of the largest Canadian banks and is based on a large sheaf of reports received privately from managers of the branches throughout the Province. The information, conveyed in an interview this morning points to a dismal condition of the hay crop, which, through lack of moisture, has failed to reach last year's volume or quality. The damaging weather influences have reached their climax during the past few weeks, removing the last vestige of hope from many haying districts.

Apples Good in Some Places.

Small fruits have, of course, already come to an unfavorable end and through the intense temperature apples have also suffered severely. The latter crop, however, is in many localities excellent. Drought has not been general throughout the Province as many have believed. Parry Sound, for instance, reports "everything favorable" and "hay good." Kingston, Stratford and other centres show keen optimism over the harvests and other managers temper their hopes of a normal crop return with some fears for the results in particular products.

Fully fifty such reports were read this morning at the head office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. It was abundantly evident that the consensus of opinion from boundary to boundary was hopeful, and was intended to reflect a very favorable condition for the bank's business in each locality.

A condensation of a few of the reports in appended, showing that crop conditions are by no means uniform, and that with the exception of hay, the growth has proceeded somewhat variously, showing far better results in one locality than another.

Ayr—General crops suffering.

Collingwood—Good generally, except hay. Apple crop will be large.

Chatham—Sugar beet acreage greatly reduced. Rain scarce, hay light.

Parry Sound—Everything favorable Hay good.

Exeter—Wheat light. Ripened too quickly.

Forest—Hay fairly light. Local showers had fallen to greater extent than in nearby localities.

May Crop Light.

Cayuga—General crops fair. Oats light.

Walkerton—Hay good. Wheat fair. Good general growth. Heat not so ruinous as in other places.

Orangeville—Clover hay offers only a half crop.

Guelph—Conditions serious. Rain lacking. Hay light.

Waterloo—Hay light.

Peterborough—Ground parched, but crop prospects promising.

Stratford—Looking very well. Hay will be short.

Kingston—Good year expected.

The above reports, given in synopsis, present conditions and prospects as viewed within the past two weeks.

To Commute Sentence on Mrs. Neapolitano.

Ottawa, July 10.—A special Cabinet meeting will be held to-night. The petitions for clemency to Mrs. Neapolitano, the convicted Sault Ste. Marie murderess, may be taken up. Commutation of sentence to life imprisonment is expected.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOLS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Conventions are coming on for the selection of candidates for the Legislature. Those who heard Rev. Mr. Couch must have been impressed with his statement to the effect that it is better that Religion should be taught in the Church, the Sunday School and at home and not in the public schools, than that it should give cause for trouble and be made a stumbling-block there. The present School Act and its supplementary departmental regulations are the case in point. They must be changed so that no religion shall be taught in public schools which will then give offence to no one. It should not all be left to the will of Sir James Whitney. The candidates should be required to state that they are in favor of an immediate change in the Public School law in this respect. It was a wise and timely sermon.

Get Busy.

WANT OF BATHING HOUSES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am only lately come to Peterborough to reside, and must say that I am greatly pleased with your beautiful city. There is, however, one thing that struck me as lacking, and that is a place where boys and men can go for a bathe in the lake or river. Surely there is some spot that is suitable for this purpose either within the corporation, or adjacent to it. It is very properly said that "cleanliness is next to Godliness" and how can we be clean without water? Many working men and boys are without the comforts of a bath at home, and these people are never wholly clean.

What I would like to see would be for the Council to secure and set aside a bathing place, erecting thereon a small inexpensive building for undressing and dressing in. There need not even be a caretaker employed, although some one of the departments of the city government should look after it. There should also be provided a few life preservers, to be used by non-swimmers for learning with.

I apologize for using so much of your valuable space, but felt that the object might be worth the effort.

Jas. S. Shafto.

STEAMER SINKS 3 LIVES LOST

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 10.—Three lives were lost early to-day when the str. John Mitchell, of Chicago, was sunk in collision with the str. W. H. Mack, off Vermillion Point Lake Superior.

The str. John Mitchell was 420 ft. long, 52 feet beam and 28 feet deep. She was a steel vessel with a gross tonnage of 4,468 and was built in 1906.

The W. H. Mack is 354 feet long, and belongs to the Jenkins Steamship Company of Cleveland.

57th Band for Cobourg

The 57th Regimental Band will go to Cobourg for the 12th. The band will take 36 men and will be divided into three sections. There will be a rehearsal at the band hall to-night at 8 o'clock and will last for about an hour, after which the men will receive instructions as to which section they will be placed in. Every member of the band is requested to be present.

SUSPECT MOTHER AND CH'LD WERE MURDERED

Beamsville, Ont., July 10.—Provincial Inspector Miller has ordered the body of Edna Comfort and her young son exhumed, and has instructed an outside physician to make an examination to see if it agrees with the report of the doctors who performed the post mortem. The death certificate filed in the case of the child shows that in the opinion of the physician it was not drowned, but was dead before the body reached the water. This, and the fact that the woman had marks on her body similar to those on the child's body, adds to the mystery of the case. The police are looking for a man who was seen talking to the woman near the reservoir, where the bodies were found. The stranger had a bicycle with him.

Edna Comfort and her child were last seen last Tuesday, when the woman was picking berries for a farmer.

The bodies of mother and child were found in a reservoir near the village on the following day.

POWER FOR CANADIAN GENERAL

Owing to the Canadian General's Power Plant being shut down during repairs, power is being supplied to them, as per contract, by the Peterborough Light and Power Co. They are to supply about 1200 horse power for twenty-four hours a day for about two weeks. The power is being furnished from power house at the Quaker Oats Company's dam. This also gives the power for Quaker Oats factory and the Peterborough Street Railway.

PERFORM QUEER RELIGIOUS ANTICS

Men, Women, and Children Performing Queer Antics at Pittsburg Convention—A Toronto Man is There.

Pittsburg July 10.—Dignified women, portly men, frivolous girls and frenzied youths, all mumbling unintelligible jargon and performing queer antics in the straw on the ground, to-day continued to afford amusement to curiosity seekers at the sessions of the seven days' service of the Gift of Tongues cult at Homestead Park.

Following the perspiring strenuosities of "seeing the light" yesterday, when 3,000 spectators were attracted the services early to-day were resumed rather wearily. By to-night, however, it is said that the spirit again will seize upon some of the religious enthusiasts and cause wild gyrations.

Speakers at the meetings put to shame ancient and medieval records with stories of modern examples. The Rev. James Hebden of Toronto, Canada, said he was worrying about a mortgage. A brewery watchman told him to put his trust in the Lord. A few hours later the watchman sent him $100.

Services will continue all week. The Lawton seat as it is sometimes called, have two big tents in the park grounds. The men are coatless, collarless, and perspiring freely.

SET FIRE TO HIMSELF

Inmate of Chatham Jail Tried to Burn a Way Out.

Chatham, July 10.—While under the influence of liquor, James Brophy, aged 40, employed at the Sydenham Glass factory, was last evening locked in a room in a boarding house at Wallaceburg. Starting a fire in an attempt to burn his way out, he set fire to himself and was so badly burned that he cannot recover.

Canadian Horses Beat All European High Jump Records.

London, July 10.—In the Hague Horse Show a Canadian team and officers scored second place. In the high jump the Hon. Clifford Sifton's Confidence, Wasp and Hercules, secured first, second and third respectively, breaking all continental records. Mr. Sifton's string of horses was awarded a gold cup, a plate, thirteen ribbons and thirteen medals.

Starvation Amid Plenty

NOT UNCOMMON TO-DAY—THE REASON IS EXPLAINED.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodges, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all traces of nausea disappear but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Look for the yellow box. Sold by all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada, at 25c per box.

PRIEST VITOZZI ON HIS DEFENCE

Viterbo, Italy, July 8.—The Court and jury who are hearing the trial of the Camorrists charged the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife were occupied to-day with an examination of papers and personal belongings seized by the authorities at the home of Ciro Vitozzi, the priest. Vitozzi, known as the "guardian angel of the Camorra," is one of the defendants in the present case and beyond being accused of membership in the criminal organization is charged with having falsely denounced Tomasso De Angelis and Gaetano Amodeo, innocent men, in order to protect the assassins of the Cuocolos.

When Enrico Alfano and his associates were first arrested they were released upon the representations of Vitozzi, who said he had learned of their innocence and the guilt of others in the confessional. This intervention permitted Alfano to escape to the United States, where, however, he fell into the hands of detective Lieut. Joseph Petrosino.

Obscene Cards Seized.

The exhibit, included a sword-cane, revolvers, 140 bills of exchange, 1,000 letters from criminals asking his protection, a letter from Maria Bartolotti, and 156 illustrated post cards which the prosecution describes as obscene.

Maria Bartolotti is believed by some to be a close friend of the priest while according to others, Vitozzi acted as the woman's agent in lending her money. Confronted by these exhibits intended to establish his character, Vitozzi defended his possession of them. Regarding the communications from criminals he said that he considered it the duty of his ministry to assist sinners, including the criminals who had applied to him for help.

Promise a Scandal.

Among Vitozzi's effects were also found 200 letters from various clerks and officials of the law courts complaining that money promised them have not been received.

THE GREAT SUCCESS OF A PETERBOROUGH MAN

Many of our older citizens will remember Mr. W. H. Pendry, who left Peterboro with his wife and son, about a quarter of a century ago for New York, where he took a course in the State Veterinary College, graduating two years later as a Veterinary Surgeon. He entered politics and represented a Brooklyn District in the New York Legislature for several terms, taking a leading part in all the important legislation emanating from that parliament.

A few years ago, Mr. Pendry and his son Bryer H. Pendry, took up the study of law together, and subsequently graduated in that profession. They now have a large and lucrative practice.

Mr. Pendry is a brother-in-law of our esteemed fellow townsman, Mr. Edward Courtney.

Before going to New York, Mr. Pendry was on the staff of The Times where he no doubt received the training which was the ground work of future success. Mr. Pendry is not the only graduate of this office who has made his mark in the business and political world, amongst whom we can name a governor of one of the western States, as well as several prominent financial men.

Mr. Pendry has just started on an extended trip to Europe, where he will visit all the principal points of England and the Continent.

WANTS $10,000 FOR A TIP.

For Giving Information About Bit Property in Bronx.

Thirteen years ago, on a New York park bench, Thomas Corrigan told Patrick Goff about unclaimed property in the Bronx that belonged to a cousin, Henry Goff, who had been drowned leaving no immediate heirs.

On the strength of the tip, Goff got possession of property worth $250,000. Corrigan is now suing for $10,000, which he says Goff promised him. Goff says he never promised any such thing, but gave Corrigan $50.

REAL GOLD BRICKS.

Kiln Erected on Ancient Gold Mine in India.

Gold bricks, real ones, may be the means of restoring the ancient frame of Golconda, near Hyderabad, in southern India, once known all the world over for its gold mines, but now a decayed city. The natural pits from which many centuries ago the precious metal was extracted have in course of time filled up with water. A contractor recently obtained permission to make bricks near the place and ten kilns were erected. The first finished bricks aroused curiosity by their yellowish tint, and analysis proved that they contained gold dust. On the basis of the yield of the sample bricks, the ten kilns will aggregate in weight about 12,857 pounds of gold worth over $56,000,000. The site of the find belongs to the Nizam, or native ruler.

IF!

A credulous man was the census enumerator.

When Brawney the blacksmith declared he was 60, he believed him, despite the blacksmith's robust appearance, for robust blacksmiths seldom show their age.

When Susan the spinster declared she was 22, he believed her also, despite her crowmarks and greying hairs(for spinsters do not care to show their age, either.

But when Isaac the idiot wrote the figures 120 under the heading "Father, if living," the Census enumerator rubbed his nose doubtfully, and thought this was a little too much.

"You don't mean to say," he exclaimed, "that your father is really 120 years old?"

"No o' course 'e ain't!" retorted Isaac complacently. "But 'e would 'a been if livin'."

Her Habit.

"What do you think the young wife of old Moneybags has developed into? She is always crossing or recrossing the ocean. She certainly keeps the transatlantic line busy."

You know, she was formerly a telephone girl.

Swat That Fly.

The transmission of disease by the fly is no longer a mere theory, but is a truth that has been scientifically established.

Keep the flies out of your house. Get screens for the doors and the windows. Be on guard all the time.

Keep screens over articles of food. Don't let flies get near the pantry, kitchen or dining room.

Be doubly careful about keeping flies out of the sickroom. They are likely not only to bring complications of new diseases, but to carry the invalid's disease to many others.

Those who put in their screens promptly will be taking the best precaution against having disease germs introduced into their homes by flies.

There is more health in a house well screened than in many a doctor's visit.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual work will be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

WHERE THE "DOME" DID ITS PART.

Old Baseball Players Give Their Experiences.

"Bonehead Barry!" That's what they usually say of a player when he accidentally or otherwise permits himself to be hit on the "dome" by a batted or pitched ball. While some of these plays have been anything but pleasant to the man hit, there's no question but most of them prove humorous to the fans, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

I have seen many players hit on the head with batted or thrown balls," said Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, "but the funniest play of this kind happened when I was with the Giants. "Jack" Dunn was playing third base at the time and a foul fly was sent up near third base.

"I was catching and started after the ball until he shouted 'I've got it.' He seemed to be camped under it all right until the sun got in his eyes and he lost the ball. It came and hit him on the top of the head. The ball knocked 'Jacks' cap off, and, as he was as bald as a doorknob and very sensitive about his slick dome, he made a wild scramble to recover the top-piece."

"A play which seems almost an impossibility, but one that is an actual fact, was performed by Ben Koehler and Emil Frisk, two former St. Louis outfielders," said Secretary Lloyd H. Rickart, of the Browns.

"In a game several years ago a ball was hit midway between center and right. Koehler and Frisk started for it. Koehler, the usually reliable, called that he had the ball. But he began dancing around and finally lost in the sun. He 'ducked' to avoid being struck, but the ball came down, hit him on the head, bounded up, and risk, the uncertain, caught it for the out."

WATERWORKS FOR FARM.

An increasing number of enquiries are received asking for methods of supplying water to country homes. It has been one of the drawbacks of life on the farm compared with the city that while water might be in abundant supply it has not been convenient for all purposes of the household. In response to the demand for better appliances many improvements have of late years been made in pumping and piping outfits. Water in the house for free use is coming to be recognized as one of the first requirements in sanitary living. Further than this it is a labor saving arrangement that is in keeping with the modern machinery and appliances used elsewhere on the farm.

THE SUFFERING EDITOR.

A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper as follows:—

"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared:—

"When the nag is looking all right sell him to someone."

The increased production of milk, in Ontario is looked upon as an indication that the farmers of the province generally are beginning to see greater possibilities in dairying. The cities are taking a great deal of milk, which to a considerable extent changes the cheese factory situation.

Haying Has Commenced.

Haying has commenced in many parts of the surrounding country. Farmers at Otonabee and Douro have some of their meadows cut. They report the crop very fair this year.

CANADIANS AND INVENTION.

Dr. A. Grahame Bell and the Telephone.

Canada has every reason to be proud of her brilliant student in practical science—Professor A. Graham Bell—the inventor of the telephone, which has done so much to revolutionize the social and business world. The doctor first saw the light in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1847 and came out to Canada in 1870, where he carried on his investigations that consummated not only in the great invention with which his name is associated with, but the photophone, induction balance, and telephone probe, and (with C. A. Bell) graphaphone. He has made a thorough study of the education of the deaf. In recent years he has taken great interest in the laws of flight and aviation generally. This brilliant Canadian is the holder of many degrees and a member of many learned societies. His Canadian home is in Nova Scotia.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,--is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt-would buy Montreal Real Estate ?

To the mer of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

CAKED UDDER.

Neglected Too Often the Cause, Says Expert.

The usefulness of thousands of milch cows is damaged every year by caked udder. Prompt treatment will generally avert serious trouble, but cases of long standing are very difficult to handle. Many factors act to cause caked udder. It is commonest in heavy milkers at calving time. At that time the udder is naturally swollen and inflamed, and if it is exposed to a cold draft or bruised in any way serious trouble is likely to follow. Although commonest early in the lactation period, caked udder may occur at any time, being due to lying on cold, hard, damp ground, to bruises, to incomplete milking, to exposure to cold, occasionally to changes in food, and sometimes being due to an infectious form of the disease.

There are many forms of udder trouble, which are variously known as garget, mammitis and caked udder. In the most severe forms there is a chill, followed by a fever, and the udder becomes much swollen, red and tender; the milk decomposes into whey and bloody curd; pus forms, and the udder mortifies; it may be completely lost.

TURNING OUT COWS.

Grass Increases Milk Supply But Not Quality.

When the grass begins to grow sufficiently for the cows to graze they thrive more, as the change is highly beneficial to their health, but it has a tendency to weaken the milk. As a rule the increased supply of grass will increase the milk supply, but the quality does not rise proportionately. On the contrary, it generally drops, and attention should be given to this to prevent too much degeneration; but a good deal depends on the pastures. Where these are rich, and the supply ample, there will be no reduction of quality. Unfortunately such pastures are not the rule. Plenty are not only poor naturally, and from neglect, but grass is scant. The weather, of course, has an influence on this, and when general the supply may keep up the demand. At first there may be plenty, but it is apt to become scarce, and it is most necessary to watch the milk yield at this time.

As Done in France.

"Some years ago," writes a well-known motorist, "I was being driven by a French friend of my acquaintance. He is so careful over his personal expenditure as he is reckless on his Panhard. I did not like the combination, but it is best to be tolerant to foreigners. Passing through a village near St. Albans we encountered a hen. She was stalking across the road like a conspirator one moment, and dead the next. She never knew what struck her. Adolphe, which is my friend's name, pulled up.

"'It is useless to go to her assistance,' said I.

"But Adolphe jumped out of the car and went. I thought it very kind of him. He picked up the dead bird and came running back.

"'Helas! she is not young,' he panted. 'But she will do well for no soup, no bouillon de poulet, tres delicat.'

"'Good heavens, you're not going to take her home?'

"'Mais certainement! Here she would be wasted. It is as we do in France. Vive la cheese!'

"I had heard that motorists were not popular in the French villages. From that day I have understood."

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

going to keep him in sight if it takes the whole force to do it. Understand? I am, so help me God."

The other man came up from headquarters.

"Say, Burke," he exclaimed. "I saw your man downtown. What're you doin' up here?"

"I know you did," replied Burke, "an' he came back, an' he's in the Gouverneur over there, an' don't you forget it."

The other glanced at him doubtfully.

"Oh, that's it, is it?" he returned. "I didn't know. I only know I saw him—that's all—an' I wondered at the time where you was."

Burke and the two men vanished into thin air. Once more the street became deserted. Dusk had come on—it was growing darker very moment.

At a quarter to eight a man clad in a dress suit and a light overcoat emerged from the apartment house and sauntered down the street.

In front of a house with an English basement stood an electric street lamp. He passed this, and the light shone full on his face.

When he reached the corner he glanced up and down and behind him for an instant, and then, breaking into a fast walk, made for the west end of town.

He had no sooner done so than a man emerged from the basement, another from an alleyway across the street, and a third from a recess around the corner.

Without the slightest recognition of each other, they turned in and followed the man in the light coat, each man in his own way.

Down at headquarters late that afternoon the sergeant called to a special officer. The officer hurried in.

"Say, Flynn," he remarked, "look here. There's the man the banks want us to keep tab on. See him? The fellow with the slouch hat? Yes, that's the chap.

"Now, look here. Burke is after him, but there ain't no signs of Burke around. He's slipped a cog somehow. S'pose you turn in and follow the fellow. The banks are standing behind us, and they're paying good money to keep track of this man, and it ain't our business to lose him. S'pose you reckon him up a bit."

The officer nodded and started off. He kept his man in sight. It was difficult work, not only because his man was a rapid walker and swerved in and out of different thoroughfares with rapidity, but also because he kept constantly looking around behind him.

Storme—for it was he—knew that he was being followed, and though he was the shadowed, he also was the shadowerer, for he kept his eye on his pursuer quite as faithfully as did the officer keep track of him.

The afternoon passed and evening came, but still on and on walked Storme. They reached a residential portion of the town.

Suddenly Storme turned swiftly down a dark, narrow street, and when his pursuer reached the corner, Storme had disappeared. Search as he would, there was no trace of the man.

The special devoted some ten minutes to a fruitless search, and then returned his steps to the corner whence Storme had disappeared.

As he stood there, nonplussed, a man suddenly touched him on the back of the hand. The special knew the touch. He said nothing, but followed the man to a dark recess.

"Well, Burke," he remarked, "what're you doin' here? I've been followin' your man all the evening, an' by George, I just lost him!"

"What man?" demanded Burke.

"Aw," returned the other, "you know, that fellow Storme."

"Gee!" returned Burke, "have they put you on, too? Well, by George, with the crowd we've got, there ain't anything he can do without our seein' it. It's a blame good thing we got him in tow, too. Only we got considerable of a wait before us before he comes out."

"Comes out where?" exclaimed the other man.

"Why," replied Burke, "he's making a visit in that brownstone down there, No. 219, the one with the grounds at the side. Thought you knew that."

"Knew it!" said the other. "Why, I jus' had him in tow—ten minutes ago, an' lost him. So that's where he is, is it? I didn't know what became of him."

"Sure," replied Burke, "he's been there an hour already. It's about time he cut it and left, I'm thinkin'."

The other man started.

"An hour?" he repeated. "What you givin' us? I saw him on this here street not fifteen minutes gone. You're nutty, Burke. Or, else," he went on with a smile, "or else, you lost him, too. Come on, own up. You're givin' me a bit of a stiff, I guess."

"Bit of a stiff, nothin'," retorted Burke. "I tell you, he's in there, all right, all right. I got a couple o' men there watchin' the place. When he comes out they'll give me a flash o' light. He's in there, all right."

"Look here, Burke," went on the other, "I bet you he ain't. I tell you I saw him go around the corner. I know what I'm talking about."

Burke looked at the special long and earnestly.

"It might be," he admitted "that he gave us the slip again. I'll tell you. We might as well be sure. You're a new man here. S'pose you do the leery act and go there an' find out. We'd better know, you know."

Three minutes later the bell rang at the Dumont house. The maid answered it. A tough looking character with his coat collar turned up stood at the door.

"Say, miss," he remarked confidentially, with a slight lurch in her direction, "want to see Mist' Dumont—old Mist' Dumont, y' know."

He hiccoughed slightly as he said it. The maid started back and called into the library.

A man's voice was heard inside.

"Wait a minute," it said, "I'll attend to the fellow."

The owner of the voice stepped into the hall. The man who rang the bell stayed outside.

"What do you want?" inquired the former.

"Want to see Mist' Dumont (hic)—ole Mist' Dumont."

The man inside shook his head.

"Mr. Dumont," he returned, "is no longer alive. He died about five years ago. So you can't see him. What is it you want?"

He stepped back and turned up the light to its full strength. Both men could see each other perfectly.

"Wel," returned the other, sadly, as he shook his head, "want to see Mist' Dumont, that's all. 'Fs's dead don't want see nobody."

He turned and made his way unsteadily down the steps.

"Goo' nigh'," he called out.

He looked back once or twice uncertainly and the man within held the door open until the other had made his way to the street. And as note which had come for Storme that night.

Suddenly she gave a little cry.

he held the door open, he stood so that light from the hall fell full upon his face.

And the face was that of H. Stanleigh Storme — the man whom the other sought.

An hour later, the door opened again, and Storme again appeared. He lightly descended the steps to the street, looked carelessly about him, and then started leisurely towards the center of the town.

As he did so, four men emerged from their hiding places and followed him. And this time they never left his heels until he disappeared once more into the front door of the Gouverneur apartments.

And when he had done so, Burke and one other sat down and camped upon his trail.

And on that night the safe in the hardware concern of Canda & Willett was cracked, and something over seven thousand dollars stolen.

CHAPTER VIII

The Note that Came from Storme

Helen Dumont was a peculiar young woman. She was rich, and yet she was happy.

Her parents, both of them members of the most exclusive set in town, were long since deceased. She was mistress of her own house, and kept with her as a companion an aged aunt.

Miss Dumont was a general favorite. Perhaps it was because she enjoyed life; because, unlike the crowd around her, she exhausted all that was good in existence, and rejected the bad.

She entertained — not lavishly, but well. On her reception nights her house was crowded. It was the one place where one might go and feel at ease.

Storme had never attended any of the functions except one large reception. He had pleaded some excuse. But she prevailed upon him to attend the last little dinner of the season.

He did so. There were two or three people there he knew, but most of them he did not know.

The dinner was about half over. People had begun to talk volubly, as they always do, once the ice is broken and their appetite has somewhat abated. Storme said but little: he listened.

"It's absurd" one man was saying. "The police department say they can't

HARVEST HANDS NEEDED.

From the Moose Jaw News.

From present indications there will soon go up from the prairie country the cry, "The harvest is great, but the laborers are few."

Good judges, men who have seen crops grow in the West for a quarter of a century or more, say that a crop of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat is quite within the estimate. This means a crop eighty-five per cent. greater than last year. Think of the demands which such an increased yield will make upon the harvesting facilities of the country. And wheat is only one portion of the crop. Add to this the yield of several other grains and one begins to realize how great an undertaking the harvesting of the aggregate crop will be.

It is further to be remembered that owing to the abundance of moisture, which has made growth rapid, the crop will contain an unusual amount of straw, which will render necessary the employment of a larger number of laborers than is usually required.

For these reasons it is evident that a much larger number of farm laborers will be required this year. The great question is, where are they to be had? In all departments of industry the cry for men goes up, so that if the demands of agriculture are to be met satisfactorily the Provincial Government must exert itself to the utmost to bring into the Province an adequate supply of labor. Hardly fewer than 22,000 harvest hands will be required.

40,000,000 CARDS A DAY.

From Popular Mechanics.

The latest and certainly one of the most interesting additions to the category of automatic marvels is found in two monster presses costing $36,000, recently installed at the Government printing office at Washington, for printing postal cards. These presses were designed and constructed for this work, and rank as the fastest presses of the kind in the world. Each is capable of turning out 2,200,000 complete postcards in an eight-hour working day, and under ordinary operating conditions they average 1,800,000 cards per day—the two presses now turning out between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 cards per day—six days per week, this output being required to keep pace with the correspondence of the American people.

A BIG CROP

Large Crop of Superior Quality Is Assured the Niagara District—Currants Do Poorly.

Beamsville, July 8.—Talking yesterday to a fruit-grower in the Grimsby district, he informed a reporter that the hot weather was just the best thing in the world for the cherry crop His words do not belie him, because the yield of this fruit has been a summer crop this season, better in every way than for at least three years. There is nothing that makes a finer cherry than warm dry weather at the ripening. They have got it the past two weeks, and have gloried in it, giving them a fine rich flavor, a better texture, and those warm deep colors of dark red, crimson, and creamy yellow they cannot attain under muggy skies and too copious rains.

There are so very many little fruit farms running from three acres to five, growing the smaller varieties, principally strawberries, currants, cherries, and raspberries, that the profusion of and extra quality of the cherries helps a lot.

Money is apt to be a little tighter this winter with many of these people who look from year to year on the easy money from big raspberry pickings.

If it wasn't for the cherries, said an express messenger, the fruit service wouldn't be running.

There seems really no chance at all for the raspberries and currants, now even with rain. If the crop of both all over the peninsula, pans out a quarter of the normal yield, they will be doing very well indeed, although black currants may do a little better.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. HOW HE GOT HIS BOW LEGS.

From the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Speaking of bow legs, it was Alfred Williams, of the Roanoke Times, who said on one occasion of a friend of his who had a lifelong hunger in his heart for public office, but was a little careful about announcing his candidacy, that he had sat on the fence so long that he had grown bow legged. Yet this very man has had one of his highest ambitions gratified, proving that when a bow legged man makes up his mind he can run as fast and as far as anybody.

A Cold Country.

Paris, July 8.—France is suffering from a heat wave more distressing than the memory of the oldest inhabitant can recall. Today the temperature in the shade was slightly above 90, with a humid, breathless atmosphere.

ROMAN CHURCH'S HOLD ON FRENCH QUEBEC

(From the Toronto Star)

A book entitled "Clerical Control in Quebec," by Edward M. Sait, just issued by the Sentinel Publishing Company, Toronto, is a work of very unusual interest and value. It is interesting because its facts and arguments are marshaled in a masterly manner and because it is written skilfully and entertainingly. It is valuable because it contains a great many new facts concerning Quebec and the French-Canadian people—facts which are historical rather than controversial. The author is, of course, strongly opposed to clerical dictatorship, but he does not abuse the hierarchy. He gives the Roman Catholic Church due credit for a paternal leadership which in times past was of immense benefit to the French Canadians in maintaining their national character and traditions. But he presents a mass of evidence to prove that its attitude is now so uncompromisingly despotic and aggressive as to be a menace to the well-being of the Quebec people, as well as to a broad, united Canadian nationalism.

In tracing the development of the French-Canadians, Mr. Sait recalls that in 1765, shortly after the cession of Canada to Britain, there were within the present limits of the Dominion less than 80,000 French, poor and uneducated, and with no leaders but the clergy. At the beginning of the present century, this "handful of peasants" had increased to about three millions. Almost half of this French population, however, is in the United States. In Canada in 1901, the French numbered 1,322,115 in Quebec, 139,000 in the Maritime Provinces, 158,000 in Ontario, and 30,000 in other parts of the country. When all the circumstances are considered, this development of a conquered people, retaining its nationality through all these years, is truly wonderful. Montcalm himself, just before the conquest, recorded his belief that if Canada was taken by the English, the French colonists as a distinct people would disappear within ten years. France, notes Mr. Sait, gave Canada only 4,684 colonists down to 1760 and only some 6,000 throughout the whole century and a half of the old regime. In the English regime few people have come from France to Canada, and Quebec now attracts scarcely any French emigrants. The chief hope of the French-Canadian Province must be to open her unoccupied lands for settlement and keep to herself the natural increase of her population, which now exceeds 35,000 a year. This she is doing, under the guidance of the clergy. The French are spreading to the north, into New Ontario, and are taking firm hold of the eastern counties of old Ontario. The English population of Quebec increased from 220,763 to 386,783 from 1851 to 1901, but the French have increased much faster, so that the former, once quarter of the population, is now less than a fifth. Montreal is the stronghold of the English, yet though they have increased in number there, they do not form as large a percentage of the population as they did, and the percentage is shrinking year by year.

FOUNDED IN 1701.

The author reminds us that the story of the French settlement in Essex goes back to the eighteenth century. In 1701, the famous French Canadian Cadillac founded Detroit. This colony was meant to be the centre of a great project—French domination in Western America. When Michigan became an American State in 1837, the French there made a demand for separate schools, but this was not granted. And there, as elsewhere in the United States, the French declined in influence. In New England, however, they are strong, and quite strongly bound together. Nearly 300 parish schools are maintained there by them, although they must contribute also to the support of the public schools. The French colony in Essex is the only important one in western Ontario. If numbered 17,254 in 1901, and, as we know, holds tenaciously to its language and traditions. But Mr. Sait points out that it is strengthened by no immigration from Quebec and weakened by emigration, so that the outlook for the French nationality in the county is not bright. In Quebec, the colony, which is the mother of colonies, "the future of the French in America will be determined."

This is the reason why the Roman Catholic clergy are so strenuously that the French-Canadians remain in Quebec, or in the adjacent eastern counties of Ontario. This is why they urge their people above all things not to migrate to the United States, where their nationality becomes largely submerged.

A SOLID QUEBEC.

Mr. Sait enumerates in a striking way the various means employed by the hierarchy and priesthood to hold "a solid Quebec." Each parish is part of a wonderful system. Throughout the Province tithes are levied on the Catholic population. This amounts to a twenty-sixth of all grains, and composes the chief revenue of the priests. The tithe is not merely a church ordinance, but the law of the land. And it has, the author says, full legal footing in the eastern townships of Ontario, too. There is, he points out, no real separation between Church and State in Quebec. If a man fails to pay his tithe it can be collected in the civil courts. And there is "something of the same close association of Church and State with regard to education and marriage."

"The Government," he says, "has little more to do with the schools than with the Roman Catholic parishes." There is no Minister of Education in Quebec, the office having been abolished in 1876. In the French-Catholic schools there are 4,000 teachers without teachers' diplomas. In the primary schools, where nearly all the teachers are women, the average yearly salary for a female teacher holding a diploma is $177 in the towns and $120 in the country. The Protestants, by the way, average $431 and $310. Mr. Sait says the Catholic schools are inefficient. Religious instruction is the principal study. "The catechism forms the staple of the course, with a little of the three R's in the interval between it and prayers." In the words of Archbishop Bruchesi: "Parents cannot send their children to non-Catholic schools without incurring canonical penalties." The classical colleges and Laval University are entirely under clerical domination." At these modern literature is but little taught, as being profane.

PRESS IS CENSORED.

The press of Quebec is censored by the clergy. Any paper circulating among French Catholics which displeases the church is interdicted. That is, church members are warned against buying or reading it under penalty of being refused the sacrament. Theatres are also regulated in this way. A leading Montreal theatre which accommodated Sarah Bernhardt in profane plays was put under the ban and is now a moving picture house. One French publisher being interdicted, carried the matter to the courts, but there the archbishop's action was held to be legal.

The city of Montreal has no free public library. Andrew Carnegie offered the city a large grant for the purpose, but the plan was opposed by the clergy and dropped. It was held that such a library would contain books unfriendly to the Church.

The Church holds itself above the civil law in all matters affecting morality, and especially in the matter of marriage. "All marriages," declares Archbishop Bruchesi, "contracted with an invalidating impediment of ecclesiastical law, if dispensation has not been obtained from the competent religious authority, are null from the beginning." Judge Archibald of Quebec, some time ago pronounced that "all religious organizations in the country are purely voluntary organizations and have no coercive jurisdiction over their members." This decision was afterwards reversed, however, by a French judge, practically giving the Church full authority to decide as to the validity of any marriage in which a Catholic is concerned.

MORE POWER THAN IN EUROPE.

Mr. Sait points out that the Church of Rome exercises more power in Quebec than in any country of western Europe, and that in its zeal in holding together the French Catholics of Quebec it is more ultramontane than the Pope. He recalls the decisive action of Rome in forbidding the Quebec bishops in 1896 to make such a dead set on the Liberal party in Canada as a result of their opposition to the famous Remedial bill. He also believes that finally the French-Canadians will find themselves so far behind the rest of the country, economically and educationally, that without forsaking their religion they will curtail forever the power of the clergy in matters of civic government and freedom of speech and action. As the clergy have lost their authority in old France, so, he thinks, they will lose it in the new France on the St. Lawrence. The people are already realizing that the numerous religious orders in Quebec are a burden on the community. There are in the Province twenty-six distinct orders of men with over three thousand members, and fifty-three of women, with considerable over ten thousand nuns. Many of these orders compete with tax-paying trades and handicrafts. Some of them, given over to contemplation, earn nothing. Some day, Mr. Sait believes, there must be a re-distribution of energy and authority within the ancient Province.

HARDISTY

Is the Busiest Divisional Point Outside of the Large Cities in the West

The Town of Hardisty is expending $15,000 in Cement walks alone this year. The Residential Streets are all being boulevarded, making it the most enchanting City in the West.

A large Public Park has already been reserved, beautifully located, running to the shore of a beautiful lake, which abounds with different kinds of fish. Several small lakes are in close proximity to Hardisty, which is bound to make it one of the finest summer and health resorts in the West. Within six miles from Hardisty is the famous Buffalo Park, which is a source of wonder and delight, containing the largest herd of Buffalo now in captivity. Hardisty has a typical sunny Alberta climate, conductive to the production of every kind of wild fruit and berries which grow in abundance all along the shores of Battle river and lakes.

This is Hardisty's new C. P. R. Station, the largest and best equipped outside the large cities.

A few of the C. P. R. Sidings at Hardisty.

C. P. R. Round House and Stalls at Hardisty.

HARDISTY already has 25 miles of side tracks, having a capacity of 1,000 cars, with an auxiliary yard having a capacity for 500 more, which will be doubled this year to cope with the immense traffic.

The C. P. R. has already expended at Hardisty over $300,000 in Round Houses and Machine Shops. 8 more Stalls are being added this year to accommodate the increasing business of the company.

HARDISTY ASSURES ONE OF THE BEST PROFIT MAKING INVESTMENTS IN THE WEST.

As can readily be seen on the map, Hardisty is the centre of the great Transcontinental traffic, the shortest route by 300 miles from Winnipeg to the great west. Hardisty is a splendid freight distributing point with direct connection with Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, and Winnipeg. Hardisty is the key to the last Great West, and the open door through which passes Alberta's great products of grain, timber, live stock and minerals.

The C. P. R. employs seventeen train crews, running to and from Hardisty daily, besides those employed in connection with the Round Houses, Machine Shops, Stores, Coal Shutes, etc.

Hardisty has the beautiful Battle River running past its door, affording no end of sport for the huntsman and fisherman, also assuring excellent sites for manufacturing concerns, and at the same time supplying the town with water if needed.

Hardisty has large General Stores, Hotels, Churches, Banks, Hardware Stores, Wholesale and Retail Butcher Shops, Lumber Yards, Implement Shops, Livery Barns, Large Schools, Hospital and Printing Offices.

Hardisty's surroundings are the best for mixed farming in the west, being three weeks earlier than the general run of places.

SPORTING COLUMN.

BOXING TO LEARN SINGING.

Welshman Whose Tenor Voice Equals His Boxing.

You've heard that threadbare expression, "playing both ends against the middle." Well, what do you think of a boy who aspires to a musical education, following the prize ring to get the money that will make him a second Caruso?

You can't beat that, can you?

The boy working the duet is Fred Dyer of Cardiff, Wales. He says he is a better singer than he is a fighter and if this is true he must be a marvel, for he is one of the best lightweights in the British empire.

Dyer's specialty is to beat his man and then, with chest heaving from the exertion and pursuant to shouts of "There! There!" he sings in a clear tenor the song the London fight-loving public has taken to.

Sometimes Dyer sings with a lip split, or his nose swollen or one of his eyes blackened. Such things don't interfere. He gets double pay for his singing act.

Dyer whipped every lightweight in Cardiff before going to London and between battles sang in the choir of the biggest church in the Welch city. His stay in London has been an unbroken string of victories. He expects to sail for the United States soon.

The boy has been doing concert work in the fashionable West-end.

Dyer says singing helps his fighting and that fighting helps his singing.

FITZSIMMONS FOUGHT MEN WHO RUSHED HIM.

But Jim Corbett Used to Keep Him Guessing.

Bob Fitzsimmons says he always could beat a man quickly who would rush at him. The fellows who knew how to feint and step around were the ones that bothered him most—that is, they lasted longer against him than the sluggers. For instance, Tom Sharkey was always easy for Bob because he went in and tried to fight Bob all around the ring. Bull men like Jim Hall and Jack Dempsey and Jim Corbett made it more troublesome for the lanky fellow, says W. C. Kelly in the Cleveland Leader.

"It made no difference how hard they could hit if they would come waiting in I liked them," said Bob last night. "I knew the moment I squared off in front of Sharkey that I would beat him just when I got ready to do it. He was a powerful fellow, but every time he rushed he left himself wide open, and all I had to do was to shoot out one fist or the other. He went down when he got it on the right spot.

"I had some trouble finding Jim Corbett, for he was the shiftiest fellow who ever pulled on a glove, and he was an adept at the art of feinting. And any man who can feint cleverly can bother any fighter, I don't care how good he is. I had to bide my time and do a lot of thinking before I finally got to Corbett. He was watching my right hand all the time and stepping away every time I moved it.

"Finally, I thought about the shift and then by feinting with the left for one, side, and then with the right, he threw up his guard one after the other. The instant he lifted his right arm to protect his jaw, I shifted my right leg in front, and then let go with all my force in the solar plexus, or pit of the stomach. He went down, and the fight was over. If I had missed his stomach he would have got the blow on the chin.

FANS HAVE INNINGS.

Not all the fun at a ball game is on the diamond. The remarks hurled by fans at the umpire or players are often funny—very funny. The wit of the baseball fan in the bleachers is ever blooming. Here are some of the funny things that have been heard at ball games:

The crowd at Spokane, Wash., thought the umpire rotten. When he stopped up to the home base to sweep the dirt off so he could see it more plainly a bleacherite hollered out:

"Do you have to know much to be that?"

One of the fans in the bleachers at a Montreal-Baltimore game, after a weak play on the part of one of the Montreal players, cried:

"Aw, hang crepe on your nose. Your brains are dead.

The Toronto first baseman made an unsuccessful attempt to steal second.

"Hey, Toronto," shrieked a fan, "you're solid ivory from your shoulders up, and you breathe through your ears like a fish."

To appreciate this one you must remember the size of Joe Yeager's ears. At a critical part of a game a fan yelled:

"Pray your ears, Joe. There's a fly on your neck."

REPORT ON LIVE STOCK.

A bulletin of the Census Office, Ottawa, issued May 16, makes the following report on live stock of Canada:

The report on the condition of live stock is good for all the provinces, being 95 for horses, 92.43 for milch cows, 90.54 for other cattle, 90.23 for sheep and 94.51 for swine. Alberta is below 90 for horses, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for milch cows; Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia for other cattle, and Alberta and British Columbia for sheep; but generally the condition ranges about 10 per cent.

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The varieties of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. If convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in season, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by ploughing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is an item to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made in the Ontario college at Guelph. Since that time the classes have grown larger every year, so that the present enrolment is nearly 1,000 with an additional 400 at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

CORN TILLAGE GOOD FOR SHEEP.

Experiments Prove That Silage Has Great Advantage Over Roots as Economical Feed.

The Dominion Experimental Farm is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in stock feeding.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farm, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, twenty-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

BUY

ROYAL PORCUPINE

Quoted at 32 to 33 Cents

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 19, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MESSER, M. E.,
"Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000; par value of shares $1.00. Full paid and non-assessable. No personal liability.

A glance at the list of directors will show the class of men who are putting in their money and time to make this one of the greatest mines in the Porcupine Camp. The directors are:—

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have beenpresenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties,

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal" Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

The Capital City of the Islands

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gazetted to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Hoonah River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Hoonah River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the commission of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Hoona River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Massett Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island compiled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 52 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

FARM AND FIELD

STOCK RAISING IN SIBERIA.

The Mongrels Make the Best of Land Horse in Siberia.

The most important occupation in the Province of Transbaikal is stock raising. Cattle, horses and sheep predominate, altho a limited number of camels, deer, goats and swine are raised. The horses average between twelve and thirteen hands high, and can draw a load of over one thousand pounds, and if driven in a troicka (three horses harnessed abreast) they can cover thirty to forty miles a day. Journeys of thousands of miles at an average rate of forty miles a day have been made by riding these animals. The horses are kept in the open throughout the year, and in winter find their food under the snow. Some improvement has been made in breeding these horses, and only recently Arab blood was introduced.

The cattle are of Mongolian origin and are inferior and very small. They live in the same manner as the horses, and it is remarkable how they can withstand the severe climate and lack of food. Experiments have been made to improve the stock, but the results are noticed only in the first and second generation, the probable reason being that they are given so little care. These cattle produce little milk or beef. The camel is also of Mongolian origin, and the sheep are a little over two feet in height, the tail varying in weight from two to ten pounds. The wool is coarse, thick and of medium length.

BEE HIVES.

Successful Farmers Have Their Section Boxes Ready for Swarming.

The wideawake farmer does not wait until his bees have swarmed and are clustered on a treetop before he thinks of preparing a hive for them. All preparatory work, such as making and painting hives, wiring brood frames and getting the section boxes ready for the anticipated honey crop, should be done at leisure times during winter and early spring, before the rush of other work takes place. How easy it will be to manage a dozen or more colonies of bees next summer if everything is set in readiness now. For instance, if a swarm issues it will only be the work of a few minutes to take a hive from the barn and hive the swarm into it. If a honey flow bursts forth suddenly, what satisfaction it will give you to know that you have on hand a few hundred section boxes ready to set on the hives at once. If this work is put off until summer time, it is more than probable it will not be done at all. When feeding the bees be careful and not spill any of the sweets about the apiary, for robbing is often started in this way.

HOW SWINE CAN PAY.

Raising of Pigs Neglected in Canada.

First choose your breed. When your choice is made, purchase pure-bred brood sows. If you cannot afford to buy many, buy one good one, and by saving all the desirable females you will, in the course of a few years, have a good-sized herd. Do not spare a few dollars or a long drive to get a good boar.

The vigor of the constitution of the offspring depends on the dam, but the outward form and limbs depend more on the boar. The boar should be wide between the fore legs, with large girth behind them, that denotes active heart and limbs. Straight, strong limbs and erect hoofs indicate solidity of animal framework. Smooth skin and soft hair denote active liver and general health. Do not trade a long body for a short nose. These same qualities should be found in the female.

During the pregnancy of the sow, she should be allowed plenty of exercise and proper food, and there will be little trouble in giving birth to her offspring. A sow carrying pigs is engaged in a work which demands a full supply of tissue-making foods. Clover, wheat, bran and linseed meal and such foods, rich in protein, should be furnished her. There is a great mistake made by many hog raisers who give their brood sows corn and water for a diet; they think because they look well that such foods are all right, but they wonder why their sows have trouble giving birth to their offspring and many times eat them.

When the pigs are a few weeks old they should be given a creep where they can help themselves to grain. The males should be castrated when about two months old and while they are still with their mothers.

MANITOBA FOR GOOD ROADS.

Representatives of Manitoba Good Roads Association and Manitoba Union of Municipalities met last week in Winnipeg, and after considerable discussion on the financing of road work throughout the province, passed a resolution to the effect that the government be asked to guarantee the bonds of the municipalities. It was proposed that the redemption of bonds be extended over a period of twenty to thirty years and further, that the amount of money to be raised do not exceed four per cent of the total assessment of the municipality.

NERVILINE.

Fifty years ago Nerviline was used from coast to coast and in thousands of houses this trusty liniment served the entire family, cured all their minor ills, and kept the doctor's bills small. To-day Nerviline still holds first rank in Canada among pain-relieving remedies—scarcely a home you can find that doesn't use it.

From Port Hope, Ont., Mr. W. T. Greenaway, of the Guide newspaper staff, writes: "For twenty years we have used Nerviline in our home, and not for the world would we be without it. As a remedy for all pain, earache, toothache, cramps, headache and disordered stomach, I know of no preparation so useful and quick to relieve as Nerviline."

Storm Does Damage.

The gale to-day, at 1.10 p.m. blew down many trees in the city. A window on Aylmer street was blown in. The lightning struck a chimney at 400 Sherbrooke street, and demolished it. A power pole was blown down in the lower part of the city.

Deer on Golf Links.

The other day a couple of deer were seen on the Lindsay Golf Links. They were evidently chased by dogs. This must not be taken to mean that hunters are to look for deer next season in that backwoods town.

Trouble in Store.

Frank Rone came up before His Worship in the City Police Court on the complaint of a local storekeeper, named Oliver. The defendant was accused of abusive language, but he was discharged by the magistrate, who considered that the plaintiff was the aggressor.

A Vicious Threat.

Yesterday morning Alex. Thompson Wolfe-street, started trouble in large pieces on George street. Not being content with an ordinary family row he is alleged to have beaten his wife with his fists, and it is further alleged that he threatened to cut his wife's throat. For which pleasant remark he enriched the City Treasurer's coffers to the extent of $8.35, being fine and costs together.

The Ross Rifle.

A great many complaints are registered, in militia circles against the Ross rifle. The latest is that the screw holes had been bored too far in to the barrel, thus weakening them. Some militia men contend that the rifle is too light for active service because of its light make. Our officers in this city, are not in a position to pass a critical opinion, because the weapon has not yet been issued to the whole regiment.

High School Entrance.

The Entrance results will be out in about ten days. There has been a marked increase in the number of successful candidates than last year. No doubt this is accounted for by the fact that the papers were not so difficult this year as last. The geography paper was tricky, but not hard. The heat wave made it hard er for the youngsters than would otherwise have been the case.

The Local Orangemen.

The Orangemen are to spend the 12th in Cobourg. A special train has been provided for the members. A good time is assured to all those who go. L.O.L. numbers 50, 80 and 1175 are expected to go. No. 50 Duke of Manchester, will try for prize for the best appearing lodge. They have a fine new banner and also some new regalia.

Quick Work by Fire Department.

In the heighth of yesterday's storm at 1.28 p.m. Chief Howard's men received a phone alarm to the corner of Reid and Sherbrooke streets, where a live wire had fallen across the roof of a barn. The firemen made a very fast run which The Times man saw, to the fire. The promptness of the men saved the building from any serious damage. The North and East circuits were cut off but Chief Howard hoped to have them in again by night, though he could not estimate the amount of damages.

A Brave Young Lady.

Two Peterborough young men had a narrow escape last Sunday in the Otonabee River, near Crawford's Grove. Their canoe upset, but they managed to cling to it until they were seen by a young lady and a young man who were paddling nearer to shore, and who at once went to the rescue. The young lady held up one of the exhausted youths until they reached shore.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

A drunk was too much so to appear at yesterday morning's court, but will be brought up this morning at 10 a.m.

Col. Anderson, Inspector of Aids to Navigation, made a trip over the Trent Canal. Some changes in lighting and looked for.

Miss Wilhelmina Grumricht has very kindly given fifteen dollars, the proceeds of her recent rerital, to the Children's Shelter.

Fishing Inspector Watt left a fine string of fish at the Children's Shelter. The fish were undersized and had been seined.

The Belmont Club has a first class programme on for Wednesday night, on the Otonabee River near their club house. In addition to a number of races there will be a dance at the club house.

A QUICK MATCH.

Last Saturday at 4 p.m. Mr. Freeburn, a widower, of Bobcaygeon, met the lady of his choice in a peculiar manner. The bridegroom to be headed for a restaurant in search of a meal, and possibly a wife. He was overheard to say that this latter motive was the greatest incentive. The waitress took pity on him and presented him to Mrs. Thos. Ashley, a widow, with the result that Mr. Freeburn proposed and was accepted. The happy couple were married to-day.

HALL'S BRIDGE

Weather very hot, with severe electric storms in this locality.

A very severe storm passed over this part on Thursday morning about 6 a.m. No serious harm done.

A large number from here attended the Sunday School excursion to McCrackens Landing and Juniper Island on June 30. They all reported a fine time, and the kindness of Captain Scollard and his crew on the Steamer Stoney Lake.

Huckleberry pickers are going to and fro now, but owing to the severe heat that favorite berry is hard to be got.

Mrs. Wm. Watson of Lakefield, is the guest of her mother Mrs. Herkimore.

We welcomed the Hon. J. R. Stratton to the True Blue Hall Monday evening, but was better pleased when he left.

Miss Huffman, left for her home in Peterboro last week. Her many friends in this community will miss her greatly, as she also was an earnest worker in the Church and Sabbath School.

Mrs. W. J. Carruthers of Lindsay, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Hill.

Mr. Nat. Pearson was slightly injured the other evening from a fall, while turning his cow into the yard. We hope it isn't serious.

Mr. Edge Crowe's drive moved on a little farther down the river on Thursday. Mr. Jerry Ford's drive is passing through now. Crowe's drive had quite a time getting through, owing to a jam at the bridge, which was for a few hours tied up.

The tourists are arriving already. A large number from Peterboro and other points enjoyed Dominion Day [illegible].

Mr. C. McClennan, Peterboro, spent Dominion Day with W. N. Blewett.

Mr. Nash of Peterboro, spent last week with Mrs. Taylor.

Mr. Dunscett of Peterboro, was the guest of Mr. R. Hill, Dominion Day.

Mr. Nat. Pearson has erected a splendid sundmer kitchen to his commodious brick house.

Mr. Steve Nicholls, Jr., has erected a fine new barn. The mason work certainly gives Messrs. Frank and Thomas Freeburn credit, while the frame work was finished by Mr. J. Jones, our local carpenter. Mr. Nicholls had a barn raising lately and our humble opinion is that this should give the farmers a chance at a barn-warming before he puts his grain in. What do you say, boys?

Mr. Will Montgomery of Bobcaygeon, spent Sunday at home.

Mr. Bruce McKenty had a narrow escape the other evening, owing to his horse taking fright. Mr. McKenty got off safe with only a broken shaft.

Wallace Shearer happened with an accident on Monday evening, his horse getting frightened at a steamer whistle. Only damage done was the tongue of the rig broken.

Mr. Ernie Walker, the helper at the Buckhorn Cheese factory, received the sad intelligence this week, of his mother in England being dead. His many friends wish to sympathize with him.

IS PETERBOROUGH TO HAVE MEMORIAL DAY?

A movement, emanating from Ottawa, is designed to have one day each year set apart for the purpose of holding a Military Memorial. The movement has the support of many officers, both here and in other cities.

An officer, well known here, when seen by a Times man said to the effect:—"Peterborough should have, as well as all Canada, a Memorial Day, for the purpose of keeping green the memory of the heroes who died in defence of their country. We are behind the Americans in this respect. It would be better to have a Memorial Day even if we did not have a Civic Holiday."

The Kaiser is said to have declared, "I have no intention whatever of sacrificing my little girl to politics. She shall marry whom she loves." But presumably His Majesty will allow the object of the girl's affections some say in the matter.

FEARFUL DEATH TOLL IN RAILWAY WRECK

EVERY AMBULANCE IN THE CITY REQUIRED TO REMOVE THE INJURED TO HOSPITALS.

Fearful Death Toll in Coach—Pendcross Pullman Cars Crumpled Under Impact After Plunge.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 11.—Many lives, probably a score, were crushed out in a twinkle, and many persons, probably three score, were frightfully hurt, early to-day when the Federal Express, running from Washington, D.C., to Boston over the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, was hurled over the viaduct here by an open switch. A great mass of wreckage was piled up on the streets beside the viaduct in an instant. Fire broke out, but the Bridgeport fire department quickly put this out and the men lent assistance to rescue those whose cries of agony filled the air. Ambulances and doctors, hastily summoned, did their best to save those who were under the debris.

Twelve Dead. Officials Say.

Boston, July 11.—Twelve persons killed and forty-two injured and the wreck due to the engineer taking a cross-over at a speed estimated at 60 miles an hour, when the times card called for a speed not exceeding 15 miles an hour, was the gist of a statement concerning the Bridgeport wreck, issued by officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad here at 10.30 a.m. to-day.

Was Running at High Speed.

The express left Harlem River an hour late. It was going at high speed when the open switch was struck. The Bridgeport station was only a mile and a half further on. The open switch was near the tower which stands at the junction of Fairfield avenue and State street. There was one tremendous crash, an instant of intense silence and then the groans and shrieks of the wounded.

Wreck Was Almost Complete.

The wreck was almost complete, five cars having gone over and only three of the long train left on the tracks. The engine, twisted into junk, was two hundred feet south of Fairfield avenue. Behind were the mail and baggage cars, while the pullmans and coaches were in a mass in the rear.

CANADIANS AT BISLEY

The Canadians have made a good showing at the Bisley meet, doing well in nearly all the matches.

Lieut. Blood won the "Rest" match, using a Canadian rifle and ammunition. This carries with it a prize of $250.

Corp. Geo. Mortimer, Que., made 46 out of a possible 50 at the 1000 yard range and the same at the 1100 range.

Pte. E. Biffy, made a score of 34 in seven shots.

Capt. C. Milne was third in the sweep-stakes at 500 yards.

KING WILLIAM OF ORANGE

During the Continental Revolution of 1848, Lord Macauley wrote: "Now, if ever, we ought to be able to appreciate the whole importance of the stand which was made by our forefathers against the House of Stuart . . . It is because we had a Preserving Revolution in the Seventeenth Century that we have not had a Destroying Revolution in the Nineteenth. It is because we had freedom in the midst of servitude that we have had order in the midst of anarchy. For the Authority of Law, for the Security of Property, for the Peace of our Streets, for the Happiness of our Homes, our gratitude is due, under Him who raises and pulls down nations at His pleasure, to the Long Parliament, to the convention, and to William of Orange."

NOTHING BUT SPEECHES IN WAY OF RECIPROCITY

Washington, D. C., July 10.—"Nothing but speeches stand in the way of the complete success of the Canadian reciprocity bill, and we are working the speeches off as fast as possible," said Chairman Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee to-day.

"We shall not be here so much longer. Gradually and more rapidly than most people appreciate, we are putting the speeches behind us and I am sticking to a prediction made long since that we shall adjourn either on Saturday, July 29th, or Saturday, August 5th, by which time we shall have voted upon and passed the reciprocity bill and voted upon the free hat and wool bills."

At the psychological moment, Mr. Penrose will renew his request for unanimous consent to fix a day to vote on the reciprocity bill and also for days to vote on the two tariff bills now on the Senate calendar. He probably will name the same days mentioned in the first request, July 24th, 25th and 26th.

FOOTBALL MEETING IN Y.M.C.A.

A meeting will be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night at 8 o'clock, to discuss the formation of a team to compete in the finals of the Ontario Football Association. The Times learns that there is a good chance of having the finals played in Peterborough. There is a valuable cup and gold medals up for the winners. This is an open meeting. All those interested in the game are requested to be present.

PEOPLE FELL OVER ONE ANOTHER TO BE CONVERTED

Erie, Pa., July 10. — Evangelist Billy Sunday broke all hot-weather records when he concluded a six weeks' revival here last night with a total of 5,312 converts. These cost the city of Erie nearly $25,000, $11,000 of which was raised for current expenses, about $5,000 for various local projects and for members of the evangelist's party.

It is estimated that fully 400,000 people heard the speaker during the six weeks, many excursions coming here from interior State points and from New York and Ohio. The final service was attended by ten thousand and hundreds were turned away, unable to obtain admittance. Three hundred and sixty-one converts were obtained at the final service, people falling over one another to get to the front.

Sunday left to-day for Cleveland, where he meets a delegation and prepares for a revival to be held there A large delegation was at the depot to see him off.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

MORE ALARMING THAN THE NE TEMERE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir —Ne Temere, the papal decree on marriage, is occupying public attention just now to the exclusion of more important things. The recent papal decree known as "The Pope and Modernism" is a thousand times more alarming than Ne Temere because it is the basis of Ne Temere and a host of other decrees coming and to come. It is the great modern charter of the Roman Church from which all things are to start afresh in the universal conquest foreshadowed by the Pope. Ne Temere does very well to keep public attention occupied and diverted from the main issue and there is one clause in it which ought to excite the wonderment of most non-Catholics, namely, that clause which is set out in the official pamphlet known as "The New Marriage Legislation," which says: "Marriage of all fallen-away Catholics (who have become Protestants or infidels) before a minister or civil magistrate will be no marriage at all."

This clause is founded on the statement of the Church that "I declare that I have the God-given power to bind refractory subjects and all who have ever been validly baptized in any form or expression of Christianity." It is thus the expressed determination of the Church to pursue relentlessly all who attempt to leave it. It is a most distinct menace to popular liberty, and will prevail if not powerfully opposed. But not even such clauses as this give Ne Temere the importance of "The Pope and Modernism," which condemns in all possible forms and variations and with the full terrors of the Church, the principle of modern democratic liberty or the rule of the people. It demands that the people shall once more come under the control of the Church, and reconstruct their modes of thought, speech and act, so as to conform to the rules of the Church and be obedient in all things to it. Such a bold and all-embracing decree was scarcely ever known before. And the priesthood is everywhere expressly bidden to take a firm and fearless hand in the affairs of public and social life, and not to stand aloof as some have done heretofore. For the complete and successful carrying out of this great plan Secret Councils of Vigilance composed of the clergy are to be formed and have been formed in every diocese. So that we may expect to find a new force in the political and social life of the people striving with might and main and secretly to "restore all things in Christ." This is much more serious than Ne Temere, which has been so shrewdly projected into public notice and kept before the people.

ARRESTED FOR KILLING GIRL

Said to Have Struck Her on the Head With a Stick.

Quebec, July 11.—A young woman named Emma Semard died at the Hotel Dieu Hospital last night from injuries alleged to have been caused by an old man named Garneau striking her on the head with a stick. The assault occurred in a boarding house and Garneau is being held by the police.

CAN SCHOOL BOYS SWIM?

The Y.M.C.A. of Kingston has arranged for free swimming instruction to be given to all the boys of that city. The Times spoke to a citizen whose business keeps him near the water, and was surprised to learn that a great many boys of this city can't swim a stroke. This gentleman when the Kingston proposal was mentioned, was very much impressed and spoke very highly in reference to the matter. He suggested that the Peterborough City Council be asked to engage some competent young man, to undertake this instruction. Such swimming instruction can only be given at this time of the year, for all of our local swimming tanks are too small to be of much practical value to beginners.

KNOCKED DOWN CARRIED AWAY

Was Afterwards Found Crawling Along Railway Tracks Unable to Speak.

Marion, O., July 10—As Miss Flora Spicer, aged twenty, and her guest, Miss Mary Rogers, aged twenty-two, of West Mansfield, were returning home from church at ten o'clock last night they were accosted on the street by a man who struck both the girls over the head, and picking up Miss Spicer, who was unconscious, carried her away. Miss Rogers quickly summoned the help of a number of men who searched the railroad yards a block distant, where they found Miss Spicer with face bruised, and clothing torn, crawling along the tracks and unable to speak. Her assailant escaped. Miss Spicer when she regained her speech said the man threatened her with death if she screamed. She is in a serious condition. The entire police force is searching for the assailant.

Buy it now. Now is the time to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over. This remedy has no superior. For sale by all dealers.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS OF ALL KINDS.

Big Winnipeg Fair Now in Full Swing—Lord Strathcona's Retirement Affects West—Great Shortage of Farm Help.

Winnipeg, Man., July 12.—Cooler nights and less rain have had a beneficial effect on crops in the west and the outlook for the best crop the country ever had is even better than it was before. In sharp contrast with last year, all reports are good.

Delightful Weather.

Winnipeg has been delightfully cool and pleasant during the time that other cities in the East have been laboriously making new heat records. On the hottest day when the thermometer registered 100 up, Winnipeg's top notch was 77.

Farm Help Wanted.

All the West is sharply concerned in means for the harvesting of the crops, careful estimates of the number of hands needed, place the figures at 162,000. At least 40,000 of these will require to be brought in from the outside, and Western Canada will be a place of refuge for the unemployed who are willing to work, from about August 15th until snow flies.

Summer Fairs On.

This is the season of summer fairs in the West. The biggest of them all the Canadian Industrial Exhibition, at Winnipeg opened this week—July 13—and will be in session for ten days. Big plans have been worked out and the Winnipeg Exhibition will keep up its splendid record for enterprise and completeness.

Lord Strathcona.

The announcement of the retirement of Lord Strathcona from the office of High Commissioner of Canada, touches Winnipeg very closely. This city has always looked upon Lord Strathcona as a native son, and the High Commissioner was given a royal welcome when he visited the West two years ago.

In event of Sir William Whyte being appointed to the place it seems likely Winnipeg will have much the same interest, since Sir William has been one of the city's leading citizens for many years.

Farm Traction Engines.

For a month during and after the Exhibition, Winnipeg will be the centre of an industry which represents a capital of at least $100,000,000. Through the annual farm motor contest, the eyes of the farm traction engine world are fixed on Winnipeg. It is now the biggest event of its kind in the world, and no other contest on the American continent of this kind draws such a congregation of men in the machinery world. Mechanical power is added yearly tens of millions of bushels to Canada's output of wheat. Fifty aggressive firms are fighting for this business which pours through Winnipeg. In fact throughout thousands upon thousands of fertile acres are again being broken up this year by means of steam and gasoline power.

RIFLE RANGES NEEDED BY LOCAL MILITIAMEN

Considerable comment is caused in army circles by the lack of suitable rifle ranges. It is about two years since the Government first talked of buying a range. The difficulty seems to be in the length, as they require about two miles of land in order to get the 1000 yard range.

Major Clegg, when seen by The Times, said that several sites had been suggested, but nothing definite, so far as he knew, had been done.

At present no place is provided for the soldiers to shoot except the indoor range at the Armouries, which, of course, is of very little value because no training can be given in distance, wind, etc.

Another difficulty is to get the ranges close enough to town to be convenient to the men. The men who only have a half-holiday, or no a week, would then be in a position to shoot. This lack of suitable range is most important since the recent militia order which is to the effect that men must shoot for their efficiency pay.

The rifle range will be a considerable item of expense to the militia department, but it is a question of such grave necessity that it should be attended to as soon as possible.

TRENT CANAL TO BE LIGHTED

As reported in The Times some days ago, a system of better lighting of the Trent Canal is soon to be put in. It is now learned that it is proposed to put in a system of lighting which will enable the canal to be used at night equally as well as by day, along the streams and lakes, which make up waterway, for a distance of 250 miles.

Col. Anderson, chief engineer of the Department recommended the improvement. New buoys are also to be placed as directed by the Superintendent.

A STRUGGLE ON GEORGE ST.

Last night about five o'clock Constable Middleton saw a man on George street, who was so disorderly that the officer considered it to be his duty to arrest him. The man resisted, but Officer Middleton succeeded, after a struggle, in getting his man to the station. The Times learns from a railway man, that the officer was no rougher with his prisoner than conditions required. The prisoner, who is said to be a circus employee, is apparently an ugly customer. He is about 35 years of age. The culprit is not known to the local police as even his name could not be learned at the time of going to press.

NEW MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERY

Yesterday at a meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery, the Rev. H. J. Keith, of the Knox Church, was elected Moderator, by a large majority. He will hold office for the next six months. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville. Mr. Keith is a man eminently fitted for the work as Moderator.

Man Shorn of Strenght

WEAK LIVER SO UNDERMINED HIS VITALITY THAT HE ALMOST DIED.

"Early manhood vigor easily led me to view irregularities of my system as incapable of affecting my strength. I am a barrister," writes a well-known legal light, "and there are times in our professional work so exciting and exhausting that any weakness reveals itself in all its naked awfulness. Pressure of work prompted me to ignore some of the distressing symptoms of impaired liver activity—sour stomach, fullness after eating and dullness of intellectual activity. It was not until a severe attack of sleeplessness following an exacting session of court, and a nervous excitability that later developed, that I realized fully my condition. My physician ordered complete change and rest, but my engagements rendered impossible this course.

"To correct the system I began using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and to my delight not only did they establish regularity, but the liver activity of my earlier days returned. The solution of my health problem was immediate, digestion improved, appetite became active, and my nerves were speedily up to my old fighting mark. Please head me as a Dr. Hamilton Pill man."

No medicine so valuable for those leading a sedentary life as Dr. Hamilton's Pills, sold in yellow boxes, 25c all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

THE FIREMEN HAD BUSY TIME

Yesterday Chief Howard and his men were very busy as a result of the storm. That they acted with promptness and skill is well understood. Two calls came in together, one to the old stone mill in Ashburnham, now owned by the Quaker Oats people. This fire, like all others, was caused by the wires. The hook and ladder and hose waggons attended to this. At the same time Chief Howard and a few of his men were at the Brinton Carpet Works fighting another small fire.

The next call was the Central school where some of the woodwork was scorched, though there was no damages.

Next the fire boys were called to R. Hicks' coal and wood yard, where they speedily extinguished the blaze.

Still another run was in store for our busy fire fighters. This was to the corner of Rubidge and Wolfe streets, where a transformer was burned out.

Most of the calls came in by phone though two boxes were pulled. It speaks well for our Fire Department, that in all these fires, there were no damages to the properly holders.

WAS SHOT DEAD FOR A BEAR

Man With Wife and Five Small Children Meets a Sudden End.

Fredericton, N.B., July 11.—Mistaken for a bear in the thick woods and shot by a friend, Myles Cropley, of Fosterville Parish of North Lake, York County, was killed. Word of the tragic accident reached here this morning and from particulars available it appears that three men, one of whom was Mr. Cropley, were going through the woods across a point of land at North Lake towards the main road when they became separated and one of the three, who carried a gun, fired at what he thought was a bear and shot and killed his friend, Myles Cropley.

The late Mr. Cropley who was aged thirty-one years, is survived by a widow and five small children, also three brothers and four sisters.

GENERAL ELECTION MAY BE HELD BEFORE SEPTEMBER

Quebec, Que., July 10.—Dissolution of Parliament within a month and a short, sharp campaign with voting all over, except in the Yukon, by the first of September is the prospect which confronts the people of Canada to-day. Whether this will develop or not depends altogether upon the leader of the Opposition and his advisers.

One thing is certain, the adjourned session of Parliament will not last more than three weeks before there is either a deadlock or a prorogation.

While of course, Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues are keeping their own counsel, the word has gone out to the party leaders throughout the Dominion to get ready for a fight and get ready at once. Should Mr. Borden decline to allow any progress to be made with the reciprocity resolution, when the House meets again on the 16th, as he has stated in the West that will be the case, then the Government will ask for supply, not for another interim supply until the redistribution bill can be drafted and passed, but supply for the remaining portion of this fiscal year. This will probably result in a struggle of endurance lasting some days and nights, and will possibly conclude with a dissolution with the political atmosphere boiling hot.

REDISTRIBUTION IMPOSSIBLE.

Mr. Borden's suggestion that an election this fall should be preceded by a redistribution seems impossible of fulfilment. The census figures will not be ready until August 15 at the earliest and then it will take several weeks to decide upon the new limits of the constituencies. Even when the redistribution bill is drafted, it is certain to require weeks of discussion in the House. The members from the Maritime Provinces, which are bound to lose several seats, will not allow a redistribution bill to pass without a protest. Both Ontario and Quebec will have to suffer the reduction of several rural constituencies in order to provide for the growth of the towns and cities, and even in the West redistribution is not a matter which can be done with a stroke of a pencil upon a white paper.

Take British Columbia, for example. There Vancouver must have increased representation, and the sort of representation which can be given to it cannot be settled until the details are in from all outlying sections of the province, which may mean months.

GOVERNMENT WON'T RETREAT.

The present temper of the leaders of the Liberal party is undoubtedly one which must lead either to a dissolution within a very few weeks or a backdown by the Opposition. There will be no retreat by the Government. If the reciprocity agreement is still blocked, and if supply is refused within a short time of the reassembling of the House of Commons, as both will be if Mr. Borden sticks to his statements in the West, there can be no other resolution but dissolution.

Ottawa, July 10.—The Conservatives of the capital were desirous of extending a hearty "welcome home" to Mr. Borden on his arrival here tomorrow, but as his train reaches Ottawa at 5 a. m., the demonstration has been called off.

Conservatives profess to be very well pleased with the results of the leader's tour in the West, although on many occasions he undoubtedly met with hostile audiences.

Pending Mr. Borden's return, as well as that of Sir Wilfrid, it is difficult to prognosticate what will occur immediately on the resumption of the Parliamentary sittings. Before the adjournment the Conservatives had a caucus at which it was decided to force, if possible, a dissolution of Parliament on the reciprocity question. Mr. Borden's visit to the West may have changed this aspect of the party's view. On occasions Mr. Borden appeared to have definitely pledged himself not to force a dissolution until after a redistribution bill has been adopted. At the very earliest it will be September 15th before the census branch can furnish Parliament with the data upon which redistribution can be based. Possibly the returns will be open two or three weeks later.

However, there may be a definite announcement of the attitude of the Opposition when the leader returns to-morrow.

BEAMSVILLE GIRL KILLED HERSELF

After Destroying Son and Throwing Body Into Reservoir—Held Inquest To-night.

Beamsville, Ont., July 11.—The inquest intot he death of Miss Edna Comfort and her young son whose bodies were found in the Beamsville reservoir, will show that there is no foundation for the sensational stories the village gossips have been spreading. Both bodies were exhumed yesterday, and an examination by outside physicians substantiated the post-mortem made by local doctors.

The child died of concussion of the brain, and the mother of drowning, indicating that she struck the child and then drowned herself.

The motive for the tragedy is believed to be the fact that the woman was about to give birth to a third child. The authorities believe that she decided to kill her boy, and suicide, after the man who is said to be the father of her children refused to marry her.

Detective Miller had no difficulty in finding the man the woman was talking to shortly before her death. The supposed father of the children will have to testify at the inquest.

FARM AND FIELD

THE UPKEEP OF THE SOIL.

Results of Ten Years' Experiments Successful.

Experiments have recently demonstrated the virtues of phosphorus in striking fashion. In Ohio ten-year tests have shown that a phosphorus fertilizer accompanying manures would practically double the yields of corn, wheat or hay as compared with lands where no fertilizer was used. In another instance the average yield of corn was increased nine bushels an acre when raw rock phosphate was used during the previous four or five years.

A rational and practical method of maintaining soil fertility is being rapidly established by the soil chemist and bacteriologist. It involves the use of mineral fertilizers to meet the present deficit, accompanied by proper soil management to encourage the growth of the desirable forms of germ life. Nitrogen may be supplied by growing leguminous crops or by the addition of manures from livestock. A supply of potash, if needed, may be furnished in the form of a mineral fertilizer, kainit, or, on limited areas, in wood ashes, or more concentrated forms, such as potassium chloride. Phosphorus may be supplied at a minimum cost through raw rock phosphate or other commercial forms.

The soil must be kept sweet by liming and through drainage. Proper tillage, frequent but not deep soils—will aid. The countryman may invoke the counsel of the chemist, but should test general principles by local trial before applying them on a commercial scale. Above all, the true countryman will not be niggardly with his soil, but will liberally replenish the stores from which he expects an abundant return.

AUTHORITIES REPORT ON CROP.

Prospects Good in Canada.

The seeding and growing season for the whole of Canada has opened late this year, and the month of April has been marked by hard frosts. But May has been favorable to cultivation of the land, and the rainfall has been sufficient for healthy vegetation.

Fall wheat, which is grown chiefly in Ontario and Alberta, showed an average condition of 82 per cent. at the end of April, being 89 per cent. in Alberta and 81 per cent. in Ontario. In Ontario, however, the April frosts were destructive in some regions; ranged from 12 to 34 per cent. of the area sown has been reported as winter-killed. The central countries, North of Lake Ontario, suffered worst, the average loss as reported being 34 per cent. In the Western counties 27 per cent. of the area in crop has been destroyed. In the Southern counties, North of lake Erie, the loss is 19 per cent.; in the Northern counties and districts, 12.6 per cent.; and in the Eastern counties, between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, 15 per cent. For the whole of Canada, the area winter-killed is reported to be 21 per cent., and the per cent. condition of the growing crop is 82.

About 12 1-2 per cent. of the clover was heaved out by the spring frosts, and the average condition of hay and clover at the end of April was 89 per cent. Alberta shows better than any other part of Canada, its average being 94 1-2 per cent. Nova Scotia comes next, with 93.75; and in Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan it is 94, and in Manitoba 85 per cent.

MARKET FOR MEAT.

Argentine Finds a New Market for Its Meat.

A new market for Argentine meat has been secured in northern Italy. The mayors of Rome and 56 other cities in the northern part of Italy have combined to promote the importation of frozen meat from Argentina. Negotiations in southern Italy have similar arrangements in view for that section. Efforts are being made by the Argentine authorities to have the Swiss regulations modified so as to permit the entry of meat into that country. At present every carcass imported into Switzerland must be accompanied by the tongue, heart, liver, spleen and kidneys. It is thought that a Swiss inspector may be stationed at Buenos Ayres to pass upon carcasses intended for his country and so relieve the trade of this prohibitive order.

ONTARIO FRUIT OUTLOOK.

Ontario's orchards were not in blossom on the 8th May, when correspondents made their return to the Department of Agriculture. The season is said to be later than usual. Fruit buds, however, promise to be plentiful, and after the lean orchard yield of 1910 a liberal yield is expected. War upon scale, codling moth, and other pests is being conducted with more vigor than ever, and several correspondents point to the improved appearance of fruit trees as the result of work done in the last year or two in the way of spraying, pruning, and the better general culture of orchards. A few reports of damage to trees from mice come from some of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa countries.

NEW WAY OF CATCHING RATS.

Catching rats with oyster shells is the unique method employed by some pearlers round about Broome, West Australia. They leave a large oyster on the floor of the cabin at night. It opens for a breath of fresh air, and the smell of fresh meat attracts the rats. When the rodent thinks he'll try a little supper, the oyster suddenly decides that he doesn't like fresh air. Next morning the shell is prised open, and the dead rat thrown overboard.

HOW HE GOT HIS BOW LEGS.

From the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Speaking of bow legs, it was Alfred Williams, of the Roanoke Times, who said on one occasion of a friend of his who had a lifelong hunger in his heart for public office, but was a little careful about announcing his candidacy, that he had sat on the fence so long that he had grown bow legged. Yet this very man has had one of his highest ambitions gratified, proving that when a bow legged man makes up his mind he can run as fast and as far as anybody.

Col. Anderson, Inspector of Aids to Navigation, made a trip over the Trent Canal. Some changes in light [illegible] and looked [illegible]

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The varieties of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. If convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in season, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by ploughing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is an item to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made by the Ontario college at Guelph. Since that time the classes have grown larger every year, so that the present enrolment is nearly 1,000 with an additional 400 at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

CORN TILLAGE GOOD FOR SHEEP.

Experiments Prove That Silage Has Great Advantage Over Roots as Economical Feed.

The Dominion Experimental Farm is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in stock feed.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farm, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, twenty-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

ROYAL PORCUPINE

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 19, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MESSER, M. E.,
"Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000 par value of shares $1.00. Full paid and non-assessable. No personal liability.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. stop it. Stop it? Of course they can stop it. They don't half try.

"Here's Canda & Willetts the fifteenth on the list. And who knows how many never come to light? And it's the same fellow, by George, and he works in the selfsame way every time. And they say they can't find him. Pshaw! Don't tell me."

"Well," volunteered another, 'the banks say they've got several parties under surveillance, and they claim they've narrowed it down to one man — and then again, they say that that's all tommyrot, that they haven't found him, after all."

"I don't know what to make of it," remarked a woman, "and I wouldn't care so much if they'd confine their depredations to the banks; but they don't. Did any of you hear about Mrs. Bradley-Coates? Did you, Mr.Storme?"

Storme shook his head.

"I rarely read the papers," he replied with some embarassment, "and I — I really have heard but little about anything of interest in the city. My time is so taken up that I have but little to give the newspapers."

He said this in an awkward, stilted sort of manner, and as though he were trying to give an explanation he felt was needed.

"Oh, it wasn't in the paper," interposed the woman. "They kept it out. But one night just a week or so ago, as Mr. and Mrs. Bradley-Coates were eating dinner in their own house — 'in their own house, mind you" — this, as though it would have been quite a matter of course had they been in somebody else's house — "while they were eating dinner they heard some sort of a noise outside, and she looked over her husband's shoulder, and there was a man's face staring into the room.

"She couldn't see the face well, because his coat collar was turned up and the lower part was entirely concealed. He disappeared at once. They called the servants and raised an alarm, but they couldn't find the man.

"And later they found the ivy vine on the side of the house all torn and broken, and the marks of feet around the window, but they never found the man."

"Wasn't anything taken?" asked somebody.

The woman smiled. She had been waiting for that inquiry.

"Nothing much," she replied, "only every bit of jewelry that Mrs. Bradley-Coates had in the house — and you know what that means. You know how much she wore. Nobody knows how much they were worth — certainly a fortune in themselves."

She stopped suddenly.

"Why — why — Ethel, what's the matter?"

They all turned and looked at a pretty girl who sat with wide open mouth and staring eyes, her gaze fixed upon the window.

"Oh!" exclaimed the girl, shivering, her face growing paler every second. "I'm so scared. Just as you were talking I looked at the window, and there outside — there — there — there — "

She pointed wildly with her hand, and then reeled against her neighbor and fainted dead away.

Storme sprang to the window, threw it open, and looked out.

There was nothing to be seen. Every thing was quiet.

Storme and two other men stepped outside and investigated. They found nothing at least suspicious.

In the meantime the servants had ransacked the house from top to bottom, and found no one. Miss Dumont's jewels were intact.

The dinner was resumed. The girl who had fainted concluded, with the rest, that she had been scared and that the whole thing was the result of her imagination. Order was restored, and the subject of the burglaries dropped.

Only one man had the right of the affair, and his conversation on the corner of the street explained it.

"By George!" exclaimed Mr. Burke, for it was he. "But I had a narrow escape. Somebody saw me lookin' in the window, and they pretty near nabbed me. That would be 'a' been a good thing."

He waited a few minutes to determine whether there was any effort at pursuit, and then went on:

"But he's there, all right, all right he's there, and he won't get away without Jimmy Burke astern. Y... can place your bottom dollar on that, Strumpy, to any tune you please."

There was a second interruption at the Dumont place.

"A note for Mr. Storme," announced the butler.

Storme took and read it hastily.

Then he looked at his watch.

"I — I am called away," he exclaimed. "It's half past eleven, and I must go. I'm sorry to — "

He made his apologies and slipped out. Miss Dumont followed him.

"What — what's the matter?" she inquired anxiously.

"I don't know," he replied. "I thought tonight that I would be free.

Here is the note; you may read it if you will."

She started as she looked at it. Then she read it. It was as follows:

My Dear Storme:

Be at the Iroquois Club as 12 o'clock if possible. Some friends of yours will be there between twelve and half past two. Sorry to trouble you. Imperative.

The note was unsigned.

"What does it mean?" she inquired.

"I don't know, little girl. It's part of the general scheme of duties I must perform for a while yet, until—until I throw them up altogether."

"I am sorry you — you must go," she went on, in a puzzled tone.

"So am I, Helen," returned Storme, "and I have to leave you unprotected. These robberies that they talked about tonight are serious. It ... You must be careful to keep the ... locked up. If if anything should ... pen — " He turned pale as he spoke. "If — if anything should happen to you, I don't know what I'd do."

She looked up into his eyes with a reassuring smile.

"You need not fear for me," she returned. "We are safe here The coachman can be summoned in an instant, and William, our old butler, sleeps down stairs One of the maids is on the same floor with me and within calling distance

"My aunt sleeps in the front room, and I sleep in one of the back ones—the one at the corner—" she indicated it with a gesture — " and the street lights shine upon it all night long. Our house is well exposed, and we've never had any trouble, and we never expect to, either. Nothing will happen — nothing at all."

Storme bowed.

"I sincerely trust not," he said gravely.

"You will come tomorrow?" she asked as he prepared to leave.

"I will come tomorrow," he replied. And then he went. After he had left she discovered that she had unwillingly retained possession of the note. She threw open the door and called after him, but to no purpose — he had gone.

She closed the door and stood uncertainly beneath the light and read the note again.

A troubled expression settled upon her face. She remained in an attitude of hesitation for an instant, and then, instead of returning to her guests, she ran lightly up the stairs to her room.

It was a singular thing that as long as she had known Storme, Helen Dumont had received from him but two letters. Both had come within the past few weeks.

She opened a drawer and took the letters out. She opened them and compared them carefully with the ... does it all mean — what does it mean?" she exclaimed.

For she found that the note of tonight was written in the same hand as were the other two — in the handwriting of H. Stanleigh Storme.

"What does it mean?" she cried again.

And then she went down stairs.

CHAPTER IX

The Man among the Shrub.

Storme plunged hastily down the front steps, turned to the right and disappeared in the darkness. To three men, however, he did not disappear — they followed him and kept him well in sight. This time he pursued no devious course, but headed straight for the Iroquois Club, which he reached and entered with alacrity.

The three men waited for him outside. They stood where they could see without being seen. Once more they tramped upon his trail.

Up in the Dumont house the guests were leaving. The fainting spell at the table had cast an air of gloom upon the crowd, and Storme's departure had acted as a sort of signal for the premature termination of the modest festivities.

One by one the guests departed and left Miss Dumont alone.

Half an hour later the lights on the ground floor were extinguished. Half an hour after that the lights upstairs went out.

The whole house was dark. It was a cloudy night, and a sultry one. There was no moon.

Helen Dumont did not retire—she was in no mood to sleep. Instead, she took a seat by an open window and thought and thought.

Outside in the garden, concealed by the shrubbery that surrounded the house, there stood a man — an unseen man.

THE PROBLEM OF FARM HELP.

A sixteen-year-old immigrant, who pleaded guilty to stealing a bicycle, was about to receive sentence in Brantford, when a farmer named Abraham Edwards came forward and offered to give the boy work, with wages running from $125 to $150 a year and board. Magistrate Ball very wisely allowed the boy to go, with a warning. Abraham Edwards must take rank as a social reformer who has the courage of his convictions.

There is a very general complaint among Ontario farmers that they cannot obtain help: and boys and men who refuse to accept the offers of farmers are accused of lameness. In fairness it must be remembered that there is another side to the story. There are well authenticated instances of ill-treatment of friendless boys by Ontario farmers, and it does not take many of such cases to give the whole farming community a bad name with immigrants. Those who feel the need of help on the farms ought to do their utmost to remove the reproach, and have punishment meted out to employers who do not treat their helpers fairly. Allowance should also be made for the inexperience of many of the newcomers. If you want to coax a city boy "back to the land," you must not laugh at him because he does not know how to harness a horse.

HARVEST HANDS NEEDED.

From the Moose Jaw News.

From present indications there will soon go up from the prairie country the cry, "The harvest is great, but the laborers are few."

Good judges, men who have seen crops grow in the West for a quarter of a century or more, say that a crop of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat is quite within the estimate. This means a crop eighty-five per cent. greater than last year. Think of the demands which such an increased yield will make upon the harvesting facilities of the country. And wheat is only one portion of the crop. Add to this the yield of several other grains and one begins to realize how great an undertaking the harvesting of the aggregate crop will be.

It is further to be remembered that owing to the abundance of moisture, which has made growth rapid, the crop will contain an unusual amount of straw, which will render necessary the employment of a larger number of laborers than is usually required. It is evident that [illegible] hands will be required.

[illegible] a much larger number of farm laborers will be required this year. The great question is, where are they to be had? In all departments of industry the cry for men goes up, so that if the demands of agriculture are to be met satisfactorily the Provincial Government must exert itself to the utmost to bring into the Province an adequate supply of labor. Hardly fewer than 22,000 harvest

What everybody with an ounce of common sense is on the alert for these days is a sound INVESTMENT and there is as much difference between an investment and a speculation as there is between London and Hong-Kong, although we all don't realize this.

• • • •

Consequently when one takes a chance on a speculative proposition, mistaking it as an investment and comes out of the small end of the horn, he becomes pessimistic and with the tightening of his purse strings to extremes to keep the pennies in just naturally shuts the dollars out.

• • • •

Now then if there were no investors there would be no progress, and with no progress the community would mighty soon become stagnant.

• • • •

The foundation of America, was old Christopher Columbus, he had an idea but was short on ready cash, in other words he was what us modern day folks call a promoter. His idea was feasible, he found co-operation, his plans carried and YOU KNOW THE REST.

• • • •

Like Columbus we are all Pioneers. Not out for our health, but to make money. No man ever saved more than a competence on a salary; few do that. To get a footing on "Easy Street" you have to invest. DOLLARS don't grow in your pockets or in a stocking. They must be put to work. Old Russell Sage said:

"Plant a few in a new country and see how fast they grow."

That's what we are trying to impress on you now and here is the biggest opportunity of this kind that is likely to knock at your door.

• • • •

We are the Pioneers of the fruit and vegetable canning enterprise in the Okanagan Valley and earnestly invite you to co-operate with us.

• • • •

Men at the head of affairs of this corporation are the best known and most highly esteemed gentlemen in British Columbia.

• • • •

Mr. Albert McKillop, our President, has a world wide reputation in the Timber and Timber Land World. (See R. G. Dunn).

• • • •

Mr. Wesley A. Blair, our Secretary and Treasurer, is also Cashier of the Canadian Customs, being the Government's most trusted employee. He handles on an average of $30,000.00 every commercial day of the year, and it was his fertile mind that first saw the possibilities of Canneries on the Coast, in-as-much as tens of thousands of dollars duty pass through his hands for American goods yearly. Bear in mind that there is a 2½c per pound duty on all canned stuff and RECIPROCITY or no RECIPROCITY that will stand.

• • • •

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

• • • •

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners Ltd., from doing the same.

• • • •

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—site of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

• • • •

Now, then, be up and thinking.

• • • •

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

• • • •

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

• • • •

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

• • • •

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

• • • •

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

• • • •

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

• • • •

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when opportunities like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

• • • •

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

• • • •

Although capitalised at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

• • • •

This is a gilt-edge home file, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

• • • •

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

BY-LAW NUMBER 1555

A By-law to fix the assessment of The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited).

Passed the third day of October, 1910.

Whereas The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) has represented to the Council of the City of Peterborough that it is the only manufacturing concern in the City of Peterborough engaged in the manufacture of locks and other articles manufactured by it, and has to compete with manufacturers in the same line of business in other places who have received and are enjoying Municipal assistance, making it difficult for the said Company to meet such competition, and has applied to the Council for a fixed assessment on the real estate, plant and business assessment of the said Company in the City of Peterborough at the sum of $25,000, and the said Council has agreed thereto and to pass this by-Law for that purpose, subject to the confirmation thereof by the Legislature.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-Law shall take effect upon and only upon the confirmation thereof by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, and upon the said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited), executing an agreement not to oppose the construction of any work as a local improvement abutting or fronting on, or the cost or part of the cost of which might be assessed or charged against the property in Section 2 hereof described, or any part thereof, that the said Council may desire to construct under the provisions of the Municipal Act relating to local improvements.

2. The assessment of the following lands in the City of Peterborough owned, occupied and used by The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) and being Lot Number Four north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, and that part of Lot Number Three north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, described as follows:—Commencing on the western limit of the said Lot Number Three, at a point seventy-seven feet six inches north from the south-west angle thereof; thence northerly along the said western limit of the said lot to the northern limit thereof; thence easterly along said northern limit eighteen feet; thence south and parallel to the western limit of said lot to a point seventy-seven feet six inches north of said Simcoe Street; thence westerly and parallel to the southern limit of the said lot to the place of beginning while used exclusively for the manufacturing purposes of the Company, or the part so used for such manufacturing purposes, and the buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures thereon, and the business assessment thereof on which taxes are to be levied, shall be fixed and remain fixed while the same are so used, and while at least an average of one hundred hands are employed therein for at least ten months of each year, at the sum of $25,000 for a period of ten years from the first day of January, 1911, and the return and oath of the assessor or assessors in respect thereof shall be amended accordingly, but the same shall, for school purposes, be and remain liable to assessment and the payment of school taxes and rates to as full an extent as if this By-Law had not been passed, and the assessment for school purposes and the school rates and taxes shall be made, levied and collected thereon in accordance with the provisions of the general law in that behalf, and the said lands shall also be liable for all frontage and local improvement assessments, rates and taxes that are now or may hereafter be charged against the same, and any buildings on the said lands not used exclusively for the business of the Company, and the land appurtenant to same shall not be included in the fixed assessment hereunder, but such buildings and land, while not used as aforesaid, shall be assessed as provided by the Assessment Act then in force; provided, however, that if the said Company shall at any time within the said term of ten years fail or neglect to operate and carry on the said manufacturing establishment substantially to the capacity thereof, and therein to employ at least an average of one hundred hands during at least ten months in each year, then such fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates on the said lands, buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures and on the business assessment thereof shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed; provided always that if the failure to carry on the said business is due to strikes or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures by fire or tempest, the time during which the said business shall so cease to be carried on in consequence of such strikes, or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures (not exceeding in either case one year) shall not be taken as a failure or neglect to carry on the said business, so as to disentitle the said Company to such fixed assessment.

3. The said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) shall, prior to the first day of March in each year, file with the City Clerk a statutory declaration, made by an officer of the Company, who shall therein state his knowledge of the facts, proving that the said Company has complied with and is observing all the terms, conditions and provisions of this By-Law, and on the neglect of the said Company to furnish such declaration it shall be prima facie taken that such terms, conditions and provisions have not been performed, observed and kept, and the said fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed.

(Sgd.) S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

Dogs.

Dogs were formerly indigenous to the indigent, but, since the advent of dog licenses, whereby a dog, without a maid or a valet, is presumed to be guilty until it is proved innocent of shot, they have been grafted on family trees, with their own separate heraldry as substitutes for children, thereby furnishing considerable consolation for race suicide.

Dogs are divided into two great classes — pedigreed and verdigreed. Verdigreed are of two kinds — mad dogs and dogs. Pedigreed are of several kinds, chief among which are watch dogs and sheep-dogs. Watch-dogs are so called because they are small enough, and usually cranky enough, to be carried around in the place of watches by people who have plenty of time. Sheep-dogs are so called because they are led around by sheepish-looking people.

These dogs are considered the handsomest by connoisseurs which look the ugliest to other people.

Challenge the Judge.

It was a case in an Irish court, and, the prisoner seeming hard to satisfy, juryman after juryman was asked to leave the box. However, all things come to an end, even in Ireland, and at last the swearing of the jury was completed. And then the prisoner leaned over the dock and sought the ear of his counsel.

"The jury's all right now, I think," he whispered; "but ye must challenge the judge. I've been convicted under him sivtral times already, and maybe he's beginnin' to have a prejudice."

Sophistry of a Sophist.

A certain archbishop, when asked woman to misstate her age, replied:

"A lie may be defined as a statement made by one rational being to another rational being, with the intent to deceive. Now, as no rational being would think of asking a woman her age with the expectation of being answered truthfully, one of the elements of the lie is lacking, and the woman's statement cannot, strictly speaking, be defined as such."

Australia has Tallest Tree.

Australia claims to have the tallest tree in the world. It has long been thought that to California belongs this distinction, but, while California trees are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to Australia's eucalyptus trees. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The tallest tree in California yet discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340ft high Australia's record gum tree can beat this by 140ft.

SOME REMARKABLE INSURANCE.

Lloyds Underwriters Will Take All Kinds of Risks.

Some remarkable underwriting business in fancy risks have been done by Lloyd's in connection with the coronation. Large insurances have been effected by traders whose interests are bound up with the coronation, and ten per cent has been paid to cover a claim should the ceremony not take place before the end of the year. In one or two cases policies have been taken out on the joint lives of the King and Queen until the end of the year, at the rate of four guineas per cent. Whilst a "Royal Family" risk has been accepted, insuring the lives of the King and the Queen and their children for the same period, the premium in this instance being ten guineas per cent. A possible change of route for the coronation procession has also come within the speculative scope, though the premiums are small.

To pay a loss if there is a general election before March 31, 1912, twenty-five guineas per cent is quoted, and five per cent has been accepted to cover the payment of a claim should Mr. Lloyd George become prime minister on or before December 31 next. This risk has been written several times, but the amounts involved are not large.

The next budget has also been the basis of speculative business of this nature at Lloyd's.

The last rate quoted to pay a loss in the event of the duty on sugar being abolished was twenty guineas per cent, whilst several policies to cover a reduction in the tea duty have been taken out at twenty-five guineas per cent, the equivalent premium for coffee and cocoa being thirty-five guineas per cent. The possibility of an increase in the cost of licenses is apparently considered remote, seeing that a policy for this risk can be got at twenty per cent.

By far the largest amount of speculation has, however, been done in connection with the income tax, and a rate as high as fifty guineas per cent has been charged on a policy to pay a total loss only in the event of no alteration being made in the present charges.

THE CHOICE OF DEATH.

Condemned Murderers Prefer Shooting to Hanging.

Why do condemned murderers prefer shooting in preference to hanging? Since the State of Utah passed a law giving convicts this choice, Arthur Pratt, warden of the Utah State prison, has not had one who would go to the gallows. On one occasion a murderer refused to make a choice, and the judge sentenced him to be hanged.

"Utah has a law which allows a condemned murderer to choose either hanging or shooting as a mode of dying," said Warden Pratt. "This work is done by the sheriffs of each county, but in the penitentiary yard. So far we have not had a man who has chosen hanging. Once a murderer refused to make a choice, and the judge sentenced him to be hanged. Shooting is the more humane. It is painless and instantaneous. The condemned man is led to the prison yard, seated on a chair, and, if he desires, is blindfolded. Five men armed with rifles are then marched to within ten paces of the man. Four of the rifles contain ball cartridges. The fifth has a blank shell. A target is pinned over the heart of the condemned man, all five guards take careful aim, and at a signal the volley is fired. The ordeal is over in a few moments, whereas in hanging the suspense and suffering last for many minutes."

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual work will be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

BRITISH STANDARD BEARER.

Lieutenant Harrison, the tallest officer in the British Army, will carry the standard of the Royal Horse Guards Blue in the Coronation procession. The standard was presented to the Blues by King William on August 12th, 1831, Queen Adelaide's birthday. The last time it was carried was the first Jubilee of Queen Victoria, when the Queen went from Slough to Windsor.

AFRICANS LIKE UNIFORMS.

Much money is made out of castoff police uniforms. Quantities are bought by African traders and exported to various parts of the "Dark Continent," where they are exchanged for palm-oil, ivory, skins, and other merchandise. It is by no means an uncommon sight to see a swarthy savage dressed in the uniform of a policeman, and wearing the regulation helmet of the force.

Stories of the Prince of Wales.

Many quaint and amusing anecdotes are related of the Prince of Wales as a small child, one being that he and his sister and brothers were invited out to tea at some Court lady's house, and when the hour for departure came he could nowhere be found to say good-bye to his hostess.

On investigation it was discovered that he had hurried downstairs alone to secure what he considered his proper place in the carriage.

It is also reported of him that, on his first attending afternoon church one Sunday, he remembered how often he had been told to thank his entertainers for their hospitality; so on this occasion he looked anxiously about for someone to be grateful to. The only person who came handy was the verger, who, rather to his discomfiture, had his hand grasped by the little prince, and was informed in a childish voice:—

"Thank you so much for a very pleasant afternoon!"

NOVEL ATHLETIC MACHINE.

New Invention to Test Runners as They Run Around the Track.

A novel invention in the shape of an apparatus for automatically taking measurements of the work of track athletes at all points in a race has just been installed on the running track in the Robinson gymnasium, Kansas University.

The machine, which is the first of its kind, and the invention of Dr. Naismith, director of physical culture, consists of small bamboo sticks, located along the track so as to divide the course into quarters.

The sticks project over the track and are touched by the breast of the runner as he passes. The bamboos are connected to a make-and-break electrical machine, which transmits the touch of the runner to a kymograph, which holds a lampblacked paper on which marks are made. A clock is used in connection with the kymograph for purposes of timing.

THE FIRST MENU CARD.

Started By a Duke in Brunswick in 1561.

At a dinner given by Duke Henry of Brunswick in 1541 he was seen to every now and then consult a long slip of paper, which reposed at the side of his plate. One of the duke's guests asked what the paper was for. He explained that it was a sort of a programme or catalogue of the dishes he had commanded from the cook. "To the intent that if some delicacy which especially appealed to his appetite were marked for a later stage in the repast, he might carefully reserve his appetite for it." The simplicity and utility of the idea at once took the fancy of the duke and the menu card from that moment became an institution. The new fashion was so much admired it travelled far and near, and was adopted in England and France at once.

MUSCULAR CHRISTIANITY.

Teaches Bible Sunday Boxes Monday.

Although he parts his name in the middle, the man who would "kid" A. J. Drexel-Biddle upon the fact are few and far between.

Biddle is as complex a character as you will find in "Who's Who." He preaches, encourages and teaches boxing and instructs the largest and one of the most successful bible classes in Philadelphia.

"Anthony J." to the members of the fashionable set, he is "Tony" to a host of young athletes who have found in him a friend, time and again. His private gymnasium has permitted many young lovers to train who otherwise would not have been able to do so.

Biddle is an unique character in the religious world and the success which has attended his work prove that his theories are sound, even if a radical departure from accepted idea.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,-- is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt-would buy Montreal Real Estate ?

To the men of good judgment,— these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

JERUSALEM'S PUBLIC OVENS.

One Cave-like Vaults Running Below Street Level.

There are public bakeries in Jerusalem. The dough is kneaded at home and carried in great lumps to the public ovens. These are to be found in almost every street. They are cave-like vaults, running down below the street level. At the back of each vault is the oven, with a sort of well before its open door. In the well stands the baker, with a long paddle in his hand, upon which he puts in and takes out the loaves.

The oven floor is marked out in blocks, so that the baking of each family is put on a separate block. The loaves, which are about an inch thick, are of the size of a tea plate and have a hole in the centre. The baker makes them from the dough, bakes them, and returns them hot from the oven to the customer. He receives two cents for each half dozen loaves, or he may instead take a toll of one loaf for each dozen. Before starting the baking he greases the floor of the oven with olive oil.

NEW PARAGRAPHS.

Electric carpets are the latest invention for the heating of rooms, the cost for one room being estimated at a halfpenny an hour.

In Corea marriage is even more important and essential for a man than it is for a woman, as, until a man be wed, he is a being of no account. If a father has not selected wives for his sons ere they reach the age of twenty he is considered worthless and neglectful.

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Felsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,500 times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

As Done in France.

"Some years ago," writes a well-known motorist, "I was being driven by a French friend of my acquaintance. He is as careful over his personal expenditure as he is reckless on his Panhard. I did not like the combination, but it is best to be tolerant to foreigners. Passing through a village near St. Albans we encountered a hen. She was stalking across the road like a conspirator one moment, and dead the next. She never knew what struck her. Adolphe, which is my friend's name, pulled up.

" 'It is useless to go to her assistance,' said I.

"But Adolphe jumped out of the car and went. I thought it very kind of him. He picked up the dead bird and came running back.

" 'Helas! she is not young,' he panted. 'But she will do well for no soup, no bouillon de poulet, tres delicat.'

" 'Good heavens, you're not going to take her home?'

" 'Mais certainement! Here she would be wasted. It is as we do in France. Vive la chasse!'

"I had heard that motorists were not popular in the French villages. From that day I have understood."

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have beenpresenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Mountezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties,

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal" Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

The Capital City of the Islands

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gauntlet to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks, churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Honna River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Honna River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300; one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Honna River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Masset Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 82 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been 32 years in Parliaments. He first entered the Quebec Legislature in 1871, being returned from the constituency of Arthabasca. He was there re-elected in 1874. Three years later he entered the Cabinet, with the Portfolio of Inland Revenue, but was defeated by a small majority, upon presenting himself for re-election. Quebec East then returned him. This constituency has been Sir Wilfrid's ever since.

Upon the successive retirements of Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Edward Blake, in 1887, our present Premier, became leader of the Liberal and then Opposition Party. When it came into power in 1896, he naturally became Prime Minister, which position he has so honorably held for such a long period.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was born on Nov. 20 at St. Lin in the county of Assomption. Here his father practiced his profession of land surveyor. His mother's maiden name was Marcelle Martineau. Sir Wilfrid being the only child. She died soon after his birth. In 1868 the Premier was married to Miss Zoe Lafontaine of Montreal.

As a man is the product of his education, let us consider what has aided in producing Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The motherless boy attended school in his native parish till the age of twelve. He was then sent to the Protestant School at New Glasgow for a year. Here he imbibed the first draughts of his splendid broadmindedness. From this school he went to L'Assomption College, remaining seven years. In 1861 he matriculated into McGill and graduated in law, being the valedictorian of his class.

No man in Canadian public life has received more attention at the hands of political calumniators. In forty years, however, no opponent has been so base as to utter a slander which touched his personal honor, the purity of his private life, or the righteousness of his character.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

CANADIANS AND THE STAGE.

Since the Governor-General instituted dramatic and musical competitions in this country, culture of the two great arts has made great strides and there is no doubt but that in the near future stars will arise to do credit to Canada, but our great actress, Margaret Anglin, was born before the days of inducement. This great exponent of the drama was born in that centre of political strife—the House of Commons—when her father was speaker in 1876. After a good education in Toronto and Montreal she entered the School of Dramatic Acting, of New York, making her professional debut at the early age of eighteen. Since then she has had many triumphs taking leading parts with E. H. Southern, Richard Mansfield and Henry Miller.

A Well-Known Westerner Tells of Suffering, Misery and Pain That He Cured With "Nerviline."

"A few weeks ago I ate some green vegetables and some fruit that was not quite ripe. It first brought on a fit of indigestion, but unfortunately it developed into hiccoughs, accompanied by nausea and cramps. I was dreadfully ill for two days—my head ached, and throbbed; I belched gas continually, and I was unable to sleep at night. A neighbor happened in to see me and urged me to try Nerviline. Well, I wouldn't have believed that NERVILINE STRENGTHENS any preparation WEAK could help so STOMACHS quickly. I took a teaspoonful of Nerviline in hot sweetened water, and my stomach felt better at once. I used Nerviline several times, and was completely restored."

The above is from a letter written by G. E. Braun, a well-known stockman and farmer near Lethbridge, Alta. Mr. Braun's favorable opinion of the high merit of Nerviline is shared by thousands of Canadians who have proved Nerviline is simply a marvel for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, nausea and stomach disorders. Safe to use, guaranteed to cure—you can make no mistake in keeping Nerviline for your family remedy. Large 25c bottles; five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Hole in Street.

Considerable speculation was caused by the digging which is being carried out at the corner of Aylmer and McDonell streets. The Times learns that the Peterborough Light and Power Company is doing the work, but that it will be finished to-morrow.

Y.M.C.A. Camp.

A final meeting will be held at the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow evening for the purpose of discussing arrangements for the Senior camp. All those who are interested are requested to be present. The boys now at camp maintain a discreet silence except that they are having a good time. It is said that one of the boys is writing a book about the camp.

Patriotism Bubbling Over.

The American flag which has been floating from the office of Mr. Leonard, American Consulate, George street, over Col. J. W. Miller's shoe store for a few days, has attracted some attention. The Times was informed that the American representatives in Canada were instructed to fly the flag during the coronation period, in honor of His Majesty King George V. Yesterday a citizen dropped into Col. Miller's store under considerable excitement, and demanded his authority for floating of the Yankee flag. Col. Miller explained the matter. The over zealous patriot immediately subsided.

Circulation Climbing Upwards.

It will be satisfactory to the many friends of The Times to learn that the circulation of the paper is steadily looking ahead and new names are being added daily. During the past ten days about 75 additional subscriptions have been received. Many of them from people living outside the city. One of these in transmitting his order, said: "I think The Times should be heartily supported on account of the fearless attitude in support of 'equal rights to all and special privileges to none.'"

The Times will be pleased to receive notice of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

The automobile of Dr. Scott, of this city created some excitement last night, outside of The Times Office, when a tire blew out. A car came from the garage and repaired the damage.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

FOOTBALL.

All Saints Hold Canadian General Electric.

Last night at the Brinton Carpet Works' grounds, the All Saints team gave the Canadian General Electric team the hardest game they have had this season.

The kick-off was at 7.15 and the Saints started right in for the money. The ground was very wet and consequently the ball was heavy, but the fur flew just the same. The first goal was scored by Shearman, the Saints outside left who sent a pretty one just under the bar. This caused the C.G.E. men to wake up with the result that they sent one under in a very fine long kick.

For the remainder of the half it was a case of back and forth with the advantage somewhat with the C.G.E. eleven.

In the second half the C.G.E. boys went in for business and for a few minutes it looked like rugby, so many went down on the wet field. The C.G.E. got a corner and then the pigskin came very near, but too high.

Allan of the C.G.E. took a dirty fall, but returned into the game right away. Mason, C.G.E., got a fight kick in the face, but was game enough to keep at it. Morality, All Saints, stopped a good one and came back with a kick that sent the ball out of danger.

The crowd got a little sore at one stage, but they didn't make any trouble.

Dawson, C.G.E., was laid out for a few seconds, but he came right back.

The game was clean from the start to the finish. Thank to the way in which Referee Harries kept things going.

No scores were made in the second half, which made the final score

YESTERDAY'S STORM DID MUCH DAMAGE

Yesterday was the worst rain-storm in several months. The gale which blew the rain with such terrific violence soon compelled all pedestrians to leave the streets.

A window was blown in to the room of a George street house and the flying glass slightly injured one of the children. Two power wires were broken at the corner of George and Brock streets. The effect was to completely tie up all street railway service in that part of the city. The Times spoke to Conductor No. 22, and was told that the cars were held up for an hour. They then ran at half speed.

Reports have come to The Times of great damage to grain around Peterborough by the heavy rain beating down the standing grain. Many farmers who left their hay in the rows will have the pleasure of shaking it out again. Trees were blown down on several of our streets, and in some cases, seriously interfering with the passage of pedestrians. The storm broke several windows at the Quaker Oats factory.

EIGHT KILLED DURING MEXICAN ELECTION RIOTS.

More Than Fifteen Others were Wounded—British Flag Raised.

Oaxaca, Mexico, July 10.—Eight men were killed and more than fifteen wounded during a political riot in Ocotlan, Saturday night. Partisans of Benito Juarez, one of the two candidates for governor, began the rioting by leading an attack upon mercantile establishments of the Diaz brothers, relatives of General Felix Diaz, the opposition candidate for governor.

Two companies of soldiers were sent to Ocotlan to garrison the town. During the fighting the house of Seckbaleh, an English firm, raised the British flag.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WRONG SORT.

Perhaps Plain Old Meat, Potatoes and Bread May Be Against You For a Time.

A change to the right kind of food can lift one from a sick bed. A lady in Weldon, Ill., says:

"Last spring I became bed-fast with severe stomach trouble accompanied by sick headache. I got worse and worse until I became so low I could scarcely retain any food at all, although I tried about every kind.

"I had become completely discouraged, and given up all hope and thought I was doomed to starve to death, until one day my husband, trying to find something I could retain, brought home some Grape-Nuts.

"To my surprise the food agreed with me, digested perfectly and without distress. I began to gain strength at once. My flesh (which had been flabby) grew firmer, my health improved in every way and every day, and in a very few weeks I gained 20 pounds in weight.

"I liked Grape-Nuts so well that for four months I ate no other food, and always felt as well satisfied after eating as if I had sat down to a fine banquet.

"I had no return of the miserable sick stomach nor of the headaches, that I used to have when I ate other food. I am now a well woman, doing all my own work again, and I feel that life is worth living.

"Grape-Nuts food has been a God-send to my family; it surely saved my life; and my two little boys have thrived on it wonderfully." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ontario.

XXXIV NO. 153 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY JULY 13 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH CELEBRATED IN COBOURG

Yesterday was the greatest day in the history of Cobourg. Orangemen from the towns and surrounding district for miles around gathered at the Lakeshore town. The place was literally covered with orange and blue. Everywhere it was in evidence, on hotels, stores and private houses.

All morning the lodges poured into Cobourg. They came by train, in wagons, and in some cases on foot.

It was a happy crowd. The boys were out to celebrate the Glorious Twelfth and they did it right royally. The parade was the largest ever seen in Cobourg. Lodge after lodge swept by, great and small, young and old. The parade stretched past the range of the eye and it was estimated that it was at least two miles in length.

So many of the lodges were in resplendent attire that the work of the judges was particularly difficult. In fact, the issue was left in doubt. At the time of going to press, The Times learns from latest reports that the Duke of Manchester Lodge, No. 50, had won first prize, $15.00. This lodge has won all competitions in years past and no doubt have done so this year. The second prize was won by No. 46 of Fraserville and the members certainly earned it.

The Fraserville Lodge was the first to reach Peterborough. They marched up George street headed by Armstrong's band. This band is fortunate in having Mr. Rickab as drum major. He is a South African verteran and is a first class man to head a band.

The Peterborough Orangemen left at 9.30 by special train and returned about 6.30.

BELMONT CLUB REGATTA A SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Last night the Belmont Club held a very successful regatta.

The races were as follows:

Gents open single, 300 yards—1st Percy and Bert Stock.

2nd—Gallagher and Brown. The prize was a box of cigars.

Crab race—This was very funny. Five entered, but three of these fouled and the paddlers had to swim. One young man paid more attention to his cigarette than his canoe, with the result that cigarette and smoker went in the drink.

Percy Stocks won the paddle in this event.

Mixed doubles, open, 250 yards—1st, Miss and Mr. McMartin; 2nd, Miss Merrill and Mr. R. Hunter.

Prizes—A belt and box of candy.

Club Singles—This race was very close. 1st, C. Leech; 2nd Gallagher.

Prize—Club pin.

Ladies' double, 250 yards—1st, Misses Cavanah and Merrill; 2nd Misses McMartin and Odette.

Prize—Candy.

Club doubles—In this race all came up on the float in a bunch. 1st, Mr. L. Fitzgerald; 2nd, Mr. E. C. Boswell.

Prize—Cigars.

Ladies' singles—This was another very close race. 1st, Miss M. Odette.

Prize—Box of candy.

Gents open singles—The winner of this event won because the second man had to back water on account of a launch being in the course. 1st, Mr. G. McMartin; 2nd, Mr. B. Stock.

Prize—Pipe.

The races were hindered by the swell from passing launches. These boats gave the officials considerable trouble. After the races a flotilla of decorated canoes was towed past the club by Mr. W. Cochrane's launch. The first prize went to Mr. H. Burns whose canoe was decorated with the club colors of mauve and purple, and was rigged with lanterns and pennants. This prize was well gained, for Mr. Burns had taken much trouble with his canoe.

After the races a dance was given by the members. Badges were sold to entitle the dancers to the floor. A feature of the event was the attendance of Mr. H. B. Cowan, an ex-Canadianchampion.

The judges were Messrs. J. Lang and C. G. Graham. Mr. Cowan was starter.

PETERBOROUGH IS GROWING

The latest census reports, unofficial, indicate that Peterborough's population will be over 19,000. The official returns are expected to be out soon.

SUFFERS FROM THE STORM

The Times learns from out of town subscribers that the recent storms have caused more damage than was reported in this paper at the date of the gales. Mr. Redmond Carey reported that he was a witness of the fire at Mr. Michael Purdue's barn at Ennismore, which was destroyed together with a large quantity of hay and grain. The damage is over $2000.

Mrs. Montgomery, of the Montgomery Hotel, received a slight shock, while in the house.

Mr. Albert Carpenter, of Otonabee, lost his barn by fire.

Mr. Louis Downer, Otonabee, lost four cattle.

Mr. Fred Cann Smith, lost a cow, which was struck by lightning.

Mr. John Elmhirst lost ten cattle from the same cause.

Mr. Johnson's barn was also damaged.

The most unfortunate gentleman was Mr. Vincent McCarty, Keene, who lost his barn, hay, chickens and a number of pigs. His loss is only partly covered by insurance.

A washout held up the freight traffic on the G.T.R. between Emily and Carven for some hours.

CHEAPER LIGHT FOR PETERBORO'

There is to be a reduction in the price of light for the citizens of this city.

The Peterborough Light and Power Company have adopted a system by which it is proposed to exempt such parts of the house as the bathroom, hallways, attics, basement, outside kitchen and verandahs, leaving only the actual living rooms of the house to be charged for.

A flat rate will be charged of 10 cents a month for each living room, with an additional charge of 3 cents a kilowat an hour. The present rate is 7 cents a kilowat an hour.

The change means the reduction of about 10 per cent. to the consumer, besides allowing for such electrical appliances as the consumer may be using which are to be included in the general reduction.

In Toronto, where about fifteen times as much power is used as here, the rates will thus be about the same asPeterborough will have in the near future.

THE WEATHER.

Fine and cool.

MANY LIVES LOST IN FIRE AT PORCUPINE CASUALTIES TO RUN INTO HUNDREDS

Every Hour Adds to the Horror of the Holocaust in New Ontario--One Whole Family Wiped Out--Doctors Rushed to Scene--Probably 4,000 Persons Homeless

North Bay, July 12.—Thirty lives are now known to have been lost at Porcupine, including Captain White and family at West Dome, and many have been injured.

The disaster is terrible, and everything now brings worse reports.

A hospital train is now on the way to Iroquois Falls.

It is believed the casualties will number hundreds.

Cobalt, July 12.—New Ontario, particularly the district between North Bay and Cochrane, is appalled by the extent of the forest fire losses since Sunday. Thousands of people are homeless in Cochrane, Pottsville, and South Porcupine, which have been completely destroyed, and are in immediate need of relief, while the monetary losses probably reach $2,000,000. In Pottsville one hundred buildings were destroyed, in Cochrane one hundred and fifty, and in South Porcupine well onto two hundred buildings.

What is needed at present is relief. The T. & N. O. Railway Commission have already dispatched a train from North Bay with provisions, while towns along the route are also sending relief. All the women and children of the town are being taken south on this morning's train, while the men will be left until better train facilities can be sent to bring them out. Last night the sufferers slept in buildings belonging to the Railway and in box cars, round house, etc.

EVERYBODY PRAYS FOR RAIN.

What everyone is praying for is rain. If it does not come immediately the fire loss will be much greater. Cobalt, Haileybury, and Liskeard are pretty well out of the fire zone, but the smoke is something fierce at the present time. One can scarcely see a hundred yards on any side. North of these places fires are raging throughout the farming section. At Earlton several thousand dollars' worth of pulp wood has been destroyed, while between Englehart and Charlton many cords of it are now on fire.

The weather is much cooler to-day and it looks like rain. Rain is the only thing that can check the fire. The total fire loss from Sunday to date, including Kelso, Cochrane, South Porcupine Golden City, easily amounts to two million dollars. At Kelso and Golden City the loss is only partial.

COCHRANE LOSS $500,000.

All that was left in Cochrane this morning was the Transcontinental offices, T. and N. O. agents' house, Johnson's pool room, the Imperial Bank, Jenner's store, McKinnon's lumber office, and the Government railway buildings, consisting of the station, round house and yards. None of the freight cars were lost in the fire.

WANT MURDER CHARGE MADE MANSLAUGHTER

Cornwall, July 12.—The preliminary hearing of Farquhar McRae, charged with the murder of William Shaw, is set for Friday. Mr. R. A. Pringle, K.C., his counsel, is silent as to the ultimate defence that will be offered, but says that no evidence will be offered at the preliminary hearing, unless in the attempt to secure the reduction of the charge from murder to that of manslaughter.

Mr. Donald R. McDonald, Conservative, M.P.P. for Glengarry, and a cousin of Farquhar McRae, and Duncan McMartin of Montreal, are among those who have offered to go bail.

If the prisoner, who has always been used to an out-of-door life, is confined in jail, he fears the results. "They will not find it hard to take me away if I am left here till October," he said. He had been a tall, large limbed man, but walks with a stoop, due to an accident in the Michigan lumber woods when a young man.

The week-end, before the shooting, he was at Smith's Falls, on his way home from a convention of the Sons of Scotland, at London. He hesitated whether to go to some friends, who were camping nearby, or to go straight home. He went home, only to get into the present entanglement.

EIGHT MILLION POPULATION

Ottawa, July 12.—Returns from the census are coming in fast, but while few cities are complete, the figures of many constituencies are such that it will not be surprising if the aggregate population of Canada is found to be largely in excess of the estimate of eight millions

West Toronto, for instance, has increased from 44,000 ten years ago to over 100,000. It is stated that no detailed figures will be available for a fortnight or so. So far 180 extra clerks have been taken on.

TWEED FARMER SHOT HIMSELF?

Isaac Carscallen Found With Bullet-Hole Through His Brain.

Tweed, July 12.—Isaac Carscallen, a bachelor farmer, was found dead with a bullet hole through his brain yesterday morning.

It looks as if he has shot himself while sitting on a stone pile under a tree in the lane, for blood was found there and a 32 calibre Smith and Wesson revolver lay about three feet away. Death was not instantaneous, for he appears to have walked in a semi-circle to about thirty feet away, where he fell. The bullet passed into the head near the right temple.

MICHIGAN TOWNS ARE IN ASHES

And Nearly Two Thousand People are Entirely Destitute.

Bay City, Mich., July 12.—The Twin towns of Oscoda and Ausable, opposite each other, at the mouth of the Ausable River, and having a combined population of 1,800 people, are in ashes while such of its inhabitants as have not escaped on board the steamer Kongo, or the Detroit and Mackinac relief trains, are shelterless in the swamps and fields about the still burning towns.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

THE BATTLE OF THE BOYNE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Suppose the Battle of the Boyne had been lost, and King William and his army captured, what would have happened?

An Orangeman.

CANNOT SIT ON THE FENCE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The time has now arrived when it will be necessary for all parliamentary candidates to declare themselves. In this connection I would like to ask Mr. F. D. Kerr, the Liberal candidate for East Peterborough, where he stands on the two most important questions before the people, viz: Ne Temere and bilingual schools. There are other questions of public import, but these two are away above all others in public interest. It will not avail for Mr. Kerr to say that Ne Temere is a church matter, and therefore, does not concern the general public. It is the duty of Parliament to provide a marriage law that cannot be attacked by any church or creed. Also to amend the criminal code so that priest or preacher who enters a home and separates man and wife, may be punished. What do you say to this, Mr. Kerr?

As to bilingual schools, Mr. Kerr will probably try to evade responsibility by stating that this matter does not come under the authority of the Dominion Parliament, but belongs to the Local Legislature. All the same we would like to know where Mr. Kerr stands, and where his sympathies lie in regard to it. I know that I speak for hundreds of voters in the riding in demanding that he should make his views clear on these and similar matters. He cannot flirt with the Church of Rome and ride the Protestant horse at the same time. The day for doing this has gone by. If he refuses to come out fearlessly in regard to such matters he cannot expect the support of the Protestant electors.

This applies with equal force to Mr. Sexsmith, the Conservative member, and also to Mr. Ed. Hawthorne, and Mr. Thompson, the Liberal and Conservative candidates for the Legislature.

Make up your minds, gentlemen, that you cannot set on the fence—you must declare your attitude in regard to these, as well as all other matters.

An Asphodel Elector.

The Peterborough Tennis players, who were to have left town for the tournament, have put off their trip until Saturday.

FIRE RANGER SHOT HIMSELF

Demented by the Heat He Took His Own Life at Moon River.

Bala, Ont., July 12.—Albert May, middle aged, who has been fire ranging in the township of Freeman, was found dead in a hut on Moon River, on Monday.

It is supposed that he became demented from the excessive heat while fighting the fire and that in this state he shot himself with a revolver behind the ear. The last entry in his diary was, "Arrived eight. Am almost done with the heat." The paper was found upon which was written with here and there a word left out, "I take this opportunity to tell you that I am sick of it all, I am tired of life, good-bye all."

He was well known around Bala and was respected as a particularly faithful worker.

OFFICIALS BACK WIFE-SELLING

Man Sold His Better Half for $25. And Authorities Endorsed the Sale.

Moscow, July 12.—There is some prospect apparently, of wife-selling being established by authority of the local officials of rural Russia, unless the central government gets busy with an emphatic veto, for a precedent of recent date has been established.

Ivan Ladyshkin is a prominent man of Kagool in Bessarabia, but his cash is not always equal to his prominence. The other day he decided that he could dispense with his wife more readily than any other of his household goods, so he sold her over a glass of vodka, to a neighbor for $25.

He spent the money and then went out to get a regular divorce, so as to marry again as a preliminary to selling a second wife and making another $25. In the course of the hearing the court was handed an official document bearing the seals of the local authority, or communal board, certifying that the wife sale was well and truly connected on April 21 last. There is nothing missing on this weird official document. The signature of the mayor and his aldermen are there, as proofs of their acceptance of the barter of wives.

OBITUARY

At St. Joseph's Hospital last night, Mr. William O'Brien passed away. He had been a resident of this city for many years and was well known here and in the vicinity. The deceased was a member of the F. & S. He is survived by a wife, one son and two daughters.

The funeral will take place to-morrow from 465 Roger street, at 9 o'clock, to St. Peter's Cathedral.

PREVENTION

THE AIM OF MODERN MEDICINE.

To prevent disease, to keep people well, to teach them the laws of health and how to obey them—this is the aim and task of modern medicine. Reducing this to its personal application, it means that you should dislodge small ailments before they grow big.

In the liver, kidneys, stomach and bowels, we find the instrumentalities that principally maintain life. They are prone to minor interference, that can be easily corrected by taking a weekly dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. When they grow sluggish or to aid them in keeping active, do not wait until you have to keep brain and eye clear by the occasional use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Keep dark lines from under the eyes, the skin clear and smooth and flexible—all this you may do and more by the use of the most useful blood purifying and liver and kidney energizing pills, Dr. Hamilton's. That's the name of the best family medicine ever made. For stomach disorders, indigestion, biliousness and constipation, you are sure of cure by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

HIGH MARK FOR POTATOES

Winnipeg, July 12.—Potatoes reached the highest price on record in this city to-day, $2.40 a bushel being asked for old potatoes and $3.50 for new potatoes.

HOT STUFF FROM THE CATHOLIC REGISTER

The organ of the Roman Catholic Church in Ontario uses some pretty strong language every week, of which the following is a sample:

The Sentinel is a despicable rag that reeks with indecencies which should not be permitted to pass the post office of a self respecting country. What low creatures can feed on such pabulum?

* * * *

This is the serpent's trail of an article in the Montreal Daily Witness, which should speak more eloquently to our French Canadian brethren than columns of argumentation. The old Calvinistic crow does carrion ahead.

"Do you think he's honest?" was the question we put to one of his friends about Sam Blake's religious pretences last week. "Honest? Why, he doesn't believe a word of it," was the decided reply. A duffer like that deserves short shrift.

The various Methodist conferences have been vieing with one another in the recklessness of their resolutions against the "Ne Temere" Decree. Falsehoods of which Ananias would be ashamed have been embodied in these pronouncements, to the accompaniment of hand-clapping cheers, and singing, more in harmony with an aggregation of roysterers than a religious body of any type.

* * * *

Horatio Hocken, protagonist and patriot, managed to get the submerged element of Orangeism to declare at Winnipeg that there must be a new arrangement politicul with the order on top, a party pledged to the hilt to oppose the aggressions of Rome, and all too palpable influence in Canadian public life and one against which he and all good Orangemen were ready to fight and shed their good red blood in copious streams. Hence Doc. Sproule took fright and has gone from the headship, knowing Rome will not down. Sam Hughes was inclined as usual to make good his claim but he was at the Coronation. Doc. Pyne and Mr. Kemp were not sure how far insistence would suit, and Horatio himself knew his little game would be suspected if he went up and grabbed the bauble of office. So a good-looking, soldierly, harmless nonentrapper, Col. Scott by name was promoted to do the fighting. That other great Horatio, editor of John Bull, talks of this sort of bravery this week in a way Bro. Hooken might well listen to when he says: "We don't mind laying a banana against a gooseberry that when the war drums throb Mr. Thatcher (insert Hocken) won't hear them. We know these ridiculous persons, having been before in Ulster." It is all very ridiculous indeed.

Rev. C. E. Perry, alluding to the progress of the Catholic Church in Canada, said that Canada was sitting on a volcano. Canada should sit on him and at that it would be sitting on a gas-bag.

Cannon Cody is a great man! He is bold in imputation, but when his bluff is called he crawls into a hole, and when, like on the occasion of our recent challenge, it is a dirty hole, indeed, he seems to fit into surroundings admirably.

AN OLD TIME POSTER.

Mr. James Stewart Shows Times a Bill of 1864.

Mr. James Stewart, left with The Times copies of two posters issued by him from The Review office in the year 1864. The first poster announces that Mr. Stewart is retiring from business in Lakefield, and offers his entire stock of groceries, crockery, glassware, &c., at bargain prices. The second one refers to an Auction Sale of the balance of the stock, together with household effects, by Alex. McNeil, auctioneer, whom many of our older citizens will remember.

Mr. Stewart left soon after for Scotland, where he took up his residence for some years. He found his health not so good in the old land, so returned to Canada again, making his home in Peterborough. Mr. Stewart has visited his native land twenty times since the above occasion. He is hale and hearty and expects to pay the land o' the heather still another visit in the near future.

HE IS OUT TO SUCCEED

THE SCOT FINDS HIS WAY TO THE HIGH PLACES.

Writer In Ottawa Free Press Discusses the Method by Which the Canny Products of the Northern Race Manage to Get Into the Good Jobs—The Failures Are Kept Out of Sight.

An amusing article, said to be "by an Englishman," appears in The Ottawa Free Press. We quote these interesting extracts.

Not so very long ago I accepted the legend that the Scots were a superior race, with constitutions like iron, the product of standard porridge, and with brains made keen by an educational system unparalleled in the world.

Though at myself now. I could count upon the fingers of one hand the Scotsmen I know who take porridge in the morning—though the Scots are at the present day doing a roaring trade in selling porridge-making stuff to their neighbors.

As to their educational system, what success it has appears to be due to their greed. No one in Scotland will pay for the education of his children if he can get it off the rates. This is the true reason why the "Provost's loon" and the "scavenger's loon" sit side by side in the rate-supported schools, catch the measles from each other and imbibe the Scotchman's axiom of life that it is man's first duty to get the better of some one else.

Let us briefly examine the result of all this. We see Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen, those eminent cousins, starting life as cow-tenders, and ending by appropriating Canada. Sir John Houston Reid, the son of a Scottish parson, dropped down in Australia, became its Prime Minister, and is now its High Commissioner.

There is no English Church left. The Archbishop of Canterbury is a Scotsman, and so is the Archbishop of York, who was brought up a psalm-singing Calvinist, while Archdeacon Sinclair, of London, is president of the Caithness Society.

Turn to British politics. The Prime Minister only holds his position because he married a Scottish lady and was captured by a Scotch constituency. His predecessor, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, was a Scotsman, and Mr. Balfour, who was Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's predecessor, is a Scotsman. So is Lord Rosebery, another ex-Prime Minister. So also, by descent, was Mr. Gladstone. The Lord Chancellor is a Scotsman, and so is his probable successor, Mr Haldane, now Secretary of War. Mr John Burns is a Scotsman. The Chief Liberal Whip is a Scotsman.

Sir Edward Hamilton, Permanent Secretary to the Treasury, is Scotch. Sir Robert Hamilton Lang has for years controlled the finances of Turkey, while Mr. John Lavery, the artist, has got himself into almost every painters' society on the continent. Sir Alex Mackenzie, another tramp of the Caledonian road, is principal of the Royal College of Music, while Sir William McGregor, after annexing New Guinea to Great Britain, earned many other guineas as governor of various colonies. Sir Henry Babington Smith, Secretary to the postoffice, is, of course, a Scotsman, as is also Mr. Robert Henderson, secretary of the Board of Customs.

An Edinburgh man once visited London for the first time. On returning, he was asked what he thought of the English. "I did na' see them," he replied. "I only interviewed the heads of the departments."

What I have chiefly to complain of in the vast organization of Scots which exists in London, and has for its object what might be vulgarly called "downing the Englishman."

To the English nation the Scot is three times as deadly as the Jew. The Jew works alone; every Scot in London has one hundred and ninety-nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine other Scots at his back.

Let one Scot get a footing in a firm, and his countrymen flock to him. Let a Scot be chief of a department, and in effect a notice is posted on its door: "No Englishman need apply."

Where, it may be asked, are broken-down Scotsmen to be found in London? It suits the Scots' purpose to make people believe that they all succeed. Of course, they do not. Up one of the alleys off Fleet street there is a gloomy building where are locked up the secrets of the army of Scotsmen who have not sufficient brains, or are too great tipplers, to get on, however hard they may be pushed. Up this alley go the unemployable Scots, and their fellow-countrymen in the metropolis pay their fares home to Scotland, or in some other fashion get them out of the way. Failure is the only devil that Scotsmen dread. They hide away his victims.

Soot Gave Alarm.

Ingersoll, June 12—Spontaneous combustion is thought to have been the cause of a fire which early yesterday morning damaged the building and stock of Walley's drug store to the extent of probably $1,500 or $1,800.

Mrs. Orme, wife of W. H. Orme, photographer, whose studio and living apartments are over the drug store, wakened shortly before four o'clock to find the room filled with smoke. A baby, probably made restless by the smoke, wakened her and probably saved the lives of the whole family, as Mr. Orme was almost overcome by the smoke.

Wants to Leave Husband.

Montreal, June 13.—Mrs. Guiseppe de Lorenso, who disappeared mysteriously from her home at 755 St. James street on Monday last, and afterwards wrote to her mother saying that she was in the hands of a "black hand" gang, appeared at the court house on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of securing a separation from her husband.

Mrs. De Lorenso, who was accompanied by her two children, refused to give any explanation of her conduct. She said that she had not been outside of the city.

HOW HE GOT HIS BOW LEGS.

From the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Speaking of bow legs, it was Alfred Williams, of the Roanoke Times, who said on one occasion of a friend of his who had a lifelong hunger in his heart for public office, but was a little careful about announcing his candidacy, that he had sat on the fence so long that he had grown bow legged. Yet this very man has had one of his boldest ambitions gratified, proving that when a bow legged man makes up his mind he can run as fast and as far as anybody.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CARE OF PEACH TREES.

Selection Determined by Locality.

The varieties of peach trees selected must be largely determined by the locality in which they are to be grown, as some varieties thrive better in some localities than others. If convenient to market in many cases the earlier varieties are the most profitable, provided, of course, they are of good quality, but with peaches, as with almost every variety of fruit, if an extra fine quality is grown, there is no difficulty in selling at a good price.

When grown more especially for home consumption select varieties that will give a supply through the longest season. Peaches are particularly a fresh fruit, and are best in season, and little or no effort is usually made to keep them any longer.

Peaches need a reasonably loose soil and will not thrive if grown in sod for any considerable length of time. The soil should be prepared in good time by ploughing and harrowing.

Peaches are so often injured by severe cold, freezing weather, that in a majority of cases spring planting is preferable to fall, but it is an item to make all the preparation possible in advance so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring planting can be done.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Ontario Makes Splendid Showing.

It is a maxim of trade that competition stimulates business. Apparently the principle holds true in regard to agricultural colleges, which have increased so greatly in numbers and in student attendance. Until about ten years ago there was no great gain made by the Ontario college at Guelph from that time the classes have grown larger every year, so that the present enrolment is nearly 1,000 with an additional 600 at the Macdonald Institute. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that three other agricultural colleges opened in the meantime have narrowed its constituency somewhat.

CORN TILLAGE GOOD FOR SHEEP.

Experiments Prove That Silage Has Great Advantage Over Roots as Economical Feed.

The Dominion Experimental Farm is showing its worth to farmers by its practical experiments and even more so than its recent trials in stock food.

In a series of experiments conducted for two years under the direction of J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farm, it has been found that silage has a great advantage over roots as an economical sheep feed. Duplicating the experiment of the preceding year, twenty-seven lambs of uniform weight were divided into three groups of nine each and fed different rations, from which to form a basis of the experiment. No. 1 group was fed on clover hay, meal and turnips; lot No. 2 on clover hay, meal and silage, the latter replacing the turnips, and No. 3 group was fed on clover hay, meal, turnips and ensilage mixed.

BUY

ROYAL PORCUPINE

Quoted at 32 to 33 Cents

The stock of the Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co., we believe, will prove to be one of the greatest money makers in the wonderful Porcupine district.

Every day brings forth further evidence that the Porcupine Camp is destined to become the richest gold region in the world, and Royal Porcupine should soon take its place at the head of the great producing mines in this section.

Porcupine has the indorsement of the world's greatest authorities in gold mining, who concur in the opinion that never before have such rich showings been seen covering so great an area.

The Property

is located in the township of Tisdale and consists of eight full claims, embracing 320 acres. It is particularly well located, being only one-quarter mile south of the Porcupine Gold Mines, Ltd., and one-half mile south of the Hollinger mine, for which it is claimed there is $10,000,000 in sight. Engineers report that the Royal Porcupine property is in the famous ore zone, being on the same ledge as Hollinger and having the same formation.

A telegram from the engineer in charge of the property bears out this statement. It is as follows:—

"Porcupine, Ont., June 19, 1911.

"Vein uncovered twelve feet in width. Excellent ore body. Shaft being sunk on this vein. Property in every way most favorable.

(Signed) "JULIUS MESSER, M. E.,
"Engineer in charge of property."

Thirty men are now employed, and work on the shaft will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Four veins, varying from 12 to 100 feet in width, have already been uncovered. Assays have been made which show $50 a ton.

Royal Porcupine Gold Mines Co.

is capitalized for $3,000,000 par value of shares $1.00. Full paid and on-assessable. No personal liability.

A glance at the list of directors will show the class of men who are putting in their money and time to make this one of the greatest mines in the Porcupine Camp. The directors are:—

JAMES KENDRY,
Peterboro, Ontario; ex-Member of Parliament, President Auburn Woollen Mills.

T. E. BRADBURN,

The Hollinger stock was originally offered at $3.50 and now sells at around $15.50, and Dome Extension was first offered at 40c., and now sells at around 84c.

CARUSO'S COLD COSTS DEAR.

It is announced that Signor Caruso will shortly leave for Italy, where he hopes to benefit by a complete rest and change of air, the physicians having forbidden him to sing this season. The loss sustained by the great tenor through what was in the first place regarded as an ordinary slight cold is estimated at about $16,000, as he has been compelled to refrain from singing for a period of twelve weeks.

TO STOP HAT LIFTING.

To put a stop to hat-lifting as a form of salutation a league has been formed at Zurich which seeks to introduce the military form of salute. The league states that the uncovering of heads is the cause of many colds affecting mainly the older men. In Germany, Austria, and German Switzerland it is the custom for a man to hold his hat in his hand until the lady asks him to "cover" himself. A nod is generally sufficient, but some wait for a formal request.

At the Court of St. James'.

But it is not everybody who realizes that the Palace of Westminster—the correct name for the Parliamentary Houses—contains a second throne. This is placed in the King's robing room and is used by the King when he is putting on his legal garb before entering the House of Peers to read the "Speech from the Throne."

As a matter of fact, the official throne of these realms is the one at St. James' Palace, that very ordinary looking building at the foot of St. James' street. All ambassadors are accredited to this court, and, in the eyes of foreign governments, it stands for the majesty of Britain. Its throne is a very handsome one, and stands under a magnificent and most ornate canopy.

Though the throne at Windsor is but little used, it is unique in one respect. It is really an Eastern throne, after the style of the one we read of in the records of King Solomon, for it is composed entirely of ivory, and was the gift of one of the Princes of [illegible]

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

THE STANDING ALIBI OF H. STANLEIGH STORME

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd).

(By Wm. Hamilton Osborne).

He was a part of the chaotic blackness of the night. He only knew how he came to be there, or whence he came.

He was motionless and invisible. His skin may have been white, but if it were it did not show, for he wore a black mask and dark colored gloves.

His clothes were black. His coat collar was turned up. Miss Dumont did not see him.

This man had a keen ear, and he was using it to the best advantage. He was waiting for absolute quiet within the house. And when that quiet reigned, he waited many minutes longer before he stirred.

Finally he made an imperceptible movement, and somewhere, within his apparel a small bell struck one hour. He sighed with relief.

"I'll try it now," he exclaimed softly to himself. But still he did not move.

"Let me see," he mused, "I want to get this straight. I must make no mistakes. From what I have learned, the thing is safe. There are six people in the house."

He checked them off on his fingers as he spoke.

"The girl, the old lady, the man, and three servants. The three servants are on the upper floor, but they sleep, and they don't count — they never do. The man is on the ground floor — that eliminates him. The old lady in the front room — she's too far off to be dangerous.

"That leaves no one but the girl to face — and if she hears me, why then — I can get away in time, at any rate. This thing seems safe — safer than many others. It's worth trying, and I'll try it. Here goes."

There was an open space of eighteen feet between the shrubbery and the house. The man, who up to this time might have been a shadow or a tree, now disappeared from view beneath the bushes.

An instant later he emerged from the protection of the leaves. By means of some clever burglar's trick, he wriggled, half prostrat, across the open space — he was a passing shadow, a bit darker than the others, nothing else.

Once across he became a portion of the house — he became again unseen.

This man did nothing at random — he did not reckon beyond host. He had made himself carefully acquainted with the details of the job before him. He was an expert in his line.

Night after night he had lurked in the vicinity of this house, alert and wide awake to everything that went on. He knew now all about the outside and all about the inside of the house; he understood the habits of the occupants.

He had determined the exact location of his booty, if surprised, he knew just which way to run. He was prepared for all emergencies.

Outside a policeman swung along with easy gait. He stopped and peered a moment into the shrubbery and then passed on.

The man alongside the house breathed a sigh of relief. Suddenly he shook with uncontrollable but silent laughter.

"I presumed," he remarked softly to himself, "that Burke and his gang through."

Then he started in to work. In five minutes he had forced a cellar window. Having done this, he crept into the house and dropped to the cellar floor, closing and fastening the window behind him.

Once inside, there was no trace of him or his work left without. All that he had to fear now were the occupants of the house.

"This is a 'cinch,'" he muttered underneath his breath.

But not so much of a one as he thought. He had to break an entrance through three doors before he stood upon the ground floor. Once there, however, he felt his way cautiously to the pantry where he knew the butler slept.

The door was wide open, and a gas jet in the room was turned down low.

Loud snores proceeded from the bed. The butler lay upon his back, his mouth wide open. The man with the black mask was pleased to note that much.

It is said that th chloroforming burglar is a myth — or, if not a myth, a failure. Chloroform gags and stifles — it is bound to wake its victim.

But the man in the black mask knew his business. He took all [illegible] because of this fact.

He was ready for the gasp, the cough, the gurgle — he anticipated the fact that his victim would wake. Listening carefully to the respiration, he grasped his man by the throat each time there was an expulsion of air, and sprayed the vapor down his throat as he released his grasp.

There was a struggle — there was bound to be — but the butler was no match for the iron muscles and trained science of the man in black, and the struggles became faint and fainter, and the man on the bed succumbed.

For ten minutes the burglar kept his chloroform cone in place over the other's face, and then deftly gagged him and tied him hand and foot to the bed whereon he lay.

Then he softly stole upstairs.

Every bedroom door was locked. The recent burglaries had made everybody timorous.

"It's just as well," he laughed to himself.

He carefully secured each door from the outside with ropes tied to the handles in such manner that it would be impossible, by the exercise of ordinary force, to open them at all.

At each door he listened carefully, but heard no sound. Then he crept stealthily to the rear hall window and stepped out upon the extension roof.

A rap upon the flags outside startled him. It was nothing, though, but a roundsman on his rounds. The man on the roof felt perfectly secure, for he was unseen from the street below.

Without a sound he crept warily across the roof and paused just before he reached the farthest window. He fumbled once more in his waistcoat, and the mysterious little bell tinkled again.

"I must hurry up," he told himself, "for in just an hour I'm due to leave the club."

He laughd noiselessly, and then stepped to the open window and raised the mosquito bar.

Then he disappeared within.

CHAPTER X
Miss Dumont Solves a Mystery.

Helen Dumont had not retired upon the departure of her guests. She sought her room and threw herself into a large chair facing one of the two side windows.

She was in no mood to sleep. The night was close and sultry. But there was something else that made her wakeful, and prayed upon her mind.

"What can it mean?" she kept repeating to herself, "what can it mean?"

Yes, there was no mistake about it.

Once more she scanned the three letters. They were in the same handwriting, each one of them.

She read and re-read them. There was nothing in them that appealed to her. All were cold and formal.

The first two to herself, mysterious as they were in text, contained no hidden word of endearment, nothing which she could call her own. And why was it, she asked herself, that this man, who had thus come into her life—why was it that he clothed himself in mystery?

Yet she still had faith in him—or would have but for this last strange note.

Why should he write a note to himself, to call himself away? Why had he done that? What was it all for, any way?

The devil, Doubt, crept into her mind and possessed it, until in moving the small lamp she caused its rays to fall upon a photgraph of Storme that stood upon the table.

She grasped it eagerly and looked longingly at it. It was a good face — the face of a man of honor and of honesty, or at least so it seemed to her.

She swept the letters into a drawer, and kept her glance fixed upon the portrait. And as she looked, tenderly she bent down and kissed it.

"I—I believe in you, H. Stanleigh Storme!" she said.

And then she extinguished the light, and sank once more into her place by the eastern window.

Suddenly she heard a noise in the hall without. It was the noise of a man creeping stealthily — at least so it seemed to her.

She went to her door and listened. Then she unlocked it and threw it open. "Who is there?" she called.

There was no answer. And then of a sudden she saw what it was.

A slight breeze had sprung up, and the curtain of an open window in the hall was rising and falling with the wind. That, she reasoned, must have been the noise that she had heard.

She smiled at her fears, and shut and locked her door again, and once more resumed her seat. How long she sat there she did not know.

It is said that fishermen mesmerize themselves by watching a cork bob up and down upon the sunlit wave—and that the heavy hours pass almost like minutes with them. Miss Dumont sat in her room in the dead of night, wide awake, and yet dreaming day dreams.

She forgot time and the hour—and forgot herself. She sat awake and open eyed, but she saw nothing immediately about her.

Her thoughts were upon herself, and Storme.

THE EMPIRE.

Call the family of the British Empire what you will—an empire, or a commonwealth, a "bund" or a federal alliance, it could not possibly hold together if the principles which Sir Wilfrid insists on were to be generally accepted. Stormy weather would smash and scatter it.—Hamilton Herald.

To which a contemporary replies that The Herald has but stated the truth. It is only in times of storm and of stress that a nation is put to the real test; only in such times thata people are called upon to show what more is in them than that whoh as good citizens they have shown in times of peace a nation may be sorely tried.

Follow to its logical conclusion, for example, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's declaration that the Canadian Navy need not necessarily go to the assistance of the Empire in time of war, and what have we? Simply this—no Empire at all; for where is the Empire when its supposed-to-be component parts proceed to act independently and separately at the very time when there is greatest need for concentration and union.

The Separatist policy of Sir Wilfrid is not to the liking of the people of Canada.

I.O.L. 1072 marched in parade to the church Sunday, 9th inst., when a special and eloquent sermon was delivered by Mr. Soules, Presbyterian student, his text being taken from Matthew 5-16—"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father, which is in Heaven."

The annual picnic of Apsley lodge will be held at Couch's grove, Loon Lake, Wednesday, the 12th.

Billy has been down to Long Lake fishing. Had fairly good luck, but Ned says he is not much on the paddle and did not have enough of the right sort of bait. Better luck next time, Billy.

If your city fathers want a few pointers on building sidewalks let them send a delegation to Apsley. We have a fine walk here about 100 yds. long and nearly every other board broken. The city fathers here think that with strict economy we may within the next 26 years have a cement walk as far perhaps as from the Anglican to the Methodist Church so the young people of the village, or their descendants can have a longer promenade. All things come to those that wait.

AN INVESTMENT NOT A SPECULATION

What everybody with an ounce of common sense is on the alert for these days is a sound INVESTMENT and there is as much difference between an investment and a speculation as there is between London and Hong-Kong, although we all don't realize this.

• • • •

Consequently when one takes a chance on a speculative proposition, mistaking it as an investment and comes out of the small end of the horn, he becomes pessimistic and with the tightening of his purse strings to extremes to keep the pennies in just naturally shuts the dollars out.

• • • •

Now then if there were no investors there would be no progress, and with no progress the community would mighty soon become stagnant.

• • • •

The foundation of America, was old Christopher Columbus, he had an idea but was short on ready cash, in other words he was what us modern day folks call a promoter. His idea was feasible, he found co-operation, his plans carried and YOU KNOW THE REST.

• • • •

Like Columbus we are all Pioneers. Not out for our health, but to make money. No man ever saved more than a competence on a salary; few do that. To get a footing on "Easy Street" you have to invest. DOLLARS don't grow in your pockets or in a stocking. They must be put to work. Old Russell Sage said:

"Plant a few in a new country and see how fast they grow."

That's what we are trying to impress on you now and here is the biggest opportunity of this kind that is likely to knock at your door.

• • • •

We are the Pioneers of the fruit and vegetable canning enterprise in the Okanagan Valley and earnestly invite you to co-operate with us.

• • • •

Men at the head of affairs of this corporation are the best known and most highly esteemed gentlemen in British Columbia.

• • • •

Mr. Albert McKillop, our President, has a world wide reputation in the Timber and Timber Land World. (See R. G. Dunn).

• • • •

Mr. Wesley A. Blair, our Secretary and Treasurer, is also Cashier of the Canadian Customs, being the Government's most trusted employee. He handles on an average of $30,000.00 every commercial day of the year, and it was his fertile mind that first saw the possibilities of Canneries on the Coast, in-as-much as tens of thousands of dollars duty pass through his hands for American goods yearly. Bear in mind that there is a 2½c per pound duty on all canned stuff and RECIPROCITY or no RECIPROCITY that will stand.

• • • •

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

• • • •

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners Ltd., from doing the same.

• • • •

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—site of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

• • • •

Now, then, be up and thinking.

• • • •

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

• • • •

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

• • • •

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

• • • •

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

• • • •

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

• • • •

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

• • • •

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when opportunities like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

• • • •

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

• • • •

Although capitalised at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

• • • •

This is a gilt-edge bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

• • • •

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

BY-LAW NUMBER 1555

A By-law to fix the assessment of The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited).

Passed the third day of October, 1910.

Whereas The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) has represented to the Council of the City of Peterborough that it is the only manufacturing concern in the City of Peterborough engaged in the manufacture of locks and other articles manufactured by it, and has to compete with manufacturers in the same line of business in other places who have received and are enjoying Municipal assistance, making it difficult for the said Company to meet such competition, and has applied to the Council for a fixed assessment on the real estate, plant and business assessment of the said Company in the City of Peterborough at the sum of $25,000, and the said Council has agreed thereto and to pass this by-Law for that purpose, subject to the confirmation thereof by the Legislature.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-Law shall take effect upon and only upon the confirmation thereof by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, and upon the said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited), executing an agreement not to oppose the construction of any work as a local improvement abutting or fronting on, or the cost or part of the cost of which might be assessed or charged against the property in Section 2 hereof described, or any part thereof, that the said Council may desire to construct under the provisions of the Municipal Act relating to local improvements.

2. The assessment of the following lands in the City of Peterborough owned, occupied and used by The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) and being Lot Number Four north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, and that part of Lot Number Three north of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, described as follows:—Commencing on the western limit of the said Lot Number Three, at a point seventy-seven feet six inches north from the south-west angle thereof; thence northerly along the said western limit of the said lot to the northern limit thereof; thence easterly along said northern limit eighteen feet; thence south and parallel to the western limit of said lot to a point seventy-seven feet six inches north of said Simcoe Street; thence westerly and parallel to the southern limit of the said lot to the place of beginning while used exclusively for the manufacturing purposes of the Company, or the part so used for such manufacturing purposes, and the buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures thereon, and the business assessment there of on which taxes are to be levied, shall be fixed and remain fixed while the same are so used, and while at least an average of one hundred hands are employed therein for at least ten months of each year, at the sum of $25,000 for a period of ten years from the first day of January, 1911, and the return and oath of the assessor or assessors in respect thereof shall be amended accordingly, but the same shall, for school purposes, be and remain liable to assessment and the payment of school taxes and rates to as full an extent as if this By-Law had not been passed, and the assessment for school purposes and the school rates and taxes shall be made, levied and collected thereon in accordance with the provisions of the general law in that behalf, and the said lands shall also be liable for all frontage and local improvement assessments, rates and taxes that are now or may hereafter, be charged against the same, and any buildings on the said lands not used exclusively for the business of the Company, and the land appurtenant to same shall not be included in the fixed assessment hereunder, but such buildings and land, while not used as aforesaid, shall be assessed as provided by the Assessment Act then in force; provided, however, that if the said Company shall at any time within the said term of ten years fail or neglect to operate and carry on the said manufacturing establishment substantially to the capacity thereof, and therein to employ at least an average of one hundred hands during at least ten months in each year, then such fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates on the said lands, buildings, plant, machinery and fixtures and on the business assessment thereof shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed; provided always that if the failure to carry on the said business is due to strikes or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures by fire or tempest, the time during which the said business shall so cease to be carried on in consequence of such strikes, or destruction of the buildings, plant, machinery or fixtures (not exceeding in either case one year) shall not be taken as a failure or neglect to carry on the said business, so as to disentitle the said Company to such fixed assessment.

3. The said Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company (Limited) shall, prior to the first day of March in each year, file with the City Clerk a statutory declaration, made by an officer of the Company, who shall therein state his knowledge of the facts, proving that the said Company has complied with and is observing all the terms, conditions and provisions of this By-Law, and on the neglect of the said Company to furnish such declaration it shall be prima facie taken that such terms, conditions and provisions have not been performed, observed and kept, and the said fixed assessment shall cease, and the taxes and rates shall be and become payable to the same amount and in the same manner as if this By-Law had not been passed.

(Sgd.) S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

Missions Used by Leaders to Help Them Out.

"Got any home?" said the judge to a man who had been brought in on the charge of vagrancy.

"Sure I have."

"Where is it?"

The man named a street and number.

"Your Honour," volunteered a clerk, "that ain't a house; it's a mission."

"Well, call them up, anyway," said the judge, "and see if they know anything about him."

They did not know anything, but the missionary said he would come right down and see what could be done.

"It is not an unusual case," he said. "Our mission is 'home' to many a man whom we never even heard of until he gets arrested. If a man who has been run in as a hopeless derelict can mention some address which he can call home his sentence is apt to be lighter. Lots of outcasts have been on the tramp so long that it is hard for them to think of any place they are intimate enough with to call it home, but through an occasional peep in here they remember the number and brazenly sing it out. Courtroom attendants communicate with us and ask our advice. Naturally we respond even though the men are perfect strangers. Some of them seem hopeless wrecks, but now and then we discover a man who has good stuff in him still and is capable of developing into a useful citizen."

WHERE THE "DOME" DID ITS PART.

Old Baseball Players Give Their Experiences.

"Bonehead Barry!" That's what they usually say of a player when he accidentally or otherwise permits himself to be hit on the "dome" by a batted or pitched ball. While some of these plays have been anything but pleasant to the man hit, there's no question but most of them prove humorous to the fans, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

I have seen many players hit on the head with batted or thrown balls," said Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, "but the funniest play of this kind happened when I was with the Giants. "Jack" Dunn was playing third base at the time and a foul fly was sent up near third base.

"I was catching and started after the ball until he shouted 'I've got it.' He seemed to be camped under it all right until the sun got in his eyes and he lost the ball. It came and hit him on the top of the head. The ball knocked 'Jacks' cap off, and, as he was as bald as a doorknob and very sensitive about his slick dome, he made a wild scramble to recover the top-piece."

"A play which seems almost an impossibility, but one that is an actual fact, was performed by Ben Koehler and Emil Frisk, two former St. Louis outfielders," said Secretary Lloyd H. Rickart, of the Browns.

"In a game several years ago a ball was hit midway between center and right. Koehler and Frisk started for it. Koehler, the usually reliable, called that he had the ball. But he began dancing around and finally lost in the sun. He 'ducked' to avoid being struck, but the ball came down, hit him on the head, bounded up, and risk, the uncertain, caught it for the out."

The Fate of "Charlie Beresford."

Mr. George Leyton, the popular actor-vocalist, who recently petitioned the King to grant the Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans a special view of the coronation procession, has been instrumental in causing something like $25,000 to be distributed amongst the old soldiers. His philanthropic efforts are warmly supported, amongst others, by Lord Charles Beresford, who also takes a great interest in boy scouts. He told Mr. Leyton the other day of an amusing experience which befell him recently at the hands of some small patrols. The Portsmouth corps was founded by Lord Charles, who lately decided to personally test their ideas regarding scouting. Driving over the Portsmouth hills, where the youngsters were engaged in manoeuvres, his motor-car was smartly confronted by three youths, who exclaimed in chorus, "We take you prisoner, Lord Charles!" "Well, what are you going to do with me, now that you have got me?" inquired the distinguished captive. There was a brief pause, after which one of the lads replied, in a grave tone, "H'm! Well, when the guv'nor comes back, I 'spects we shall shoot yer, sir!"

The Boss.

Imperious baby foot, so small,
When you have stamped we haste indeed.
Imperious baby voice, your call
Shall send us questing with all speed.
Your ball has disappeared. The loss
Shall be repaired—you are the boss.

Imperious hand, so warm and plump—
From candy somewhat sticky, too—
You point, and instantly we jump.
Your bidding we must quickly do,
Nor linger, lest our king grow cross.
You are the boss; you are the boss.

Imperious eyes of deepest blue,
Who, then, could dally and be chid
When you command? We haste for you—
Each task is done ere you have bid
With hearts you play at pitch and toss—
You are the boss; you are the boss.
—Denver Republican.

Spoiled in the Making.

Behold, when a man on a trolley car removed his hat the other day in the Willie observed that he was bald—very, very bald, for not a single hair—the rambler trailed over his shining pate. But when it came to whiskers the bald party was right there with the lilacs. He had whiskers in bandies, whiskers in stacks—in fact, he had enough whiskers to start a rat factory and make a fortune.

"Say, mamma," finally remarked Willie, turning to his mother, "just look at that man there."

"Hush, dear," returned mamma. "He will hear you. What's the matter with him?"

"Everything is the matter with him," replied the youngster. "When the angels made him they put his head on upside down." — Philadelphia Telegraph.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual work will be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

The Speedier Way.

He simply couldn't help it. He was born lazy.

As a rule, if not too sleepy, he could get through a shave in about thirty-five minutes. But today, after only fourteen hours sleep, he appeared even more sluggish than ever. As he applied the lather to his customer's beard his brush lingered unwillingly, as though loath to leave the stubby chin to which it was being applied.

His customer was a patient man and stood this for a considerable while. But at last his patience began to ooze, and he interrupted a forty winks' interval with a cough.

"Here, sir," he suggested. "As've an idea. Hold your hand, keep the brush still, an' as it wag me head for ye!"

Making Things Hum in Rome.

The Romans had three recognized methods of applauding—the bombus, the imbrices and the testae. The word bombus did not carry any allusion to explosives. On the contrary, this form of applause was the most decorous, inasmuch as it consisted merely of a cumming or buzzing noise. Thus in a way the Romans were the first "to make things hum" in a public assembly. The bombus was not the chief feature the Romans had to offer in the way of applause. The imbrices meant a demonstration made with the hollow of the hands. The testae meant the striking together of the flat portions of the hands. From this we may conclude that the Romans clapped, but there is no certainty on this point.—New York Herald.

NOVEL ATHLETIC MACHINE.

New Invention to Test Runners as They Run Around the Track.

A novel invention in the shape of an apparatus for automatically taking measurements of the work of track athletes at all points in a race has just been installed on the running track in the Robinson gymnasium, Kansas University.

The machine, which is the first of its kind, and the invention of Dr. Naismith, director of physical culture, consists of small bamboo sticks, located along the track so as to divide the course into quarters.

The sticks project over the track and are touched by the breast of the runner as he passes. The bamboos are connected to a make-and-break electrical machine, which transmits the touch of the runner to a kymograph, which holds a lampblacked paper on which marks are made. A clock is used in connection with the kymograph for purposes of timing.

THE FIRST MENU CARD.

Started By a Duke in Brunswick in 1541.

At a dinner given by Duke Henry of Brunswick in 1541 he was seen to every now and then consult a long slip of paper, which reposed at the side of his plate. One of the duke's guests asked what the paper was for. He explained that it was a sort of a programme or catalogue of the dishes he had commanded from the cook. "It is meant that if some delicacy which especially appealed to his appetite were marked for a later stage in the repast, he might carefully reserve his appetite for it." The simplicity and utility of the idea at once took the fancy of the duke and the menu card from that moment became an institution. The new fashion was so much admired it travelled far and near, and was adopted in England and France at once.

A Shabby Coat Collar.

Very often the collar of a coat begins to look shabby when the coat itself is in good order, and it is wonderful what a difference a thorough cleaning will make. First take a piece of clean cloth and dip it in spirits of turpentine and rub the collar thoroughly with it. Leave it for ten minutes, then rub it again with the turpentine and scrape it carefully to remove any loose dirt. Next sponge the collar with a little alcohol and keep wiping it until it is dry. Hang it up in an airy place for an hour or two and it will look as good as new.—Boston Herald.

WHY ARE THE LARGE INVESTORS ALL OVER CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES BUYING MONTREAL REAL ESTATE?

If Western land or speculative stocks were considered better,—is it reasonable to suppose that these careful financiers whose knowledge of Canadian conditions is beyond a doubt—would buy Montreal Real Estate?

To the men of good judgment,—these questions do not require an answer.

YOU KNOW Montreal is the largest City in the Dominion.

YOU KNOW that the population is increasing yearly at the rate of about 50,000.

YOU KNOW these people have to have homes.

Taking the above facts into consideration, what do you consider, looking in the most conservative way possible, ANGUS PARK LOTS will be worth in four years' time?

Taking the past advances in MONTREAL REAL ESTATE as an example, these lots will be worth over a hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) more in that time.

We have a limited number of lots situated on ANGUS PARK BOULEVARD, which we can offer you at to-day's low prices, and on terms that will not cripple your finances, and by the time your lots are fully paid for you will have saved not only the cost of the land but the increase in value, thereby making your investment many hundred per cent. (100 per cent.) better than a Savings Bank account and much safer.

Do not delay till this opportunity has escaped you, but call in and see us, or drop us a line and we will send you full particulars together with our application forms. The prices range from $100 per lot upwards and the terms 10 per cent. cash, and the balance 10 per cent. every three months without interest.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

Dolliver and the Dahlias.

The dahlia is a flower that is almost sacred to Scandinavians. When the late Senator Dolliver was speaking to a Swedish settlement from the rear end of a Pullman car a bunch of dahlias was handed to him, and he bowed his thanks, while the crowd roared its applause for the orator and for the bouquet.

"What kind of flowers are these?" inquired Senator Dolliver of Senator Clapp of Minnesota.

"American Beauties, I guess," replied Senator Clapp.

Dolliver knew better than that, as he heartily thanked the people for their attention, applause and splendid flowers.

When they met in Washington after the campaign Senator Dolliver said to the Minnesota man: "Clapp, you would have had me mobbed if I hadn't been prudent. If I had called those dahlias American Beauties those Swedes would have been for killing me."

"Yes," said Senator Clapp, "they are good people and generally do the right thing."—Minneapolis Journal.

Why He Wept.

A man who was walking through a train inadvertently left the door of one of the cars open. A big man sitting in a seat in the middle of the car yelled: "Shut the door, you fool! Were you raised in a barn?"

The man who had left the door open closed it and then, dropping into a seat, buried his face in his hands and began to weep. The big man looked somewhat uncomfortable and, rising, finally walked up to the weeper and tapped him on the shoulder.

"My friend," he said, "I didn't intend to hurt your feelings. I just wanted you to close the door."

The man who was weeping raised his head and grinned. "Old man," he said, "I'm not crying because you hurt my feelings, but because you asked me if I was raised in a barn. The sad fact is that I was raised in a barn, and every time I hear an ass bray it makes me homesick."—Louisville Times.

The Brahman Funeral Pyre.

After the body of a Brahman has been anointed with sesamum oil the two toes are bound together and the two thumbs. It is then lashed to a litter made of two long parallel poles, to which are fastened seven transverse sleeves of wood. The shroud is very simple, a large piece of cloth wrapped round the body and bound with ropes of straw. If the dead Brahman leaves a will his face is not covered; otherwise the shroud is brought up over the head. The burning ground, or ghat, is usually near a river, that those who have taken part in the ceremonies may purify themselves as quickly and as easily as possible. Before erecting the funeral pyre a shallow pit is dug and partially filled with dry wood; the body is covered with splinters of dry wood and sprinkled with panchagavia, an inflammable liquid, and placed on the pyre and covered with branches and roots, like a hut. The nearest relative or heir then takes a lighted taper and sets fire to the four corners of the pile and leaves at once to perform the ceremony of purification. The carriers, being of the lowest caste, remain until the body is entirely consumed.

WHY GO TO ALASKA TO INVEST IN OIL?

During the past month we have beenpresenting to the readers of The Morning Times, and the public in general, an offer which for SAFETY and CERTAINTY OF RESULTS in the form of DIVIDENDS and ENORMOUS PROFITS is well nigh UNPRECEDENTED.

In Southwest Colorado, in Montezuma County, near Mancos, nature has placed RICH OIL FIELDS which promise to be the cause of the MOST STUPENDOUS BOOM COLORADO HAS HAD SINCE THE EARLY GOLD DAYS.

We own and control 8,500 acres of land in this section which experts assure us are positively gusher producing properties,

We have bought and paid for all the machinery necessary for drilling. We do not owe one cent. If you invest with us you have behind your investment not only enormous land values but machinery the value of which is fully $8,000.

For the ordinary investor this would be security enough but we have made the safest investment proposition that ever was offered, for, besides these rich Mancos Oil Fields we also own 2,560 acres in the proven oil field of San Juan, Utah; also 1,920 acres in the Great Montezuma District of Colorado, and fifty acres of rich mining ground in the La Plata District, for which we have been offered Ten Thousand Dollars spot cash.

Investments in the stock of our Company participate in the profits of all these properties. The Mancos Oil and Development Company promises to and will give the public a "square deal" Every acre of oil land and mining property which it owns or will acquire belongs to its stockholders.

MR. BURT H. MASON, the president and organizer of the Company, is a mining engineer of enviable reputation the officers of the Company are well-known business men and bankers of Southwestern Colorado. If any misrepresentation has been made we guarantee to return every dollar you pay us and all expenses to which you may have been put for investigation.

The price of stock is Twenty-five Cents a share, which can be paid on monthly installments if desired. If further information be desired it will be cheerfully given.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE

The Capital City of the Islands

THE LAST WEST

The only town on Graham Island that has a monthly pay roll, and the only sawmill shipping lumber to foreign ports.

The only town having a railway gazetted to its very doors on the island.

The only city on Graham Island having electric light, city water, miles of sidewalks churches, school, hospital, postoffice, first-class drug store billiard hall, city hall, hotels, boarding house, barber shop and other general stores, and the only newspaper published on the Island, the Queen Charlotte News.

We are positively the centre of all the vast wealth of the entire Islands, including farm lands, timber lands, coal and metalliferous mines. These products must come out at Queen Charlotte City, through the Hooma River Valley, and through which the Island Railway must run according to charters already granted.

The combined townsite interests cover one thousand acres, of which five hundred are practically level alluvial soil with no rocks.

A fine water power from the Hooma River, good drainage and the best harbor on the entire Islands.

Our lots are all 50 feet by 120 feet, ranging in price from $150 to $300, one-third cash, balance on time at 6 per cent., or deeds can be had at once if desired.

Fully 200,000 acres of farm lands, suitable for mixed farming, only await the hand of man, a large portion of which is already located.

The verdure clad mountains are vast treasure vaults of gold, copper, silver and other precious metals, while our valleys are underlaid with a wealth of the finest coal and covered with a vast forest of spruce, hemlock and yellow cedar. These, coupled with our fisheries, are at the very doors and within sight of Queen Charlotte City.

Taking all these facts into consideration, and with the present progress being made in developing our resources, which are at the gateways of transportation both by water and railway, with the advent of the completion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Queen Charlotte City is destined to be one of the province's most prosperous cities.

It is owned largely by the wealthiest and most honorable men of our province, who would not be a party in misrepresenting facts and are prepared to endorse every statement herein made.

The townsite company are now offering a further 75 lots on Second avenue at a very low price and on easy terms, if taken at once, and under conditions that will make you a 100 per cent. on your investment in 90 days, for 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds will be used by letting a contract for the clearing and grading of Second avenue from Third street west. The company guarantees to advance the remaining 75 unsold lots on Second avenue from $150 to $225 as soon as the first 75 have been sold. The company is making this effort in order to join with the government in making Second avenue the trunk road through the townsite from the Wilson-Robinson coal fields, Hooma River Valley, Lawn Hill and Miller Creek districts. Now you can secure any unsold lot on Second avenue, including fourteen in Keith's addition, to-day for $150, except corners, on easy terms, 1-4 cash, balance 6, 12 and 18 months at 6 per cent. This will positively be your last chance for a cheap lot in Queen Charlotte City, for every lot in the townsite will surely go from $500 to $1000 when the public realize that in the Island River railroad from Queen Charlotte to the head of Massett Inlet is to be started this summer, in addition to the present work already outlined, thus giving work to an army of men. There are at least 5000 citizens of Vancouver who have invested in the various resources of the islands. Conclusive evidence of these facts, a landscape drawing of the townsite and a portion of Graham Island coupled with an illustrated edition of the resources of the islands can be seen at the office of J. J. Miller, 82 Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C., Agent for Vancouver, and plans at office of "Times", Peterboro'.

UNDESIRABLE TOMMIES.

When a Little British Army Goes a (Drum) Long Way.

When a recruiting-sergeant is addressed as "sergeant-major" by a would-be recruit, who is scrupulously clean-shaven and studiously slouching in gait, and careful to advertise his abysmal ignorance of army matters, that recruiting-sergeant is forthwith on the alert. For these are merely some of the disguises of the rogues who make a profession of sampling British regiments, and, accordingly, the recruiting-sergeant sets his wits to work.

Perhaps a sudden shout from behind of "Attention!" will give the game away, or, as the recruit departs from the recruiting-office with the first day's pay, probably intending never to return, a piano near at hand may crash out a brisk march. He automatically changes his step, or marches in time, and in a trice the recruiting-sergeant's hand is on his collar. That piano-playing has been arranged!

Yet another device is to get a bugler to sound the "Fire-alarm!" outside the room where the recruits are being tested. The man who has once served in the army could hardly fail to give a start of apprehension on hearing that.

Despite these and other ingenious precautions, however, there are still numerous rogues who make a good thing out of the ease with which one may enlist in England.

"Why did that new recruit purposely salute me with the wrong hand?" a depot captain recently asked himself. The man was charged with fraudulent enlistment, and subsequently confessed that he had sampled no fewer than eleven regular regiments and four militia ones! It was estimated by the pay department that he had during his career defrauded the public of approximately $260.

Sometimes degenerate doctors, actors, and artists drift aimlessly from one regiment to another. One ex-barrister, captured whilst serving in a Scotch regiment, claimed to have sampled four foreign armies and seven British regiments in the space of four years, and these, as a rule, have no criminal intent. Then there is the man who, being only engaged with a traveling circus in the summer, or singing at a seaside resort, needs a haven for the winter, and enlists—only to desert when spring arrives, year after year.

Gorgeous Mantles.

It is possible that Knights of the Garter, the Thistle, St. Patrick, the Bath, Star of India, St. Michael and St. George, and the Indian Empire will be allowed to wear the mantles which indicate their respective orders at the coronation. If this idea is followed out additional splendor will be added to the scene in the Abbey, for the mantles are of a very gorgeous description. The mantle of the Garter, for instance, is of dark-blue velvet, lined with taffetas. With this there is a surcoat of crimson velvet lined like the mantle and adorned like it, on the left breast, with an eight-pointed silver-embroidered star, within which is the red cross of St. George, the whole encircled by a miniature blue garter.

The mantle of the Thistle is of green velvet, and that of St. Patrick is of sky-blue tabbinet, lined with white silk. The mantle of the Bath is red, and on very high state occasions the knights are entitled to wear crimson surcoats, vest and breeches of white satin, white stockings and shoes, golden spurs, and a high-crowned hat with a plume of white feathers. The mantle of the Star of India is of light-blue satin, lined with white, and adorned with blue and silver tassels with a representation of the Star. The mantle and chapeau of St. Michael and St. George are of blue satin, lined with scarlet silk, the hat surmounted with black feathers.

Quite a contrast is afforded by the mantle of the Indian Empire, which is of purple satin, lined with white silk, and fastened with purple silk and gold tassels, and on its left a representation of the Star.

A Captain of Industry.

"To travel hopefully is better than to arrive, and the true success is labor." These words, once written by Robert Louis Stevenson, hang above the desk of Mr. H. Gordon Selfridge, the head of the enormous store in Oxford street, London, who was recently the victim in a motor smash. They provide the keynote of the character of the man who, starting life as a shop-sweeper, made such good use of his opportunities that, by the time he was thirty, he was a partner in the Marshall Field store in Chicago—a store which has earned joint fortunes for its owners amounting to over $500,000,000. Mr Selfridge had retired from business, when, growing tired of a life of idleness, he turned his eyes towards London and ultimately founded the huge business in Oxford street.

Doyen Ruler of Europe.

The oldest ruler in Europe is the Prince Regent of Bavaria, upon whom, on the occasion of his ninetieth birthday recently, King George conferred the Order of the Garter. He has had the unique experience of acting as regent of that country during the insanity of two kings. Twenty-five years ago the Prince Regent's nephew, King Louis II. of Bavaria, was declared insane, and the prince was proclaimed regent. Three days later the king committed suicide, and was succeeded by King Otto, who is now sixty-three years of age, and who has been insane since 1875. The prince is extremely popular in Bavaria on account of his sporting proclivities.

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." The Times asked a local physician how it is that the farmers work right along in the hottest sun without any ill-effects. The answer was that the main reason is that the farmers don't try to stop the flow of prespiration and that they take plenty of cool water. Also because they think of the heat as little as possible.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. INDIAN RIVER

The oppressive heat and electric storms of the past week will not fade from the memory of the people of this section of the county for some time. Two reasons are given. The neighbors should remember for some time such weather. 1st, Because one young man was sun struck while putting Paris green on potatoes for his landlord. The young man sent for his sweetheart as he thought his end was near. The second reason is because several houses have been struck by lightning.

Mr. J. W. Clasig had the misfortune to have a young horse killed by the lightning.

Mr. John Elmhurst of Otonabee, had nine head of cattle killed by lightning.

The heavy rains although welcomed have done much damage when accompanied by high winds.

The farmers of this section are harvesting their fall wheat and hay between showers.

Mr. D. Devlin has sold two horses during the past week.

Mr. P. Z. Devlin and James Guerin are entertaining the villagers with their gramophones.

Mr. J. Laundergan is busy making marble blocks for his house.

Mr. Thos. Whibbs is home for a few holidays.

Mr. James Fitz, of the wire gang, and Frank Sullivan spent Sunday last with their parents.

Mr. J. C. Devlin shipped a car load of hogs last week.

SONS OF REST

Regular Meeting at Which Much Business is Transacted at Lang.

The Sons of Rest met in the Town Hall on Saturday night for their third weekly meeting since their reorganization.

The meeting was opened by President Bluebeard, who addressed the brethren at some length in a fatherly manner. Stroking his swarthy beard and pulling out about half a ton of chaff, which he ordered scrutineer Esson to remove from the room at once. This he refused to do on the ground that so much labor would disqualify him for membership in the society. Lord Square took the same view of the matter, so the objection was sustained. The President proceeding with his address said: "Brethren, you will all doubtless be glad to learn of dispatches just received from our representative at the Coronation and of the high honor that has been conferred on our organization by this degree of knighthood being conferred upon our representative, who now goes by the title of Sir Dude Hancox, on the strength of the White Overalls, his coat of arms being a bag of Snowflake flour enclosed in a wreath of orange Sentinels. This gentleman," concluded the president, "will make a valuable addition to our House of Lords. The meeting is now open for business."

Longarm Dinsdale rose and laid a charge against Postmaster Esson for smoking matches instead of tobacco. The president said that this was a serious offence, as tobacco could be borrowed at any time from Short-whiskered Esson or the president, and he fined the postmaster $5 and costs or 30 days. He paid the fine under protest, and said in future he would use pine sticks for this purpose and the match making industry would suffer accordingly.

Dear Hunter Bube arose and blushingly moved that the fine be refunded to the postmaster as he thought it a bad thing to have any injury done to this business, but when the kind of match making affected was explained to him he withdrew this motion.

Brix. Keitel was present with a charge against Lord Square for using profane language after hours. The charge was denied and His Lordship was remanded until next meeting to allow witnesses to be procured.

The meeting was closed with a prayer by Chaplain Edwards.

MOORE SAID HE WOULD FIX THE WHOLE FAMILY

"That May Jane King came to her death at her home, in the town of Petrolea, on Saturday, July 8th, from bullet wounds inflicted by one, William James Moore."

Petrolea, July 11.—The above verdict was rendered by the coroner's jury here last night that probed the tragedy in which a youth of twenty shot a woman old enough to be his mother.

Mrs. Ashton Simpson, the first witness, who lives across the street from Mrs. King, stated that on Saturday morning she heard women screaming, and ran out and saw Mrs. King and one of the girls running out of the front door of their house followed by Moore. Mrs. King fell on the verandah. The prisoner shot her there. He then took something from his pocket and threw it on the walk. She saw the prisoner give himself up to Constable Whitlock.

"ALL RIGHT, I DONE IT."

Special officer Whitlock was going down to ring the bell at noon on Saturday and had to pass the King residence. Walter McDonald was ahead of him, and he saw him run in. He heard the report of a gun, and saw Florence King, who was shot in the wrist, run out, covered with blood. He met the prisoner coming out of the house, and saw him throw down the gun. Mrs. King was lying at the door. He told McDonald to get a doctor. He did not see any bottle and did not think the prisoner had time to drink anything between the time of the shot and his arrest. He took the prisoner to the east end lockup, and went back to the house and found Mrs. King dead. The prisoner tried to get away, and said: "All right, I done it."

TRIED TO COURT HER.

Mrs. Hollifield, eldest daughter of the murdered woman, gave a description of the interior of the house. She was in the dining room when her sister said the prisoner was coming and her mother told witness to go to the door. Prisoner came into the back door carrying a rifle. He told her to stand back, and fired a shot. She stumbled and fell and the shot hit her sister Florence. Florence ran out by the front door, followed by Moore. She did not hear any other shots. When she went back the prisoner had been taken away. She saw her mother dying on the verandah, her clothing covered with blood from wounds in the region of the heart. Witness took her up in her arms and she died in five minutes.

She could give no reason why Moore did the shooting, except jealousy. She was never at home when the prisoner made calls on her mother. She was married last February. The prisoner wanted to court her before her marriage, but she refused. He also wanted to marry her mother.

Florence, the daughter of Mrs. King who was shot in the wrist, said the prisoner came to board with them three months ago and boarded six weeks weeks. He left because he was jealous. The prisoner was annoyed because her mother walked up street with a man named Minor, of Oil City who is now at Wallaceburg. On Saturday she saw the accused coming up to the house. She heard him make a threat on Friday last. He swore and said: "The whole bunch of you will be in it." On the day of the murder he asked her where her mother was. She then told the story of being shot in the wrist and finding her mother in her sister's lap when she got back to the house. She also told of seeing Moore arrested by Whitlock.

SAID HE'D FIX HER.

Walter McDonald, clerk in the postoffice, was first at the house after the murder was committed. He was on his way to dinner. When near the scene of the murder he heard screams and Mrs. Hollifield shouted, "My mother's shot." Shortly afterwards he heard a shot fired, and on going in shouted at the prisoner, "Have what are you doing?" and the accused said, referring to Mrs. King, "You oud ——, I'll fix you." When the prisoner was arrested he heard him say, "I'm sorry, but I had to do it." He called a doctor by telephone and went back to the house, and saw the murdered woman, who was then dead.

Elizabeth King, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mrs. King, corborated the evidence given by her sisters. She was going up town on the morning of the murder and saw the prisoner coming across the flats. She went home and gave the alarm. She did not see him on Friday.

Floyd King, the nineteen-year-old son of the deceased, told of the dismissal of Moore from his mother's house, where he boarded, on account of bad language. He was out of town when the murder was committed. He saw the prisoner on Saturday, but did not speak to him. He was jealous of the deceased, whome he asked to marry him, but was refused. Judging from the conversation the prisoner had with the mother, Moore was in love with her. The prisoner said to him that he asked his mother to marry him. The prisoner was not the only boarder at the house. Messrs. Al. Hill and Jas. Perkins also boarded there. He had words with his mother over Moore's attentions to her. The family have not heard from the father since he left home last December.

BY-LAW NUMBER 1539

A By-Law to fix the assessment of Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company.

Passed the 6th day of June, 1910.

Whereas Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company have represented to the Council of the City of Peterborough that they propose, if they are granted a fixed assessment on their real estate in the City of Peterborough hereinafter mentioned, that they will purchase an additional fifty feet of land adjoining on the north of their present property at the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets, in the City of Peterborough, and will expend at least the sum of $8,000 in building thereon an addition to their present factory sufficiently large to enable them to employ from fifty to seventy-five additional employees.

And whereas the said firm are manufacturers of harness, horse collars, horse clothing and other articles of a like nature, and are the only manufacturing concern in the City in this line, and the Council of the said City has agreed to pass this By-Law for the purpose of granting such fixed assessment, subject to the confirmation thereof by the Legislature.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-Law shall take effect upon and only upon the confirmation thereof by the Legislature of the Province of Ontario, and upon Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company executing an undertaking, agreeing not to oppose the construction of any sewers or sidewalks, as local improvements, abutting or fronting on the property in Section 2 hereof mentioned, or any part thereof, that the Council may desire to construct under the provisions of The Municipal Act relating to local improvements.

2. Provided the said firm of B. F.
